Railroad Strike Shuts Down Auto Plants

Mail Travel Delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The railroad firemen's union asked a federal appeals court today to stay a lower court injunction against their strike that has crippled eight major railroads.

A three-judge panel took the case under advisement after union attorney Joseph L. Rauh argued that U.S. Dist. Judge Alexander Holtzoff's back-to-work order issued Thursday "would bust the strike — and once you've broken a strike with a court order, the damage is irreparable. It usually means the end of the strike."

Effects of the Thursday walkout continued to show in highway commuter jams, auto plant shutdowns and troubles in the movement of mail.

Rauh, on behalf of the AFL-CIO Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen told the court headed by Judge David L. Bazelon that Holtzoff's order was illegal because it amounted to a finding of contempt without a trial.

And he argued that the brotherhood's strike is perfectly legal.

The strike has crippled service on the eight lines in 38 states from coast to coast and Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz said he foresaw no immediate end to the stoppage. He appealed to the union on the basis of "a very great national interest" to end the strike.

Francis Shea, on behalf of the railroads, told the appeals court that "all that's involved here is a temporary restraint; the notion that it's a finding of contempt is nonsense."

There was no immediate indication of when the appeals court might rule on the case but quick action was expected.

The biggest immediate effects appeared in operations of the giant General Motors Corp. which shut down six plants in Michigan, idling 13,000 workers, for lack of incomeing parts and shipping for finished cars.

About 46,000 more of the industry's workers, including 33,500 in GM plants in Detroit, Flint and Pontiac, Mich., were sent home early.

Nine Idled By Strike

J. E. Robinson, Missouri Pacific railroad station agent, said that the railroad engineers strike has put nine Sikeston people out of work.

Two freight trains through Sikeston daily, one from Poplar Bluff to Charleston and return, have ceased operations.

MOPAC Applies Freight Embargo

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Missouri Pacific Railroad placed an embargo today on the shipment of perishables, livestock and packing house products because of the strike by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen.

The railroad said it was the first of the eight lines affected by the strike to embargo goods. A spokesman said the railroad would continue to accept other freight where possible. Supervisory personnel are operating a few freight trains, but there is no passenger service.

Charleston Voters to Decide Daylight Savings Time Issue

CHARLESTON -- Mississippi county's annual city and school elections will be held Tuesday with the polls open from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Charleston voters will elect one city councilman for a three-year term. Those who have filed as candidates are Al S. Burnett and Dr. T. P. Fenton.

A straw vote ballot will be given each voter to determine if the city will have daylight saving time.

In the annual school election voters will elect two board members for three-year terms.

Those who have filed as candidates are Morris Gaines, Billy G. Brown, James Moreton and Dennis Quertermous.

Citizens also will vote for one year on a tax levy of $3.21 and a boundary change between the Charleston R-1 and the East Prairie R-2 school districts.

This would involve 33 square miles or 21,400 acres which would go to the East Prairie R-2 school district if approved.

Polling places will be at the Anniston school gymnasium, Wyatt elementary school, Charleston court house, Charleston armory, and the Bertrand school.

East Prairie voters will go to the polls to elect two city councilmen for two year terms. Those who have filed as candidates are K. J. Whittington, incumbent, and Dr. Albert Weaver.

Polling places will be at the city hall and the Lions club building.

At the East Prairie school election two board members will be elected for three years each.

Those who have filed for the office are Robert Hunter, Clayton Allstun and James Newsome.

Also on the ballot will be a tax levy of $3.40 and the boundary change between the East Prairie and Charleston school districts.

Polling places for the school election will be at the East Prairie High School, Pinhook School, and Dorena One School.

Anniston voters will elect aldermen for ward I and ward II and a city collector.

Those who have filed for the offices are Jamie Gilmore for ward I and Billy Salyers for ward II.

Shirley Chambers has filed for collector.

Polling places will be at the elementary school for ward I and at Meltons General store for ward II.

Wyatt voters will elect a mayor and two aldermen for 2-year terms.

John Cross, incumbent, has filed for mayor. Marion Oakley had filed for alderman in ward I and Jim Padgett has filed for alderman in ward II.

Two county board members are to be elected. Those who have filed are Dennis Quertermous for the first county court district and Sam Jones for the second county court district.

Bertrand will not have a city election but its residents will vote in the Charleston R-1 school election.

Charleston School Gets AAA Rating

CHARLESTON--The Charleston R-1 school district has its long-awaited "triple A" rating from the state department of education, Superintendent W. R. Pierce Jr. announced.

News of the improved rating, highest awarded by the state department of education, came in a letter from P. J. Newell Jr., assistant commissioner, division of instruction, in the state department. The letter was dated March 25.

Last year R-1 was rated a "Double A" system.

Newell's letter contained a special note commending the district for progress made since reorganization of the district in 1963, and again in 1965. It called attention also to the fact that the high school now offers 84 3/4 units of credit. In 1964-65 the high school offering was 46 units. Much of the increase, Dr. Pierce said, is due to the availability of a wide variety of vocational courses at the Sikeston area trade-technical school. Charleston students are bused to Sikeston daily to take advantage of these courses.

The only unsatisfactory rating given on the state department's rating form came in the area of qualification of elementary school teachers. Some 17 teachers with less than B.S. degrees and without permanent certificates are employed in the system, and must earn required credit. Dr. Pierce said the board of education's policy is that no teacher will be hired next year without the minimum qualifications.

Some of the 17 teachers, the report said, came into the district through reorganization, and are "below minimum standards for 'AAA' classification."

The deficiency noted in the "special education" category, the report said, is the lack of speech correction throughout the school system. "The money is in the budget," Dr. Pierce said, "but we have been unable to locate a qualified speech therapist to teach here. As soon as we can find one, we will eliminate this 'gig'."

Other "advisements" of the department of education pointed up deficiencies which should be corrected before the next school year opens.

These include: certification of administrative assistants; improved ratio of counseling time in junior and senior high school; expansion of practical arts, offering at Lincoln junior high; increase in percentage of faculty members holding masters degrees to a minimum of 20 and employment of certified teachers in the kindergarten and of certified principals in two elementary schools.

An advisement on foreign language offerings, Dr. Pierce said, will not be fully lifted for several years. The French program, begun this year at the junior high level, will be expanded at the rate of one hour per year until a full six-year secondary program is achieved, the superintendent said. A similar improvement is being made in the Spanish program.

An additional unit of business education must also be added to the curriculum, the report said. Dr. Pierce said this will be done as soon as the new high school is completed.

Big Victory For Wilson

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson returned triumphantly to No. 10 Downing Street today, swept back into office by a smashing election victory over Edward Heath and the Conservatives.

Computer analyses of returns from the general election Thursday predicted Wilson's Laborites would have a majority of at least 95 seats in the new House of Commons. Labor's majority in the last House was only three.

Looking fresh and vigorous despite less than four hours sleep, Wilson, 50, said he would give priority to measures to maintain the strength of the pound sterling as an international currency.

New House Districts Are on File

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Missouri's 163 new House districts are drawn, defined and filed.

A bipartisan redistricting commission Thursday night completed its task of apportioning the House districts according to the U.S. Supreme Court's one man-one vote decree.

There were few changes in the tentative plan filed last week.

The final vote, 18-2, came at 8 p. m. with St. Louis Republicans casting the dissenting votes. Only 14 of the 20 commissioners had to vote yes to adopt the plan.

Refusing to sign the formal resolution were Ted Fischer of the 1st Congressional District and John B. Prentis of the 3rd. They also voted against the tentative plan after a dispute in remapping the city of St. Louis threatened to deadlock the commission.

Only one minor change was made in St. Louis. A boundary between the new 53rd and 54th districts was shifted southward two blocks. This put Democrat incumbent Rep. James Troupe Sr. in the 53rd. Otherwise, his residence would have been in the same district with Rep. Raymond Howard, also a Democrat.

In outstate Missouri, only a technical change was made in Jefferson County.

After the month-long work, Chairman G. Andy Runge, Mexico Republican, and Vice Chairman Robert S. Dorsey, Brookfield Democrat, loaded up their maps and legal description and headed for the Capitol to file the final plan with Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick.

Kirkpatrick kept his office open in anticipation of the formal filing and it came at 8:30 p. m.

All candidates must file under the new plan before April 26.

Easter Sales Soaring

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Easter sales, buoyed by bright print dresses, shorter skirts, permanent-pressed pants, pink luggage and Batman, are soaring throughout the nation.

In a spot survey of stores in many states, The Associated Press found merchants reporting sales up 2 to 45 per cent over 1965.

The National Retail Merchants Association said department store sales this year are running 11 per cent ahead of 1965 — a record year.

A government report noted a 23 per cent gain in department store sales to $435 million the week ended March 19.

"The economy is healthier," said George W. Dowdy, executive vice president of a department store in Charlotte, N.C. "There is more money in circulation."

But at the same time "the average price is higher," said Bill Foster, sales manager of an Austin, Tex., store (Sage Discount Store).

In New Orleans, La., where a hurricane struck last fall, it's a case of 'tis an ill wind that blows no good.

"There is no such thing as unemployment in New Orleans because of the reconstruction work," said Charles LaBiche, a merchandise manager. "This has resulted in a tremendous flow of money. The general economy of New Orleans is fantastic."

Sales are up 25 to 45 per cent, estimated Gordon Bovey, assistant store manager for stores in St. Louis.

"The reason is a better grade of merchandise and the people seem to have more money this spring," Bovey said.

Johnson and Hope Trade Quips

WASHINGTON AP - President Johnson traded quips with an expert Thursday night--comedian Bob Hope. Both got some laughs.

The occasion was the 25th anniversary dinner of the United Services Organizations, which honored Hope for his entertainment of U. S. servicemen all over the world.

The President turned up at the award dinner to present Hope with a plaque inscribed: "Thanks for the memory from a grateful nation."

"An extra chair turned up fast, didn't it?" Hope said, referring to Johnson's sudden show-up. The comedian added he was glad to be in Washington, "or as the Republicans call it, Camp Run-around. Well, it's nice to be back in birdland. . ."

Johnson, while presenting the award, said he had come to honor a man with two very unusual traits: "He's an actor, so far as I know, who's not now running for public office. And he's a frequent visitor to Viet Nam who has never been asked to testify before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee -- at least, not yet."

Jones Recalls Russia Has Rent Subsidies

Special to Daily Standard

WASHINGTON -- Rep. Paul Jones, Kennett Democrat, told the House that when he was in Russia, the Communists were giving rent subsidies to some people at the expense of others.

He spoke on the proposal before the House for a $12 million rent subsidies program for the remainder of this year in the United States. The taxpayers would help the selected persons to pay their rent.

Jones also advised other members to go back home, talk with the people and find out "what is going on around here". He cautioned them that some would be "in trouble" in the fall's election because of some of the irresponsible pieces of legislation they have written into law this session and the last.

He noted that a new program was always financed by a new, untangled appropriation bill. Supplemental appropriations were limited to bases in which congress failed to appropriate enough money.

However, the administration's rent subsidy and teachers corps bills were presented not only by a supplemental bill but the second one was sponsored by the Administration for the year ending June 30.

He noted that some schools are already getting federal teachers as assistants to other teachers, whether they are wanted or even if they are not wanted. When asked what the federal teacher does to help the teacher, he said the answer was "she erases the teachers' blackboard", which is normally done by a pupil, Jones said.

He added that a poverty worker had arrived at least to some schools in his area and told them the school could have certain amount of money, with one provision. The money would have to be spent by June 30.

More is expected for the next fiscal year beginning July 1.

Jones asked:

"When are we going to get back to our principles?"

Six Killed, 143 Wounded In Saigon Explosion

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Viet Cong terrorists shattered a U.S. officers' billet today in a predawn attack with machine guns, grenades and a truckload of explosives, killing three Americans and at least three Vietnamese and wounding 143.

The Americans died in gun battles with the small band of raiders during and after the attack on the 10-story Victoria Hotel. The injured included 113 Americans, at least 18 hurt seriously.

The powerful blast also wounded a number of Vietnamese women and children in nearby homes. It was one of the most devastating terrorist attacks of the war

Vietnamese police said two men speeding from the scene on a motorbike were arrested after their vehicle overturned. Police sources said one admitted taking part in the attack.

The explosion ripped the hotel's three lower floors apart, smashed windows throughout the building, shattered outside walls as high as the fifth floor, unloosed a torrent of water from a 12,000-gallon rooftop tank and left a huge crater out front. The water probably prevented a brief electrical fire from turning the building into an inferno.

Many of the Americans escaped injury by ducking into bathrooms or under their bunks when they heard the first firing outside the building shortly after 5 a.m.

One officer said there had been reports the Viet Cong had slipped 250 pounds of explosive into the city and intelligence units had been looking for it.

U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge denounced the attack as "typical Communist violence of the criminal kind" as he inspected the wreckage and conferred with officials at the scene.

Authorities said reports would be undertaken quickly. The building housed 200 officers.

The terrorists followed the usual pattern of attacking first with small arms, then exploding a vehicle laden with explosives.

10 Injured in Two Vehicle Collisions on Highways

Nine of 10 area traffic accident injuries occured in a two-car collision Thursday at 5:45 p.m. on highway 60 at the Dudley junction.

A 1950 Plymouth, driven by Jerome Pepper, 52, came from a side road onto highway 60, and struck a 1957 Pontiac, driven by Alvin Myers, 45, Sikeston, in the side. The eight occupants of the Myers car were hurt. They were taken to the Missouri Delta Community hospital for treatment.

The driver, Alvin Myers, received possible rib fractures and bruises; Ann Myers, possible rib fractures; Lesia Myers, 17 months, cuts on the head; Fred Myers, cuts and bruises; Betty Jean Myers, 27, bruises over the body; Belinda Myers, bruises of arms and legs; Tresa Myers, 6, fractured nose and bruises; Tammy Myers, 3, bruises and cuts on leg.

Pepper complained of chest injuries and was taken to the Pemiscot Memorial Hospital in Hayti. He was arrested for careless and reckless driving and failure to yield the right-of-way.

The tenth injury occurred at 4:30 p.m. one-half mile west of Jackson on highway, when a 1957 Ford, driven by Shelia Young, 24, route 2, Jackson, stopped for a flagman, and was struck by a 1966 Ford station wagon, driven by James Bennett, 32, as he came over a hill.

Dan Young, 3, a passenger in the Ford car, received cuts on the head, and was treated by a Jackson physician.

Summer Building Start

JEFFERSON CITY -- Gov. Warren E. Hearnes announced today that an allocation of $798,880 has been made to the Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

The funds, made available through the Federal Hill-Harris Act, for Sikeston coupled with a federal grant received a year ago makes $923,499.55 available for construction of a new 55-bed wing at the hospital.

Funds also were approved by the state hospital advisory council for $588,000 for the new Dexter Memorial Hospital for 50 general beds.

John Ringer, chairman of the Dexter hospital board, said that a date has not been set for construction to begin.

The Hewitt and Royer architectural firm of Kansas City, is preparing drafts of the hospital building.

He said that construction cannot begin later than June 1, 1967, or federal funds will be lost.

Dexter funds of $636,000 have been pledged and Ringer said that $140,000 of the pledges have been collected.

E. P. Coleman, Sikeston, chairman of the Sikeston hospital board, said: "We are certainly gratified to receive the news of this approval because it will enable us to proceed with the badly needed additional facilities at our local hospital.

"This means, of course, that we will need to get busy on a local level and secure the local funds yet needed to match the funds levied to us with federal money.

"Local funds in cash and pledges now total $574,000, which is approximately $350,000 short of the amount required to equal the allocation."

Harold Jones, administrator at the Sikeston hospital, said construction of the new wing, consisting of two floors and basement, could begin within two months.

Buchmueller-Whitworth and Associates disclosed that architectural and engineering plans are nearing completion.

Coleman said that the people of the area should be "deeply grateful" to Governor Hearnes and Austin Hill, chairman of the advisory council, for their assistance, both of whom have worked with the Sikeston hospital on the application for the funds for more than a year.

"No one can realize the need for these additional facilities more than our patients and those of us who work at the hospital," Jones said.

The academic costume worn at graduation ceremonies in American universities is a heritage from medieval days when a warm gown and hood were real necessities for scholars in unheated buildings.

Police Judge Opposed

LILBOURN -- Only one race has developed in the Tuesday city election.

Welton Henry, police judge, is opposed by T. V. Denton.

Others seeking return to office are Mayor Lewis Stone, Mrs. Ruth Newton, collector, Johnny Marton, city marshal, and Lonnie Warf, alderman from Ward two, all unopposed.

No one has filed for a ward one alderman position.

No Word from Husky Kidnaper

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — There still apparently is no word from the husky kidnaper of 18-year-old Daniel Goldman.

The youth was taken from his plush surfside home early Monday by a middle-aged gunman who demanded $20,000 from the Goldmans.

After learning the family had no money in the home, the gunman awoke Daniel, forced him to dress at gunpoint and left in one of the family automobiles. He told the Goldmans he wanted $25,000 in ransom and the amount would be doubled the next night.

The car was found later that morning. There was no sign of the kidnaper or his victim.

Police, including FBI agents, had no comment on the case.

Chiang Kai-shek Sees Chinese Communists As Real U. S. Enemy

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Chiang Kai-shek sees the Chinese Communists as the United States' real enemy in Viet Nam, and says: "Only by our return to the mainland can an ultimate clash between the United States and the Chinese Communists be avoided."

In a 45-minute interview with The Associated Press this week, the president of Nationalist China said that Peking already has rejected any practical possibility or an improvement of relations with the United States, recommended by some American experts on China.

"The official People's Daily in Peking, in a recent article signed by 'Observer,' provided an answer to that kind of thinking," he said. "It said that unless and until the United States withdraws from the Taiwan (Formosa) Strait and from Southeast Asia, there can be no peace with the United States."

The man who has led Nationalist China for 41 years — since Sun Yat-sen's death in 1925 — talked with vigor and glowing health. He looked strikingly younger than his 78 years.

Generalissimo Chiang sees Communist pressure on Viet Nam as part of a master strategic plan.

"Your real enemy is not the Viet Cong, nor the North Vietnamese, but the Chinese Communists," he declared. "So long as the Peking regime continues in existence, there can be no satisfactory solution in Viet Nam. North Viet Nam must be isolated from the Chinese Communists, who are providing the supplies which are going to South Viet Nam.

"Militarily the United States can win in Viet Nam but more than that it is necessary to eradicate infiltrators, eliminate subversive elements and secure effective control both in the cities and in the countryside. It will take a very, very long time.

"This fits into the Peking scheme of things. Their real purpose is to immobilize the United States in Viet Nam so that they can prepare an assault on Taiwan (Formosa)."

Dressed in plain, olive-drab uniform without decorations, the last of World War II's Big Four (Roosevelt, Stalin, Churchill and Chiang) paused for a moment.

"The real objective of the Chinese Communists is to seize Taiwan," Chiang said. "I have said this often before but it is true. As time goes on, the danger is increasing. If they seize Taiwan, the Reds could move freely anywhere in Southeast Asia and, in the long run, get away with it. So far they have not plunged headlong into Viet Nam because Free China is here and we can threaten their flank.

"We can return to the mainland with our own forces alone. There is no need for American combat troops. We do not want to bring the United States into any war. On the mainland it is between us and the Chinese Communists. We have enough strength once we reach the mainland."

Left unanswered was the question of whether U.S. naval and air assistance would be necessary to transport Chiang's 600,000-man army across the Formosa Strait. The belief of U.S. experts that such aid would be required has been one factor in Washington's opposition to attempts at mass Chinese Nationalist landings on the mainland.

Chiang, who has devoted a lifetime to the study of Chinese-Soviet relations, foresees neither a final split nor reconciliation between Peking and Moscow.

"There is no possibility of an armed clash between them nor do I foresee any possibility of either helping the other. Their strained relations will continue indefinitely," he predicted.

Neither does he expect Peking to open a new Asian front in North Korea, as Gen. James Gavin and others have said is possible if the United States escalates the war further in Viet Nam.

HEAT CAN COOL

A gas flame can cool as well as heat. This is a point that will be stressed during National Gas Air Conditioning Week--April 3 through 9.

The Week amounts to a mass consumer education program to inform the public about the merits and advantages of gas air conditioning. Some 150 utility companies will participate. And this year's campaign will be conducted along the lines of that of 1965, when approximately 500,000 people were personally contacted on behalf of gas air conditioning in a single week.

Thus gas -- cousin of the oil industry--takes another step ahead. The consumer -- in business, in the home, in commerce of every kind--is the ultimate gainer.

NEED A GOOD USED CAR? IT'S THE SEASON TO SHOP

Spring cleaning isn't just the job of diligent housewives. Car dealers do it, too.

In the spring they make a special effort to clear their lots and showrooms for the arrival of next year's models. Their buys on used cars are especially good.

It takes more than an ideal shopping season, though, to get a dependable used car. Several other principles apply:

Think first and save some shoe leather. Daydream about the car you'd like, being specific about make, model, and equipment. It's a good idea to avoid a used car overloaded with extras; repair bills can skyrocket if they get out of commission. It's advisable, too, to stay within the three-year limit. Often, cars older than three years start having problems disproportionate to their years.

Most women prefer compact cars that are lively, long on mileage, and easy to maneuver. Choosing a popular model makes it easy to get replacement parts.

Top off your thinking process by reading the classified ads. They'll give you a good idea of what kind of car is going for what average price. As you shop, you can compare the offers you get with the facts from your market research.

Shop the most reputable dealers. It's wise to avoid a private sale unless you're really sure of the car and the owner. By going to a well-respected large-volume dealer, you'll get a broad guarantee on the car you buy--in legible, understandable black and white. A 60-day guarantee is best, although 30 days will give you enough time to discover any problems you're entitled to have solved free. Beware of two-day guarantees or other painfully short assurances.

Good shoppers usually make the rounds before they're ready to buy. If a dealer knows exactly what you're looking for, he can watch his stock and let you know when something promising comes in.

Inspect the body and interior of each car you consider. Rust patches on a fender can't positively tell you the condition of the engine. If the surface features of a car show unusual wear, though, the mechanism has probably had hard treatment, too. Check for excessive wear on foot pedals, arm rests, and upholstery especially.

After the inside-and-out inspection, stand back and take a long look. Does the body set too low on the chassis? Do the doors sag? Does the car lean to one side or the other? "Yes" to any of these questions, and you'd better look at another car.

Check specifics. Be sure that lights, directional signals, radio, heater, horn, and wipers work.

Examine the tires. If they're smooth or unevenly worn, you would need new ones--immediately.

Check the oil. If it's molasses-thick, watery, or laced with gasoline, it can indicate engine trouble.

Be sure the brakes are firm and, as a last test, gun the motor to see if any blue smoke comes from the exhaust. Blue smoke usually shows the need for new piston rings, a costly repair.

Take a test ride. Go fast and slow, over rough roads and smooth; listen intently for strange noises. If the car shimmys, shakes, or veers to one side or the other, the trouble can be anything from weak springs to worn-out shock absorbers--also expensive to replace. If the brakes squeak, chatter, or grab, if there's too much play in the steering wheel, or if you find any other major trouble, insist on repairs before you buy.

Double check. Before you sign the final papers, get an impartial professional opinion of the car--from a mechanic you know and trust.

THE SURE WORD ON SPRING

There's no saying what April weather will be like. Certainly a nasty March does not insure a fine April. It is a cruel month, once called Neroneus and not without warrant. But spring is here -- at least for city dwellers to whom it comes, according to our garden editor, a good three weeks before it touches many a spot in the county.

That is because the city's radiant warmth, exuded by brick walls, paved streets and warm hearts, calls forth buds and leaves and exotic forsythia bells earlier than does the unaided sun. The signs are clearly readable in the crocus and lily beds, and in bird song. These, of course, must be read with reservations. But for us there is one sure, incontrovertible word.

It is spoken each year by the little lady up the street when she announces that she has seen her first cardinals. It would be against chivalry to tell her that this greatest of sparrows never leaves us. After all, even a cardinal may seem somewhat drab in a drab season. But now his vermillion crest is brighter than a Guardsman's polished helmet. And come snow, hail or rain, that means Spring.

The Association of American Railroads reports that one of the most significant self-improvement projects ever attempted throughout an American industry now involves more than 20 Class I American railroads in formal or proposed rail merger, lease or control plans. In the nine-year span of the modern merger movement, a total of 38 unifications has been proposed. Of these, 23 have been approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission and made effective; two have been sanctioned but have been held up by court action; three have been denied; two have been deferred at applicants' request; one was withdrawn; and seven are pending.

NEW LOOK IN BANKING

There is an ancient and stale joke concerning a banker who had a glass eye. The point of it was that you could readily tell the false eye from the real one because it was much the kindlier and warmer.

Whether there was an element of symbolic truth in this, in the long ago, is a matter of opinion. But it certainly has no aptness nowadays. For banking, along with so many other things, has undergone a complete overhaul -- an overhaul that applies not only to the breadth of its services but to its attitude.

We have entered the era of what is known as full-service banking. This simply means that banks are able and eager to provide loans, at moderate rates of interest, for just about every legitimate purpose. Not every loan can be approved--law and policy, properly and necessarily, make it obligatory to say a polite NO in various instances. But the bankers recognize that credit makes the modern world go round, and that their function is to furnish it with a minimum of red tape and paper work. It is a friendly system, devised to help and not hinder, and its beneficial impact on this nation is enormous.

Even the appearance of banks has been swiftly changing. As new buildings go up and old ones are expanded and modernized there is less and less austerity. They become more comfortable, as well as more efficient, places in which the business of every kind of depositor and borrower can be dealt with in a pleasant atmosphere. Yes, there is a new look in banking, in all of its varied facets.

THE THREE C'S OF EFFECTIVE ADVERTISING

For many years I've put creativity first as the quality that makes advertising great. I have been a student of creativity, collecting a five-foot shelf of books on the subject. I've written on creativity for Printers' Ink, and other publications. I developed a slide film on creativity and lectured on the subject around the country. The power to create ideas is as important as ever, but today I would put another quality first.

That quality is character. Advertising must be built on character if it is to have an enduring influence. Behind every great idea in history there has been a man of character. Lincoln and the idea of his House Divided speech; "a nation cannot exist half slave and half free". Gandhi and his non-resistance idea which freed India. Jefferson and the Declaration of Independence. St. Paul and Christianity. Believability depends on character. No matter how clever we are, or how loud we shout, our words will not be believed unless we have character.

The third quality is continuity. It has been said that a message can be sent around the world by radio in seven seconds but that it often takes ten years to get a single idea through a half-inch of human skull. Many advertising programs, with character and an original idea, fail through lack of repetition. Advertisers frequently tire of an approach when it is just beginning to penetrate the mind of the prospect. They start to plant a message in the mind of the prospect, then pull it up, before it has had time to take root. Advertising success demands continuity.

Character, creativity, continuity, these three, and in the order named. First, a product of quality and character; second an idea for dramatic presentation; third the courage to hew to the line to keep a clear, sharp image in the mind of the prospect.

THE WILL IS LACKING

One thing is certain about the platforms our two political parties adopt every four years. They always promise the ultimate in economical government.

But a promise is one thing and performance is another.

Take the case of government economy, for instance. There certainly can be no doubt that there is waste and duplication of effort in just about ever phase of public affairs. If the parties mean what they say, the budget can be safely pared by billions.

But that is only half the problem and half the need. Economical government means government which, as a matter of rigid principle, keeps out of all those areas where the tax-paying private area can do what is required. A prime example were is electric power. The record of the invester-owned utilities in meeting every demand, and at a cost which has tended steadily downward over the years, is a dramatic and inspiring one. In this field, we lead the rest of the world by a very wide margin, and our technological superiority extends to all the elements which make up this complex industry. Yet the political pressures in favor of socialized power continue relentlessly. Huge sums of the taxpayers' money are needlessly spent -- and then, to compound the economic crime, the taxes that would be collected if private enterprise did the jobs concerned are lost through tax exemption of government projects.

It is not the ability to cut the cost of government that has been lacking -- it is the will. And that will can only be created by the strongest kind of public demand.

"Now, Tell Me Again, Sarge, We Are Fighting Here to . . ."

—ED VALTMAN, HARTFORD TIMES

Hal Boyle

NEW YORK AP -- In the literary world this looks like the year of the battle of gory best sellers.

It pits peacetime murder in Kansas against the wartime fall of Berlin.

Truman Capote, wispish author of "In Cold Blood," estimated recently his psychological study of the slaying of a Kansas farm family of four would gross $2 million from all sources. It took him six years to do the book.

Probably his chief rival for top-selling honors is a 6-foot-1 Irishman, Cornelius Ryan, 45, who also spent six years turning out "The Last Battle," a monumental rendering of the capture of Berlin by the Russians in 1945.

Ryan has no idea as yet what his latest opus will do. But his last book, "The Longest Day," which dealt with the Allied landing in Normandy, sold more than four million copies in 27 countries.

Referring to Capote, better known as a novelist than as a nonfiction writer, Ryan remarked genially:

"For a cub reporter, he's doing great. I'm glad he has discovered the excitement of great journalism, of which he has done a masterpiece."

Unlike Capote, he makes no claim of having created a new art form.

"This style of writing was created by Thucydides when he wrote his history of the Peloponnesian War in 400 B.C.," he said. "All I've done is use old-fashioned legwork."

It was rather expensive legwork. Ryan figures he spent $100,000 in research in contacting 3,000 people in 15 countries, of whom he interviewed 700 in depth.

Surrounded by war maps and 7,000 books, Ryan spent three years in the library of his seven-acre Connecticut estate in the actual writing of his dramatic tale. The estate is named "Les Roches," after German Marshal Erwin Rommel's headquarters in France.

"I got so grumpy," he said, "that one morning my two children marched into the library and announced they were going to write a book and call it 'The Father Who Roars Like a Lion.'

"Right now I'm shellshcoked. I've been living with the war for over 23 years. I can't sleep more than five or six hours a night. After doing the film script for 'The Last Battle,' I'd like to try something else for a change."

And then?

"And then I'd like to write two more books about the war. There's a lot that still hasn't been told.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- A funny thing happened to us the other day at the justice department. We were called down there by Attorney General Katzenbach and told we were under criminal investigation on a charge filed by Sen. Thomas Dodd, D-Conn., of stealing documents from his files.

This raises a very important point. If it is a crime for newsmen to seek evidence documenting charges of corruption against a United States senator, then the press must give up one of its important functions and senators will remain a sacrosanct body, able to expose others regarding deep freezes, mink coats, vicuna coats and Bobby Baker's conflicts of interest, but immune from exposure themselves.

For it is almost impossible to prove indictable facts regarding a senator, or for that matter any official, without using evidence obtained from the inside.

Furthermore, using inside evidence is one of the chief ways the FBI and most law enforcement agencies operate.

It would have been impossible, for instance, for the FBI to secure evidence on the Ku Klux Klan in the Liuzzo murder case without having an FBI agent inside the Klan. Almost every week the FBI pays money for inside information. So does internal revenue. Many of the tax convictions in the United States result from inside information.

There is a law on the statute books providing remuneration to tax informers; and congress appropriates the money for the FBI to pay for inside information.

PUBLIC'S RIGHT TO KNOW

As it happens, we paid no money and stole no documents. We did talk to former members of Dodd's staff who were motivated by the highest interest, namely the public's right to know when a United States senator delivers speeches and performs chores for a foreign agent; When he deposits in his personal account thousands of dollars contributed to his election; when he accepts valuables from companies which he helped re government contracts; and when he charges both the taxpayers and private organizations for trips he makes around the country.

The attorney general's investigation also raises an important point regarding senatorial "theft" or use of unauthorized documents.

We asked Mr. Katzenbach, for instance, whether he had investigated Sen. John Williams, R-Del., as to how he obtained the documents which he publicized in the Bobby Baker case. Obviously they were obtained from government employees who believed in the public's right to know.

The attorney general said he had not investigated Sen. Williams.

We also asked whether he had investigated Sen. Dodd's possession or possible theft of the Otepka papers. This was the famous case where Dodd, as vice chairman of the Senate Internal Security subcommittee, was personally involved with obtaining state department files.

The state department considered this theft. For on Sept. 23, 1963, it charged Otto F. Otepka, chief of the evidence valuation division of the state department's office of security, with violations of 13 regulations by giving confidential information to the Senate Internal Security subcommittee.

DODD CHAMPIONED "THEFT"

On Nov. 5, Otepka was dismissed. Later that day, Sen. Dodd denounced the state department, warning that if Otepka's ouster "is permitted to stand it will become impossible or exceedingly difficult to elicit any information from employees of the executive branch that bears on. . . wrongdoing by their superiors."

Attorney General Katzenbach said he had not investigated Sen. Dodd in connection with the alleged theft of the Otepka papers.

Other important members of congress have used documents obviously obtained from sub rosa government sources, most of these critical of the executive branch -- Senators John McClellan, D-Ark., Ed Long, D-Mo., Strom Thurmond, R-S. C., and Rep. Mike Feighan, D-Ohio.

It was evident that the attorney general had not investigated any of them for obtaining government documents.

We also asked whether instructions to investigate alleged theft in the Dodd case from the White House. Our question was based on the fact that the president and Tom Dodd have been extremely close. At the Atlantic City Democratic convention it was widely reported at first that Dodd, not Hubert Humphrey, would get LBJ's nod for vice president.

Dodd had nominated Lyndon Johnson for president at the 1960 Los Angeles convention. Lyndon, in turn, had intervened to put Dodd on the Senate Foreign Relations committee ahead of Sen. Joe Clark, D-Penn., who had seniority; and twice had gone to Connecticut to be the star attraction at Dodd's fund-raising dinners.

The attorney general denied that instructions to investigate came from the White House.

That's the funny thing that happened the other day at the justice department. It will be interesting to see what happens next.

Once upon a time there was a beautiful young girl taking a stroll through the woods. All at once she saw an extremely ugly bull frog seated on a log and to her amazement the bull froze spoke to her.

"Maiden," croaked the frog, "would you do me a big favor? This will be hard for you to believe, but I was once a handsome, charming prince and then a mean, ugly old witch cast a spell over me and turned me into a frog."

"Oh, what a pity!" exclaimed the pretty girl. "I'll do anything I can to help you break such a spell."

"Well, Miss," replied the frog, "the only way that this spell can be taken off and I can be returned to a handsome young man again is for some lovely and pretty young girl to take me home and let me spend the night under her pillow."

The young girl took the ugly frog home and placed him beneath her pillow that night when she retired. When she awoke the next morning, sure enough, there beside her in the bed was a very young, handsome man, and painly of royal blood.

And so they lived happily ever after, except that until this day her father and mother still do not believe her story.

H. L. Hunt Says

COMPLICATED GOVERNMENT

It is sometimes said that modern government in the United States has become too complex and theoretical for the average citizen to understand. If that is so, it ought not to be so.

Under the Federal Constitution, the government's sole mandate is to protect the life, liberty, and property of the citizens. That protection is achieved in three basic ways: first, by armed forces to protect our national independence; second, by police to defend the citizens against criminals; third, by courts of law which settle disputes among citizens.

Since governments began, some men have been fascinated by the enormous possibilities for greater power arising out of government's monopoly on the use of force. The absolute monarchies took full advantage of these possibilities.

Some two hundred years ago, the general revolt against the power of kings began. Our own American Revolution was a great uprising against the power of monarchy. Its success was so complete that it seemed a final victory had been won over the menace of government power and that future generations would need to fear only foreign invaders.

The wisest of our early leaders, Washington, Jefferson, Adams and Franklin, thought otherwise and warned against this easy optimism. The threat to freedom in every land, they said is perpetual.

They were tragically right. In the last thirty years new justifications have been developed for extending government power. If government is complicated, it does not have to be that way. A return to basic constitutional principles would ease the complexity and make secure the freedom of the individual.

Radio said that African who took to servants with him to China and got kicked out of his Dictatorship had numbered ballots in all elections so he could track down and punish any who did not vote right. Question, did Africa take that from Mo., or Mo. get it from Africa? Many folks think the numbered ballot in Mo. is responsible for so many cities counties and town in Mo. having gang rule, but the mystery is how come our good governments, cities, town and counties, refuse to even discus the matter.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Tough "Sailor" Paul Hall to Challenge Walter Reuther for Next Presidency of U.S. Labor.

New York: -- Trouble with those who search for eternal youth is that they never do get down to the national AFL-CIO headquarters. There they would discover the only place a man can be middle-aged at 60.

Its leaders are sturdy men who seemed determined to stay in office for ever. But with the retirement of garment chief David Dubinsky, abdication may well become the fashion. And now with George Meany (Mr. Labor) being hospitalized for some 40 days because of hip surgery, there is constant talk "in the market" that he will leave the national presidency of the 14 million - member AFL-CIO at its next convention in '67.

There are many contenders for the succession, but the main bout, insiders believe, will be between the young man of the seas, 51-year old Paul Hall, the Bunyanesque leader of the Seafarers' International Union and the 58-year old "red-head" from Detroit, Walter Reuther, as agile an infighter as this world has seen.

True, Reuther's face, philosophy and political dynamism are known globally. But the odds don't always go to the prominent. At the moment the court is well with the seafarer.

Political science is political science -- in precinct, state, nation or the labor movement. If you have the delegates you have the votes. You count them, not speeches.

And Paul Hall does have the big delegations -- the leaders of some 3.5 million construction unionists; the chiefs of the Maritime Trades Dept.; the heads of many civil service unions and white collar workers.

They like the big blondish "Paul." To them, he stands out morally and intellectually, as well as physically.

On any score, he has no fear. He has walked into the street in "High Noon" fashion and shouted to Jim Hoffa personally to come out and fight.

He has called Nelson Rockefeller a "fink." He has charged Defense Secy. McNamara and Pentagon officials with inability "to cut mustard." He has tackled the then Atty. Gen. Bob Kennedy with charges of harassment.

He has been a maverick in city, state and national politics. He has threatened to drive Agriculture Secy. Orville Freeman from the Cabinet and has warned senators from agricultural states that he would send his men in to fight their re-election if they persisted in insisting that more than 50 per cent of U. S. wheat shipments go in foreign flag vessels.

He has tied up railroads in a dispute over the size of their harbor tugboat crews -- and thus almost kept the entire New York contingent from attending the blizzard-swept inauguration ceremonies of the late John Kennedy.

In the East we are familiar with his "beachside," "white-capped" waves of pickets. He lends, not leases them. With the help of roving seafarers, white collar workers have struck the Cotton Exchange, the Stock Exchange and the New York Welfare Dept.

His technique is that of the military when he moves on the industrial front -- all the way from soup kitchens to quartermasters to platoon leaders.

It has been said by one nationally famous mediator that Paul Hall is "too physical." Perhaps.

But those with whom he has jousted -- all the way from Presidents to waterfront goons, know the moment to beware is when he says, "I'm just a dumb sailor."

Then comes the intricate analyses of modern air, land and sea transportation; the economics of contemporary society, dissecting of politics and the politicians, with swift quotations from GNP statistics.

His is the open-collar tradition. But it is he who has in recent years debated the more famed theorist, Walter Reuther. This has happened across the world -- in very salty but effective terms.

George Meany has come to count on it and enjoy it. Thus there have been Hall-Reuther debates behind closed doors in Amsterdam, Holland, over the Tunisian labor movement; in Florida at the AFL-CIO Executive Council over a foreign policy resolution which Reuther believed had too sharp an anonymous thrust at Bob Kennedy; and more recently Paul Hall flayed the even more theoretical brother, Victor Reuther, in Washington during a session of labor's foreign policy experts.

It is this outspoken strength which some consider Hall's weakness. There are those who say the next AFL-CIO president should be polished -- like "Walter." That will be the crux of the attack upon him.

But if polish were the criterion, George Meany would not be the statesman he is. And he will back Paul Hall in such a duel.

They think alike. They have fought together on many fronts, including the international assault against the Communist world.

On Moscow and Mao, they are inflexible. They stand broad shoulder to broad shoulder against Communist political, military and guerrilla aggression anywhere in the world.

The big bout between the ex-sailor and the ex-auto mechanic should be a classic. It will make history in many ways.

The Modern Christian

"I have heard that the apostle Paul and the gospel writer John present two different teachings about Jesus Christ in the New Testament."

Paul and John have distinct temperaments and, too, different experiences with the Lord. With regard to differences in temperament, John is a contemplative. His teaching is stamped with the realities of knowledge, light, and truth. His is an extremely original mind, and the underlying cause of the striking unity which prevails throughout the fourth gospel is the striking unity which prevails throughout the fourth gospel is the contemplative spirit of the apostle John.

Paul on the contrary, is a fighter, a man of action, dynamic, creative, a founder of churches. His intellectual powers, by no means less than those of John, reveal themselves in a striking manner. He cannot remain permanently in one community, be it Antioch or Ephesus, but rushes from one town to another, everywhere establishing the Church of Christ. In these activities he is particularly preoccupied with the new creation which is the work of Christ. His primary concern is building a new world in the place of the old one which is in the process of collapsing.

Paul's experience is the vision on the road to Damascus. There he encountered the risen Christ; and swept up in his devotion to his new master, Paul moved into a new world. How could he not devote his fiery personality to this work of the risen Christ? It is his temperament and experience that gives his thought and preaching such a distinctive flavor from John.

John's initial experience, through less striking, is not on that account less profound; it is the experience of a young man, perhaps of sixteen or eighteen, who encountered Christ and became captivated by the light which radiated from him. When Jesus was arguing with the doctors of the Temple, most of the apostles became bored for they found the discussion too subtle, but the young John listened and listened intently. In John's teaching there is an echo, elaborated in fine taste and yet no less authentic, of the words of the Lord which the more popular synoptic teaching (Matthew, Mark, Luke) has not retained but which deserve to be received with careful attention.

John and Paul are both men of the New Testament. They offer varied insight in their teachings of Jesus Christ. This does not mean that there are two different teachings of Jesus Christ, but two rich and thoughtful relationships to their Master that have been expressed in their writings in the New Testament.

High Meat Prices May Be Over

NEW YORK AP -- The worst of the high meat prices may be over.

Beef and pork prices, which soared off the tops of the charts during the winter, have been falling at wholesale markets. The drops should be passed along to housewives in the next few weeks.

Stores in the Midwest and in New York are advertising specials on beef this weekend, and in the Southeast, bacon, and West Coast, pork.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said the anticipated slowdown in food price increases in the next few months would depend on the weather.

The bureau issued statistics this week noting that food prices in February were 6.5 per cent higher than in 1965 -- something any housewife paying $1.19 a pound for bacon could have told them without consulting the charts.

Prices of fresh vegetables were up 10.5 per cent, an aftermath of the January freeze which cut Florida's cucumber and green pepper crops, heavy rains that hampered Texan onion and carrot production and cool, rainy weather delayed the cabbage and lettuce harests in Arizona and California.

GOLF NOTES

Forty six women golfers, or would be golfers, assembled at the Sikeston Country Club Tuesday for the initial meeting of the local club.

Most attractive year books with the season's activities listed for every Tuesday of the season were distributed by the vice president, Mrs. Charles Stamp.

Gene Dawson discussed informally with the group some new P. G. A. rules, as well as some local ones for the 1966 season. One seasoned golfer was heard to remark, "If I were a beginning golfer, I would be scared to death to start." These rules and regulations necessary in any sport are explained in order that the golfers become knowledgeable as soon as possible.

There will be at least six beginning golfers this season. Dawson will give group instructions on the fundamentals if the women will form their own group and arrange with him for a time. After a few lessons, some practice and some playing, individual lessons may then be had to iron out the individual problems. Experienced golfers are always willing to assist new players.

Mrs. Paul Heckemeyer is hostess for April. Any new golfers, please feel free to call her for information.

Tuesday, April 5, is the first round of play and the beginning of the ringer tournament for the month. Playing time is 9 a.m.

It is suggested that those planning to attend the luncheon for the bowlers start a bit early in order that they may be able to complete nine holes of play by noon.

Tuesday's luncheon was planned and arranged by the club president, Mrs. Frank Armstrong.

Nine Specials On Top

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK AP -- The regular television season is in its death throes--two series have already started summer repeats--but special programs are flourishing. Nine are on the books for the next seven days.

"Viet Nam: The Home Front," NBC's study of reactions and controversy over U.S. policy, will be broadcast tonight 6:30 - 7:30.

On Sunday there is ABC's "American Sportsman" special 3-4 p.m. which takes viewers on an Indian stag hunt and a Texas turkeyshoot. "The Congo: Victim of Independence" is NBC's news department special that evening 5:30-6:30. And "Mary Martin at Eastertime with the Radio City Music Hall," will take over the NBC channels after that for an hour 6:30-7:30.

Tuesday night brings one of those unfortunate conflicts. ABC has a variety hour 9-10 called "Jack Jones on the Move," with Milton Berle, Shani Wallis and Tony Bennett. At the same time there will be another of CBS' audience quiz shows: "The National Income Tax Test," designed to show individual viewers what they really know about their tax returns.

A new-to-TV event, "The Miss Teen International Pageant," will be an ABC broadcast on Wednesday 9-10 with "Peyton Place" cast members and Robert Goulet appearing.

Taped acts from a circus, with Roy Rogers and Dale Evans, will be an hour special on NBC Thursday 6:30-7:30 p.m. and later in the evening there will be ABC's "Revolution of the Three R's," 9-10, a study in new techniques and methods in teaching.

Bible Training Program Planned

"Does God have influence in this twentieth century? That question will furnish the principal topic for a three-day Bible training program that the Sikeston congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses will attend April 8 through 10 in Jonesboro, Ark.

The announcement was made today by Russell Knauer, local presiding minister. Knauer said the question has been raised by persons throughout the earth in recent months.

"Not only will we enjoy getting the Bible's answer, but we are sure that Sikeston residents are interested too. What we learn at our assembly we intend to bring back with us and share with our neighbors in our house-to-house witnessing," he said.

Knauer said more than 650 persons from parts of Arkansas, Missouri and Illinois are expected to attend the gathering.

"All those delegates to the convention will be ministers and therefore the assembly theme, 'Make Disciples of People of All Nations,' is very fitting," he said.

The Watchtower Bible and Tract Society of New York, the meeting's sponsor, is sending Bruce E. Giffin to serve as convention chairman and principal speaker.

Giffin is a special traveling representative of the Watchtower Society in charge of more than 200 Witness congregations in the mid-South.

In addition to Giffin's lecture April 10, on, "Does God Have Influence in This Twentieth Century?", the convention will be highlighted by a mass baptism of new ministers the second day of the meet.

The Jonesboro convention will be a prelude to a series of national assemblies the Watchtower Society will sponsor this summer.

A dear old lady who was visiting New York City for the first time was fascinated by the symbols and quotations on the ticker tape. Then, above the tape, she spied a large clock, flashing the time at intervals--11:31,11:32, 11:33. Brabbing the sleeve of the nearest employee, she said urgently, "Quick! Where can I buy that stock? It seems to be going up a point every time I look at it!"

Missouri U. Travels To San Antonio Texas Today

COLUMBIA, MO. -- Helped by more outdoor pre-season work than usual in March, Missouri opens a new baseball campaign against Trinity University in San Antonio, Tex. today.

The Tigers will be playing seven games in six days down in the Long Star State. The pre-conference slate:

Apr. 1 -- Trinity at Ft. Sam Houston (7:30 p.m.)

2 -- Sam Houston State at Randolph AFB (2:00)

2 -- Randolph AFB at Randolph AFB (7:30)

4-- St. Edwards at Lackland AFB (2:00)

4 -- Lackland AFB at Lackland AFB (7:30)

5 -- St. Mary's U. at St. Mary's (3:00)

6 -- Ft. Sam Houston at Ft. Sam Houstin (2:30)

Coach John (Hi) Simmons will take a 22-man squad, including eight pitchers, on this shake-down trip. The Tigers will fly to San Antonio Friday morning, and be billeted in U. S. Army quarters.

Simmons indicated two of his veteran pitchers, Terry L'Ange and Mike Eader, will share hurling responsibilities in the opener against a Trinity team, that already has played ten games.

The defending Big Eight champions return 10 lettermen this spring -- four of them pitchers -- but lost 1965's leading hitter, Dan Rudanovich, to a professional baseball contract late in January. The hard-socking centerfielder hit .463 last year -- third-best among the nation's collegians.

That's the biggest single loss, but Simmons also must fill vacancies at second base and catcher. Last year, the Bengals hit .316 en route to their fourth straight league championship, only to lose the District Five title and a College World Series berth to St. Louis U. in the playoffs.

Pitching should be fairly solid this year if veterans like Orville Hollrah (5-0), L'Ange (3-1), Eader (2-0) and Bob Carpenter (1-1) again came through Backed up by sophomores Jerry Hurt and Mike McFarland, the staff will be right-handed all the way.

Catching will be green, though, with rookies Phil Rhode and Al Chettle, a football center, leading all candidates.

The infield has a veteran gloss -- Ron Cummins at first base, Bob Robben at second, Tom Seal at short, and Roger Lindstrom at third base. Only Seal is a new starter -- and he lettered as a utility man last year. Robben, a .440 hitter, played short last year but worked at second in his sophomore season.

Ray Thorpe, swift lead-off man, is the left-fielder--with another letterman, Gene Stephenson, in right. Ron Coleman, high-scoring basketball guard, and Barry Lubeck, a '65 squadman, are the top-rated prospects in center.

Robben led the Bengals in four departments last year: Most hits (40); most R. B. I.'s (25); most triples (5); and most total bases (78).

Simmons starts his 27th season as M. U.'s skipper -- and he's the circuit's most consistent winner. Eleven conference championships, one national title, and three runnerup teams in the College World Series highlight his career log. Three of his proteges currently are on major league rosters: Sonny Siebert (Cleveland); John O'Donoghue (Kansas City); and Charley James (Cincinnati).

Schellhase Takes Scoring Honors

NEW YORK AP -- Sometime during his 26-game season, Dave Wagnon of Idaho State probably missed an easy lay-up. He definitely missed a couple of free throws.

And it was those two points that cost him the national major college basketball scoring championship.

Wagnon finished with an average of 32.50 points per game while Dave Schellhase of Purdue, the leader throughout the season, came in with a 32.54 average.

Thus the 6-foot-4 All-America won the closest individual scoring battle in major college history. He scored 781 points in 24 games compared with 845 in 26 contests for Wagnon.

Another All-America, Michigan's Cazzie Russell, was the only other player with more than 30 points a game. His final average was 30.8.

Grand Jury Investigation Continues

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal grand jury investigating gangster influence in professional boxing reportedly was to begin its third day of sessions today with the entire proceedings wrapped in secrecy.

Spokesmen for the U.S. Attorney's office refused to disclose to newsmen whether the probe would continue today. However, the grand jury, scheduled to be dismissed Monday, was held over indefinitely at the government's request, an indication of further hearings.

At Thursday's session, Bernard Glickman, 51, the government's prime witness, testified before the grand jury.

As far as could be determined, Glickman was the day's only witness in the seven-hour session.

In an attempt to maintain the secret characteristics of grand jury proceedings, Glickman was whisked into the Federal Building via an underground entrance.

Attempts by newsmen to spot him leaving the building were fruitless despite a constant watch at all exits.

The grand jury opened its probe Wednesday, hearing at least seven subpoenaed witnesses.

Glickman's tie-up with Ernie Terrell, World Boxing Association heavyweight champion, led to the probe. Glickman and Terrell are Chicagoans.

Glickman told the FBI he was beaten and choked Feb. 3 by Felix (Milwaukee Phil) Alderisio, an alleged hoodlum. Crime syndicate mobsters blamed Glickman for failure to engineer a bout between Terrell and Cassius Clay in New York's Madison Square Garden.

The New York State Athletic Commission refused Terrell a license Jan. 29 because of his alleged association with Glickman.

The government's organized crime unit, on the basis of Glickman's accounts of mobster activity in boxing, subpoenaed two reputed Chicago gambling figures, along with six men who are active in boxing in New York and Chicago.

SPORTS CORNER

By Ron Jaynes

One swallow does not make a summer, or one baseball season a career; but a backward glance at the trades made by Bob Howsam since he became General Manager of the Cardinals seems to give the Red Birds a decided edge.

Three major Howsam transactions have so far been tested on the playing field, and here are the results in so far:

Pitcher Bob Purkey was obtained by the Cardinals from the Cincinnati Reds for Pitcher Roger Craig and Outfielder Charley James. Purkey won 10 games, third on the Cardinal staff last season, and lost nine. Craig had a 1-4 record for the Reds, and James, playing in only 26 games, hit .205.

Pitcher Tracy Stallard was acquired from the New York Mets for Outfielder Johnny Lewis and Pitcher Gordon Richardson. Stallard's 11-victory total was second on the St. Louis staff to Bob Gibson. He lost eight games. Richardson, meanwhile, spent part of the season in the minors, and was 2-2 with the Mets. Lewis, a young player still in the development stage, hit .245 and had 15 home runs for the Mets.

In mid-season last year, Howsam traded Pitcher Ron Taylor from the Cardinals and Mike Cuellar from Jacksonville to Houston for Pitcher Hal Woodeshick. Woodeshick came close last year to being the best relief pitcher in the game. He had a 3-4 won-lost record and two saves with Houston, and was 3-2 with 14 saves with the Cardinals.

Taylor was 2-1 with a 4.50 earned run average for the Cardinals, and 1-5 with a 6.36 ERA at Houston. Cuellar's record was one victory, four defeats.

In the only other major league transaction he made, the Cardinal General Manager purchased Tito Francona from Cleveland. Tito hit .259 and played both the outfield and first base.

There still is no basis for judging the two major deals made since the 1965 season ended. At the moment, Howsam, a thorough, painstaking researcher of players and their abilities, thinks the Cardinals did what was best for them in trading Ken Boyer, Bill White, Dick Groat and Bob Uecker.

Third Baseman Ken Boyer went to the Mets for Third Baseman Charley Smith and Pitcher Al Jackson, while First Baseman Bill White, Shortstop Groat and Catcher Uecker were traded to the Philadelphia Phillies for Outfielder Alex Johnson, Catcher Pat Corrales and Pitcher Art Mahaffey.

The history of the Cardinals is full of deals that helped win pennants. Bob Howsam has the right to hope it can happen again.

In London a clerk named Charles Wilson has laboriously copied out in longhand every one of Shakespeare's plays. He performed this herculean task, furthermore, while his three sisters sat in the same room with a television set going full blast.

"I've always had an overpowering urge to write," he explained. "But I have absolutely no literary talent."

Shannon And Brock Boost Cards With Home Run Slugging

SARASOTA, FLA. -- Bob Gibson tuned-up Thursday for his likely season-opening assignment and the Cardinals made a fast getaway stand up for another exhibition victory. But Red Bird manager Red Schoendienst indicated he still will shake up his batting order before the final week in Florida gets under way.

The Cardinals' fire-balling righthander came within a single out of going all the way against the Chicago White Sox. Hal Woodeshick finally nailed down the 7-5 edge over Eddie Stanky's Grapefruit League pace-setters, even though the bases were loaded when right-fielder Bob Skinner cane in for Pete Ward's game-ending liner.

"I'll take that many runs every time," the Cardinal field foreman explained after his team had registered its fourth straight success. In addition, the Cardinals now have bagged nine of their last 10 games for a 12-7 record.

Independent Tourney Moves Into Semi-Finals

ESSEX -- Quarter-final play ended last night with Gray Ridge, Sikeston Eldoradoes, and New Madrid advancing to the Semi-finals.

Each game was close throughout as the winning teams pulled away in the last two or three minutes.

In the first game of the night Gray Ridge upended Vanduser 71-61. Vanduser trailed by only two points at half time and led by as much as eight points in the final half but relinquished it to Gray Ridge five on their fine fast break tactics.

Kelly and Henderson led Gray Ridge in scoring with 16 and 14 points respectively. Pardon and Wages led the Vanduser scoring attack with 20 and 13 points.

Bloomfield led the entire second game until with 4:56 to go in the game, Mike Wise fouled out for Bloomfield with Bloomfield leading by six points but failed to keep up the pace with the much taller five from Sikeston and lost 88-82.

Reynolds and Havis led the Eldoradoes in the scoring and rebounding departments with each pulling down 14 rebounds and collecting 27 and 16 points respectively. Wise and Johnson led Bloomfield scoring with 20 points each.

New Madrid ended the night with a win over Morley 68-65 with Linnes McFerren leading the New Madrid scoring with 25 points. New Madrid led throughout the game and held a 39-33 half time edge. Brazel led the Morley scoring attack with 21 points.

Tonight action will pit Gray Ridge and Parma going after a berth in the finals in a 7 p.m. game followed by the match between New Madrid and the Sikeston Eldoradoes.

Cronin Predicts Seven-Team Pennant Race

BOSTON (AP) -- American League President Joe Cronin predicts a seven-team pennant race and a trend toward more exciting play in the 1966 season.

Back from a swing of Florida training camps, Cronin told Boston baseball writers Thursday that he is "optimistic" for for the first time in years over the flag chase.

"In the past, the league has been dominated by the New York Yankees," Cronin said. "This year, though, is one of the most difficult ever to predict a winner. All clubs appear to have improved."

Cronin named the defending champion Minnesota Twins, the Detroit Tigers, the Chicago White Sox, the Baltimore Orioles, the Cleveland Indians and the Yankees as contenders. Then he added, the California Angels on the advice of their general manager, Fred Haney.

READY TO GO—A three-man Apollo spaceship, indicated by markings, sits atop a new Saturn-1B rocket at Cape Kennedy ready for its first flight test scheduled Feb. 22. The unmanned ship will be lifted to an altitude of 300 miles and then rocketed back toward earth in a sub-orbital check of the heat shield.

TRACKING APOLLO—The flight plan for the first operational test of the three-man Apollo spacecraft, designed to carry American astronauts to the moon by the end of the decade, calls for a sub-orbital launching down the Atlantic Tracking Range from Cape Kennedy to a splashdown point beyond Ascension Island. The unmanned capsule will be lifted to a 300-mile altitude by Saturn-1B rocket and then rammed back toward earth to test efficiency of the heat shield. Heavy line on Newsmap marks the route. Bars indicate land tracking stations and the ship Rose Knot keeping tabs on the Apollo at successive stages of the journey. Flight sequence is 1) separation altitude; 2) second-stage spacecraft separation; 3) altitude apogee; 4) first service module propulsion burn; 5) service propulsion cut-off; 6) second service module propulsion burn, and 7) second service propulsion cut-off.

FALL GUYS—Cassius Clay, top, and Dick Stuart of the New York Mets are in different sports, but similar positions. Clay, training for his heavyweight title bout with George Chuvalo, was knocked down during a sparring session and Stuart was decked by a foul ball off his own bat.

Fishing continues to improve on all major impoundments. Bass are moving into shallow water with Bombers, Helldivers, and similar baits producing the best catches. There have been some reports of topwater catches on Rebels, Rappellas, and medium running baits. Crappie throughout the Ozarks are just starting to move. Water conditions are good. At Lake of the Ozarks there is some dingy water in the center section of the Grand Glaize Arm. At Beaver Lake the upper section is beginning to clear and several eight-pound Northern Pike have been reported in the past week. Greers Ferry also has some dingy water in the section above the narrows. Bass fishing in Missouri Ozark streams is closed until May 30th.

Opera Deserves Better Building

NEW YORK AP -- The Metropolitan Opera is a company of singers surrounded by an orchestra, dancers and a variety of production and administrative people. It is one of the best opera companies in the world and should have the best, most modern fully equipped house in which to perform.

That is the sensible view.

The Metropolitan Opera is a building just south of Times Square, where second and third act scenery is stacked outside on the sidewalk leaning against the back wall while the first act is going on, where the acoustics are wonderful, where it's nearly always too hot for audience comfort and where Caruso sang. It's a building soon to be torn down and a lot of people love it and hate to see it go.

That is the nostalgic view.

The sensible view is prevailing. On Sept. 16, the Met will open its 1966-67 season in a new $42.7-million building at Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts. It will be cooled, it will have 3,800 seats, 175 more than the Mets has now, it will have storage space and rehearsal space and two orchestra pit elevators.

Rudolf Bing, Met general manager since 1950, says: "It won't look like the old house at all. You cannot expect in 1966 to build a 19th century building, but it will be traditional within contemporary limits. It will have tiers of boxes, beautiful redwood, gold leafing in the ceiling, red chairs and a crystal chandelier. It will be very elegant. It will have nothing of the mixture of antiseptic hospital and airplane terminal style you see in Europe today.

"You can't tell about acoustics now — not all the chairs are in yet. But Justino Diaz and Leontyne Price — who will open the next season in Samuel Barber's new Antony and Cleopatra — just sang the National Anthem from the stage without accompaniment and it sounded very well."

The present house, soon to be torn down to make room for a skyscraper, opened Oct. 22, 1883, with Carles Gounod's "Faust." It cost $2 million, including the land.

The Met is selling everything it can — light fixtures, seats, even tassels from the gold curtain for $5 each.

Nostalgia will prevail on the last night of this season, April 16, at 39th St. and Broadway. The last night — sold out long ago — won't be an opera. Too many stars want to sing and each person in the audience wants to hear his favorites.

More than 50 stars will be able to say "Oh, yes, I sang at the last night in the old house."

This is the old wooden stage where great music, and some that wasn't, has been created for 82 years.

It is where Leo Slezak gazed at a departing mechanical swan pulling a raft on which he, as Lohengrin, should have been standing, and loudly inquired, "What time does the next swan leave?"

Where Russian bass Feodor Chaliapin, under cover of a language his audience didn't understand, once sang to his valet in the wings, "Go home and get me a suit of underwear." Where the great duo, Flagstad and Melchoir, sang naughty stories to each other in German, performance after Wagnerian performance, and the music critics never caught on.

Calcutta City of Crisis

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — This is one of the world's largest cities and it is a city in crisis — overwhelmed by runaway population, poverty, hunger, disease and illiteracy.

A third of its people live in conditions which by Western standards are unfit for human habitation.

"We're really in a race with time," one official admits.

If the race is list, all of India will face a serious threat, experts here agree. Repercussions could be felt throughout Asia.

Bloody rioting broke out in mid-March, ostensibly over food shortages. Before the army regained control, about 30 lives had been lost, and millions of dollars worth of property — mostly government — had been burned or otherwise destroyed.

The violence was inspired by leftists, who are capitalizing on the deteriorating situation.

Even nature is working against Calcutta. The harbor, major trade link between East and West, is silting up; and the flow of fresh water into the Hooghly River is diverting into other branches of the mighty Ganges.

"Given the resources of the area, the city is faced with a hopless task," was the grim resume of one qualified observer.

"Local resources such as taxes are insufficient; administrative ability is skimpy.

"There is a great air of hopelessness, despair and cynicism.

"We don't have citizen good will. We have a crisis but no sense of crisis in the city and state administration.

"The problems are so chronic and the people so long-suffering that you can't arouse a development effort."

Under British rule Calcutta developed into one of the world's busiest ports. It was India's capital until 1912, the site of palatial British residences and government buildings.

Calcutta's real problems came with India's independence and partition of the subcontinent. About a million of the 4.2 million Hindu refugees who left East Pakistan swarmed into Calcutta, straining facilities.

The result is a metropolitan city of about seven million persons, gaining 200,000 a year. The Hooghly River on one side and salt water swamps on the other keep Calcutta from spreading out, so the population density goes up and up.

Calcutta is estimated to have 102,000 people per square mile, compared with 27,000 for New York City.

An official at the Calcutta Metropolitan Planning Organization pointed out that "in New York you achieve density by building skyscrapers. Here we have one-story bustees (slums). We have no room for schools, parks or hospitals."

It is estimated that three-fourths of Calcutta's people live in overcrowded tenement and bustee quarters, ridden with flies and rats. About 60 per cent of multimember families are jammed into one-room quarters — many without running water.

Thousands live on the sidewalks.

The lack of safe water supply, sewage facilities and proper housing has made Calcutta an endemic source of cholera and other diseases. The World Health Organization calls the city an international health hazard amid its tropical heat and humidity.

Five years ago, the Ford Foundation sent a team of international specialists in urban planning. As a result a planning organization came into being and today the foreign experts work alongside Indian planners, turning out programs aimed at preventing catastrophe here.

John P. Robin, former chairman of the Pennsylvania Planning Board, is chief consultant.

Others in the group include Arthur Row, on leave from Yale University where he is chairman of the Department of City Planning.

The foreign experts decline to be quoted on Calcutta's problems because of possible resent at interference by outsiders. Indian officials similarly decline, fearing they would become targets of leftist agitators.

But interviews with planners and city, state and port officials produce this summary of Calcutta's problems:

--Not only is Calcutta grossly overpopulated, but so is its trade area — the states of West Bengal, Bihar, Orissa and Assam. Calcutta is the only city over 300,000 in this great rural area. The states have a total population of about 146 million people, equal to that in all the European Common Market countries.

— Calcutta is the most backward city and area in India in terms of educational facilities. No school is available for a half-million children. At the present rate of population growth, Calcutta would have to build 100 schools a year for 20 years and these would have to operate double shifts. Calcutta has not opened a single school in the past 10 years.

— Hospitals are so overcrowded that patients pronounced incurably ill must leave. The city has 3.8 hospital beds per 1,000 people, a fairly good figure for India. But people come from all over eastern India for treatment. The city is building one hospital every 10 years.

— It would take about 200,000 new houses to clear the present bustees. The present rate of building would take 100 more years just to clear the present slums.

— Calcutta's existence is based on its port, which handles 42 per cent of India's exports and 25 per cent of its imports. But the port is dying and plans are under way to build a new port nearer the open sea, at Haldia, 60 miles south of Calcutta.

Through a natural diversion process, the Ganges River has been shifting the main volume of its water to its mouths in East Pakistan. Water flowing into the Hooghly is so silt-laden that dredges are unable to keep up with it. The river today is limited to ships of about 26-foot draft and 10,000 tons.

Reduced water flow has caused three other problems. It has caused the city a severe shortage of fresh water; it is insufficient to flush away the sewage pouring into the river; and salt water pushing in from the Bay of Bengal is threatening fresh water supplies.

Part of Calcutta's problem is the vast number of uneducated, unskilled male laborers flocking in from the surrounding rural area.

They have contributed to the estimated 15 per cent open, or readily apparent, unemployment. A city official said there is a tremendous concealed unemployment, including the sidewalk sleepers who don't apply for jobs or get counted.

The influx of men has made Calcutta "the most male city in the world." The 1961 census showed 450 women for every 1,000 men. This increases sex crimes, prostitution, and venereal disease.

The men send whatever money they can scrape together home to their wives and children and this gives Calcutta a high volume of postal money order business.

Change in Postmasters At Hayti

HAYTI -- A change in postmasters for the Hayti Post office was completed when Angelo Mouhalis was sworn in by Postal Inspector R. S. Nelson, as acting postmaster. He replaces Harvey Slentz, who has become a postal service officer in the St. Louis region.

Mouhalis is a career postal employe, having served in the Hayti post office continuously since July 7, 1948, and has been senior clerk several years.

Former Postmaster Harvey Slentz is in St. Louis for a training course after which he will be assigned to one of the seven postal districts.

He expects to continue to make his home here. Slentz is married to the former Mary Margaret Pike, and they have three children, Harvey, Mike and Ann.

He graduated from Army Pilot training at Fort Sill, Oklahoma in November 1953, and received his commercial pilots license from the Department of Commerce in 1954. He served as a commissioned officer for fifteen years with the Missouri Army National Guard, retiring recently.

He has served with the Hayti post office since 1944, and was appointed Postmaster in 1951. In his new position as Postal Service Officer, he will serve as a liaison to the Regional Director, providing management counseling and guidance to Postmasters in the District.

Watchwords. A father complains about all the time his kids spent watching TV. "I have a six-year-old," he says, "Who knows only one word --Shh!" (Champ Butler, quoted by Bill Kennedy in Los Angeles Herald-Examiner)...And then there was the little girl who explained the family color TV set to a friend: "If the program doesn't start with the peacock, it means it will be an off-color show"

Kennett Man's Anthem Will Be Sung Sunday

KENNETT -- An anthem, "Lord Our God, We Do Adore Thee," written by C. R. Talbert of Kennett, will be sung by the Cathedral Choir of the First Methodist Church at 4:30 p.m. Palm Sunday under the direction of Mrs. Dorothy Ashbaugh.

The author, now 70 years of age, reports that this is his first and only attempt at anthem writing even though he has written jingles and a dozen or more musical pieces during his lifetime.

The anthem was first published last December by Broadman Press, the music press for the Southern Baptist Convention at Nashville, Tenn., and appeared in a monthly publication, "The Church Musician."

Since that time about 400,000 copies of the musical work have been distributed, approximately 300,000 of this number being in the monthly magazine which is subscribed to by 11,200 Southern Baptist churches in the United States for use by their choirs. The anthem was first sung in Kennett on March 6 by the choir of the First Baptist Church.

The author used his own lyrics and a Russian folk tune, with considerable change, for the melody. These words and music were put into the hands of a noted composer at Springfield, Will James who is also 70 years of age, and he rearranged the work for publication. James is well known to many singers and choirs in schools, churches and music clubs. He now lives on the royalties from a life of writing and arranging music.

Talbert reports that when he was a child he was a student in the tuition schools of Arkansas and studied under his great uncle, Hayes Sowell, a well-known teacher and singer in that day. Later he began to write jingles for school when he was a rural school teacher. Later he took violin lessons which gave him a basis for self - instruction in music. Through the years he often wrote down lyrics which came to mind and then created his own melodies to go with the words.

He was unsuccessful in his attempts to get his work published. "Professional music writers seem to have a monopoly with music publishers and it's almost impossible, unless you write a musical comedy, to break through that wall," he declares. "Only in the field of church music is the door still open to amateur writers like me."

Will James has informed Talbert that he will nominate him for membership in ASCAP, a national organization for writers of music. "I don't know whether this would be wise or not," the Kennett music writer commented. "This anthem is probably the last musical score I'll ever write."

Almost everyone in the Kennett area knows Talbert. He has lived in Dunklin County for the past 43 years. A graduate of the University of Missouri with a bachelor of science degree, he served as extension agent in the county for 17 years. Later he accumulated a considerable amount of land in this area and in recent years most of his activity has been limited to management of farms and real estate.

Wherever he has lived or worked he has always sung in choirs and choral groups. He has been a tenor in the local Methodist Church choir for the past 40 years and will be there this coming Sunday afternoon to assist in the presentation of his anthem, "Lord Our God, We Do Adore Thee."

"The West End Home Mission tells of its Third Birthday Celebration."

We the members of West End Home Mission are happy to state that our circle is not just a circle but a circle of love and humility. It was with these thoughts that the mission preceded with their third birthday celebration.

The devotion was very good. The lesson was taught by Sister Alberta Jones from I Peter 2;13-17. The subject was "The People of God in Government". Our souls were further refreshed with the thought that, it is the respect that we render to ourselves that so often hinders the growth of love. After adjourning the meeting gifts were presented to our birthday hostess, Sister Annie Evins. The refreshments consisted of ice cream, cake, and an assortment of other goodies.

President -- Sister Bessie Johnson; Pastor -- Reverend J. W. Gwin; Secretary--Sister Annie Williams.

The Golden Alco and Temple Air Singers from St. Louis, Mo., will appear at the Greer Chapel M. B. Church Sunday, April 17, 1966. Rev. Jones is pastor.

They also plan to appear at the Travels Rest M.B. Church Sunday night, April 17, 1966, sponsored by the Travels Rest ushers board, Rev. M. Gentry.

Progress of Schools Told

PORTAGEVILLE -- If there should be any doubt in the minds of school patrons of Reorganized District No. 1, New Madrid County about the progress being made, and plans for further progress, they should talk to Supt. of Schools, Tom F. Park, Jr. He has the answers.

Speaking before the Kiwanis club at its regular meeting Monday, Superintendent Park outlined what had been accomplished during the past four years. He started out by pointing up the tax structure of the five AAA schools in the immediate area. Portageville has the lowest tax rate based on the $100 assessed valuation at $2.85. Next was Gideon with $3.00; Kennett $3.35; Caruthersville $3.60 and Sikeston $4.

Being integrated for the 1966-67 school term, Portageville has established (1) straight school term. (2) AAA classification. (3) Closed campus. (4) Integration

Superintendent Park stated this has largely come to past through the understanding and cooperation of the school patrons and leaders that have always stood for the best interest of our school system. . . and having the interest at heart for all school children."

The contract signing took place in Fort Worth, Tex., where the FHA office is located.

Howard Teeters, executive director of the Caruthersville housing group, has announced that several sites are under consideration, but no definite site has been selected.

Handiest tool in my cleaning kit is a soft paint brush. It's wonderful for dusting lampshades, picture frames and hard-to-get places. You can use it damp or dry and easily clean it.

Highway 25 Group to Appear before Commission

KENNETT -- The newly-formed Highway 25 Association swung into action with the announcement that a hearing has been scheduled with the Missouri State Highway Commission on Thirsday, April 14.

Joe Brasher of Malden, president of the highway association, said confirmation of the hearing was received from Jefferson City.

Brasher said an effort will be made to have at least 200 persons from the three-county area at the hearing. Arguments for improving the route on a faster rate of schedule will be presented, along with a presentation of the present condition of the road.

The Malden businessman expressed the hope that at least 200 persons would make the trip to Jefferson City next month to be present at the hearing before the six-member commission.

Arrangements for the hearing were made by Brasher, after consulting with A. C. (Dub) Riley of New Madrid, a member of the commission. Riley recommended the association request a hearing date to present its arguments.

Each community will be asked to make its own arrangements in securing representation and transportation, Brasher said. At least 25 persons will be needed from both Kennett and Malden, with lesser numbers from other communities along the route, he said.

Arrangements in Kennett will be handled by J. E. Ditto, a director of the association and chairman of the Kennett Chamber of Commerce's Highway Committee. Kimble Swindle, vice-president of the association, will handle arrangements in his hometown of Senath and in the south Dunklin area. Brasher said he would handle arrangements in Malden. Directors in other communities will handle details of the trip next month, he said.

The association will be permitted to present its case for an improved highway and will also be permitted to show colored slides of the condition of the 100-mile route, Brasher stated.

A board of directors meeting will be held at Malden to develop other plans for the presentation at Jefferson City.

Legislators from the three-county area will be asked to attend the hearing, along with citizens and officers and directors of the association.

The commission will be asked to include improvement projects for the route in its five-year highway plan. No major improvements are proposed for the route in the current five-year plan.

Brasher requested that persons wishing to make the trip to Jefferson City contact their hometown association directors as quickly as possible.

VIET NAM MONTAGE
BY DICK VAUGHAN

To build a tent city, use the following ingredients and instructions:

Take one flat, open, dusty, cement hard area. Add cursing sergeants and yelling officers. Mix in a great deal of sweat and labor. Spice well with incoming small arms fire and mortar rounds, and garnish with Claymore mines and Punji stakes. Bake consistently for 12 months, under the sun, at temperatures of 120 degrees.

Amazingly, what was desolate area one month ago, is now row upon row of tents, shop areas, and helicopter maintenance pads.

Of course living quarters were needed first, so regular field tents were hastily erected, to house the men. Work then turned towards preparing areas for the accomplishment of the Unit mission. Namely: Repair of helicopters. Slowly, the area began it's metamorphis, until it took on the appearance of a well laid out, functional maintenance company.

In the evening, after spending a full day in getting the maintenance areas set up, the men return to their tents, and begin improving their own living accomodations, and conditions.

First came the sandbag barricades, then the installation of floors. As each tent began to offer more comfort and security, the men began naming them with ornate, gaudily painted signs. There is "Rickity Backs Flying Circus, Tiltin' Hilton, Grand View Plaza, St. Pahl's, (for a Sgt. Pahl) Vulture's Roost," and many others.

One area has been set aside for the construction of a company club. There is a sign which promises "Dancing every Sat. nite with live band!" Then, as regular as clock work, another sign appears Saturday afternoon advising that "Due to circumstances beyond our control, the dance scheduled for tonight has been postponed."

One of the favorite expressions here is "Happiness is," from the book "Happiness Is A Warm Puppy." Here, happiness is: A wooden floor; iced tea instead of Kool Aid, a breeze, a shower, clean clothes, a generator, a refrigerator; A letter from home, a mortar round that lands on the other side of the air strip where nobody lives! A mission returning with all aircraft; or, an aircraft recovery from an area that is secured.

The day is fading now, tone and tint. The lengthening shadows are beckoning the night on, and where a month ago there was nothing, tonight a tent city sleeps.

EverybodyPeeved About Something

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — There is a very peevish period everywhere although, come to think of it, there was hardly a period that wasn't.

President Johnson has peeves, consumers are peeved, labor has peeves, Democrats and Republicans are peeved at each other, members of NATO are peeved, some Vietnamese are peeved.

The Wall Street Journal after a survey found consumers across the nation peeved at rising prices.

This couldn't help but peeve Johnson who wants prices held steady. It's obvious some elements of business are ignoring him.

Labor is peeved at Johnson for insisting wage increases should not go up more than 3.2 per cent, although business profits are soaring.

With price rising, living costs are going up, and Johnson, fearing inflation, is peeved at the thought of it.

So he has indicated he may ask Congress as an antiinflation measure to boost taxes on individual and corporate income. This would probably peeve most people.

Living costs have gone up 2.5 per cent in a year. If Johnson asks for a tax increase in the midst of the Vietnamese war, he'll be only repeating what President Harry S. Truman did in the midst of the Korean War.

The Korean war started in June 1950. That year Truman got Congress to increase income taxes on individuals and corporations and Congress repeated the dose in 1951 although living costs between June 1950 and Jan. 1, 1953 went up anyway. They rose about 13 per cent.

Johnson and members of NATO are peeved at French President Charles de Gaulle for endangering NATO by saying he wants all its forces out of France by April 1, 1967.

The Red Chinese are peeved at their big Communist neighbor, Russia, accuse it of lining up with the United States against China, and call the Russians a bunch of "dirty dealers."

In Congress, House Democrats and Republicans got peeved at each other over inflation after it was announced living costs had gone up again in February while Johnson was asking money to subsidize rent for the poor and at the same time was thinking of a tax boost to prevent inflation.

Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, Republican House leader, said those who voted for the rent subsidy were in effect voting for a tax increase and more inflation.

The House Democrats' leader, Carl Albert of Oklahoma, blasted the Republicans for being "blind for 35 years" and refusing to change. They weren't the only ones among Democrats and Republicans who had something to say.

In South Viet Nam, which this country is defending at the cost of American lives and billions of dollars against the Viet Cong and communism, some of the people are peeved at seeing their country run by their army officers.

And some seem very peeved at the Americans for being there at all.

For three weeks they have demonstrated, demanding civilian rule.

And Wednesday when a vehicle loaded with U.S. Marines collided with a bus loaded with members of a Vietnamese union, about 2,000 Vietnamese put on an anti-American demonstration.

Jeering demonstrators carried placards saying "Down with the Americans" all of which, of course, peeves Americans even though they don't say so officially.

Armed Forces

George D. West Jr.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. -- Airman George D. West Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. George D. West Sr. of Lilbourn, Mo., has been selected for training at Lackland AFB, Tex., as an Air Force air policeman.

The airman, who attended Lilbourn East High School, recently completed basic training at Lackland.

DET 706, United States Air Force Recruiting Service, 12th and Spruce streets, St. Louis, Missouri, will conduct an educator tour of the San Antonio Military complex area on the 4th thru the 7th of April, 1966.

Noted educators from both Missouri and Illinois will depart Lambert field at 1 p.m. on the 4th of April, 1966, for a flight to Randolph AFB, Texas. While in Texas, these educators will visit the sentury dog training school at Lackland Air Force Base and witness a demonstration of the dog training techniques. They will also visit the personnel research lab and a personnel training squadron to see first hand how the new airman recruits are processed into the Air Force. They will visit the confidence course and the basic military school while at Lackland. Included in the tour of Randolph Air Force Base, will be a command briefing on the overall mission of the air training command and its part in securing and training personnel for the United States Air Force. They will visit the Taj Mahal at Randolph and an aircraft display on the flight line, including the flight simulator. Their evening at Randolph will be concluded with a dinner given by the commanding general at the officer's club.

While at Brooks Air Force Base, they will visit the school of aerospace medicine, where they will receive a briefing on the organization and mission of the center. They will also visit the medical engineering branch, the vestibular research center, the high bay area and the centrifuge. One of the highlights of the tour will be a luncheon at the airmen's mess, where they will have an opportunity to talk to young airmen from their own areas. They will be conducted on a tour of San Antonio, to include the "Alamo" and other points of interest.

The United States Air Force feels that educators who have seen first hand, the training facilities and methods used in the processing and assignment of young airmen, are better qualified to advise and counsel students interested in the military service.

Mr. Roger Sherman, Principal of Sikeston High School, will attend.

Committee Approves Public Records Law

WASHINGTON AP --- The House Government Operations subcommittee has approved a bill that would establish a federal public records law.

The so-called freedom of information measure, which now goes to the full committee, would grant any person the right of access to official records of the federal government. Information concerning national defense or foreign policy secrets, trade secrets and private business data would be exempted from the measure.

The bill also would set up standards to determine what could or could not be made available to the public and authorize court review for claims of unjustifiable withholding.

The measure has been passed by the Senate.

Medical Association To Capital

KANSAS CITY (AP) -- Headquarters of the Missouri State Medical Association will be moved from St. Louis to Jefferson City by Sept. 1.

The move was approved Wednesday by the association's House of Delegates at the closing session of its annual convention.

The headquarters has been in St. Louis for 108 years. Debate on the move, opposed in previous years by St. Louis delegates, was not prolonged.

A committee of the association's council said the executive office will find advantages in proximity to the Legislature and Missouri health and welfare agencies in the capital city.

The MSMA office has eight employes and may expand its staff. Ray McIntyre is executive secretary.

Dr. Hector W. Benoit Jr., Kansas City chest and heart surgeon, was named to become president at the 1967 convention.

Certain moods of mind find an indefinable pleasure in stillness, soft, silent as the storm's sudden hush.

In Ohio and Texas, Ford and Chrysler workers went on short shifts.

And at Kansas City a GM official said another 8,200 in plants in that area would be affected if the strike continued.

Commuters were in trouble in various areas, and emergency measures were adopted for movement of mail at some points.

The strike appeared to be a showdown in the seven-year battle between the railroad industry and the AFL-CIO Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen over the elimination of some 18,000 Firemen's jobs.

"I have not given an affirmative answer, said H.E. Gilbert, union president after a three-hour meeting in which Wirtz asked him to order 8,000 strikers back to work.

Both Wirtz and Gilbert said the prospect was for the strike to continue.

Wirtz declined to speculate on whether President Johnson might step into the dispute.

Gilbert said union attorneys will go to the U.S. Court of Appeals today to fight the temporary restraining order issued Thursday by U.S. Dist. Court Judge Alexander Holtzoff to end all strike and picketing activity.

"We have a war, and also the entire public is affected entirely aside from the war," Holtzoff said of the strike that stranded passengers and stalled freight from Boston to Savannah, Ga., to Los Angeles.

Members of most other unions reportedly were respecting the Firemen's picket lines, halting most trains on the Union Pacific, the Missouri Pacific, Illinois Central, Seaboard Air Line, Central of Georgia, Grand Trunk Western, Boston & Maine and the Pennsylvania Railroad West of Harrisburg, Pa.

#23 In A Series To Acquaint You With The Churches In This Area.

THIS WEEK SALUTING

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

BLODGETT, MO.

Jimmie Edmondson, Pastor

The First Baptist Church of Blodgett, Missouri, was organized Dec. 12, 1905 with 16 members. The present building was purchased from a Free Will Baptist Church group and was erected in 1899. The first pastor was Rev. W. A. DeVault. The building was dedicated May 16, 1909 with the Rev. G. R. Daugherty pastor at that time, leading the services and Rev. W. J. Couch preaching the dedication sermon.

Under the ministry of Rev. Paul Phillips five class rooms were added to the building. Rev. Jim Edmondson was called as pastor October 1953, and under his leadership the church has grown spiritually, financially and numerically. Today we have 250 members enrolled. We have also added a modern kitchen, dining room and two additional class rooms.

Ours is a friendly church and evangelistic; where men and women come to worship and then go out to serve the Lord. Sunday School at 10:00 A.M., Preaching service at 11:00 A.M. and 7:00 P.M., Prayer service Wednesday evening at 7:00 P.M.

W. M. U. meets once a month for mission study; also the Brotherhood. Services are open to the public and a hearty welcome is extended to everyone.

Looking Back Over the Years

H. York and family came in Monday from Gray Ridge to make their home.

A. M. Crevoisier and family have moved to Marston. Mr. Crevoisier will establish his bottling works there.

The senior girls have challenged the women of the faculty for a basketball game in the near future.

A basketball game played by the senior boys' basketball team and the men of the school faculty, resulted in a score of 24-20 in favor of the faculty.

The iron fence around the home of L. M. Stallcup has been removed and his splendid yard looks like a park.

W. E. Barron, meteorologist of the weather bureau at Cairo, Ill., was in Sikeston Monday to locate the observation station for Sikeston.

Bill Sensenbaugh will leave Wednesday for Memphis to accept a position with the International Harvester Co. Jack Lancaster is managing the Y station, which he bought recently.

Virginia Boardman, eight years old, has great confidence in what she reads in The Sikeston Standard as she read in another paper where someone had a peculiar accident that caused the loss of a finger. It was then that the little Miss doubted the story because she hadn't read it in The Standard and that she believed what was printed in the Standard and the Bible.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Darter moved last Tuesday to Cape Girardeau where they will make their home with Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Ward.

It may be spring in the Sikeston area as far as the calendar is concerned but it is also summer, according to temperatures. The mercury hit a high mark of 81 on Friday and at no time during the past week did it drop below the 55 mark.

Construction is nearly completed on a new enclosed year round shating rink located a short distance from Highway 60 north of the outskirts of Sikeston, which is being built for Homer Greenlee and son of Canalou.

A four-room frame dwelling at 618 Vernon avenue was purchased during the past week by Mrs. Rachel Isaacs from Mrs. Cele Streiff.

Construction work is under way on the new home for the Taylor Poultry Market, 136 North Ranney avenue. The building alone, aside from equipment, will cost in the neighborhood of $10,000, Mr. Taylor announced. It should be completed within the next 60 days.

Overheard from a car parked one night on a college campus: "I don't care if your name is Napoleon, get your hand out of my blouse!"

The Prayer

For Today From The Upper Room

When the fulness of the time was come, God sent forth his Son. (Galatians 4:4)

PRAYER: "In confidence of Thy goodness and great mercy, O Lord, I draw near unto Thee, as a sick person to the healer, as one hungry and thirsty to the fountain of life. . . Thou art my salvation and my redemption, my hope and my strength." In Thy name I pray. Amen.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I laughed when I read the letter from the girl who was mad because her friend wore false eyelashes, a hair-piece, contact lenses and falsies, and seemed to have great success with the men while she (who never misrepresented anything) did poorly by comparison. Then I remembered something I had read when I was a law student at Columbia and I looked it up.

If "Miss Loose Parts" had lived in England during the 18th century she would have been in serious trouble. Here is a law that was passed by the British Parliament in 1770:

"All women, of whatever age, rank, profession or degree, whether virgins, maids or widows, that shall impose upon, seduce or betray into matrimony any of His Majesty's subjects, by scents, paints, cosmetics, washes, artificial teeth, false hair, iron stave hoops, high-heeled shoes, bolstered hips or padded bosoms shall incur the penalty of the law enforced against witchcraft and like misdemeanors, and, upon conviction, that marriage shall stand null and void." -- THE OLD RESEARCHER.

Dear Researcher: It's interesting to learn that in 1770 a man could be seduced by high-heeled shoes. God save the king -- and all other males who lived during those hazardous times.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband underwent exploratory surgery a few days ago. The surgeon discovered a tumor that was malignant. He said he removed it and my husband has a good chance of making a complete recovery.

Will you tell me, please, why people keep inquiring, "Did the doctor find anything serious?" Almost everyone I know has put this question to me.

I feel it is nobody's business what the doctor found and I'm telling everyone, "No. It was nothing serious." If I said, "Yes, there was a malignancy," everyone would bury him right then and there.

Please print this letter and tell people not to ask such personal questions. Thank you. --- EL PASO

Dear El: Here's your letter but don't expect miracles. Following an exploratory operation it is natural for friends to ask questions.

If you don't want to give the details simply say, "The doctor said he's going to be fine. Thank you for asking." -- and end the conversation right there.

Dear Ann Landers: I can tell it's been a long time since you were in college, dearie. When the student from Illinois wrote and said the professors favored the sexy girls, you accused the guy of being a sorehead. I go to school in Phoenix and the same thing happens here.

I got "A" papers all through the term but the prof gave me a "C" for the course. I ought to tell you that I am a male and the prof is a phony intellectual who gives me a pain in the sacroiliac. Is this your idea of fair? -- THE HERETIC

Dear H.: Who said life was fair? If the prof gives you a pain in the sacroiliac you probably give him a pain in the same area. You have a lot to learn that isn't in the books, Bub.

If you have trouble getting along with your parents. . . if you can't get them to let you live your own life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How To Get More Freedom." Send 50¢ in coin with your request, and a long stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Reason is a light that God has kindled in the soul.

Barbra Now in Orbit

By CYNTHIA LOWR

NEW YORK (AP) — Last year at about this time, Barbra Streisand with a sleek, chic and tuneful one-woman show, shot dramatically into the television firmament. Now, after Wednesday night's stunning "Color Me Barbra," Miss Streisand is solidly in orbit. The second special actually topped her first one.

From the amusing little squiggle like a child's drawing that opened the hour to its almost quiet finish it was a handsome and imaginative production, the most stimulating entertainment of the season to date.

Miss Streisand first took us to the Philadelphia Museum of Art where in a chiffon and lace exaggeration of a maid's uniform, she scurried from hall to hall, pausing before this painting or that piece of sculpture and then was transformed by TV magic into the subject long enough for a number.

She sang "One Kiss" looking like and dressed like a Gainsborough lady, a despairing French lament posing like a sad model in an impressionist painting, "Where Or When" dressed like an Egyptian princess. Between numbers she indulged in bits of sly comedy.

Then came a gay circus sequence with Miss Streisand in a clown costume wandering around the ring singing affectionately to a pony, a llama, a baby elephant, an ant eater and a family of poised penguins.

The windup was Miss Streisand in a simple white gown singing more well-loved songs, including the old "It Had To Be You" and "C'est Si Bon."

Earlier, on ABC, there was a musical special in cartoon form updating the adventures of Alice in Wonderland. This time Alice, a very modern little girl, disappeared through the front of the family TV set in quest of her dog. But she shrank and grew tall, encountered the white rabbit, the mid hatter, the March hare and many of the other Lewis Carroll characters.

The lyrics were appropriate to the fantasy but the music, while tuneful, was not particularly catchy. The piece, though, did have a real dream quality about it. The drawings, particularly the animation of Alice were a bit stiff and primitively drawn. It was on the whole a bit of fun, suitable for family viewing but hardly memorable.

Man at Work. "I know it can be done," an old New England ship carpenter once said about a difficult job of construction. When asked how he knew, he replied, "Don't ask me so many questions--I can't understand all I know."

ATTENTION MOTORISTS

NEW SAFETY FOR YOUR TRAVELING

H.E.L.P.

HIGHWAY EMERGENCY LOCATING PLAN

Citizen Band two way radio on Channel 9 in your automobile will provide aid while traveling.

A nationwide communication network to aid motorists in distress has been announced by the Automobile Manufacturers Association (AMA). The system to be known as H. E. L. P. for Highway Emergency Locating Plan, provides for the use of citizen band two way radios in your private automobile to call for assistance when needed.

More than 2 million CB units already are in use today. CB Radios such as the PACE pictured below are readily adaptable to automobile use. They are compact, easy to install and simple to operate. To operate, the motorist need only to turn on the set to Channel 9, press the button on the microphone to talk, and release to listen. With the set kept on, the motorist will hear other messages being transmitted within his area. Stations monitoring Channel 9 include Volunteer citizens teams, police agencies, road service stations, and others concerned with highway safety.

This plan grew out of a concern by government agencies and highway safety groups on the lack of emergency communication facilities for motorists. A special A. M. A. task force has been working on H. E. L. P. for more than a year in cooperation with the volunteer citizen band operators clubs across the country. During a test in the summer of 1964 more than 120,000 motoring assists were given over Citizen Band Radio on Highway 66 between Chicago and Los Angeles.

The effectiveness of equipment will vary depending on the type of terrain and other interference to radio transmission. Tests reveal that a range up to 20 miles can be anticipated. In metropolitan areas, tall steel buildings and heavy traffic could reduce range to 5 miles. In addition to the benefits of an emergency communication channel, motorists can install other channels for personal or business communication. Other traveling benefits can be derived from citizens band radio, such as directions to dining or sleeping accommodations or for routes through an area.

Use of CB equipment is controlled by the Federal Communications Commission. No operators license or examination is required. A station license, valid for 5 years is applied for from the FCC when your equipment is ordered.

Railroad Strike Shuts Down Auto Plants

Mail Travel Delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The railroad firemen's union asked a federal appeals court today to stay a lower court injunction against their strike that has crippled eight major railroads.

A three-judge panel took the case under advisement after union attorney Joseph L. Rauh argued that U.S. Dist. Judge Alexander Holtzoff's back-to-work order issued Thursday "would bust the strike — and once you've broken a strike with a court order, the damage is irreparable. It usually means the end of the strike."

Effects of the Thursday walkout continued to show in highway commuter jams, auto plant shutdowns and troubles in the movement of mail.

Rauh, on behalf of the AFL-CIO Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen told the court headed by Judge David L. Bazelon that Holtzoff's order was illegal because it amounted to a finding of contempt without a trial.

And he argued that the brotherhood's strike is perfectly legal.

The strike has crippled service on the eight lines in 38 states from coast to coast and Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz said he foresaw no immediate end to the stoppage. He appealed to the union on the basis of "a very great national interest" to end the strike.

Francis Shea, on behalf of the railroads, told the appeals court that "all that's involved here is a temporary restraint; the notion that it's a finding of contempt is nonsense."

There was no immediate indication of when the appeals court might rule on the case but quick action was expected.

The biggest immediate effects appeared in operations of the giant General Motors Corp. which shut down six plants in Michigan, idling 13,000 workers, for lack of incomeing parts and shipping for finished cars.

About 46,000 more of the industry's workers, including 33,500 in GM plants in Detroit, Flint and Pontiac, Mich., were sent home early.

Nine Idled By Strike

J. E. Robinson, Missouri Pacific railroad station agent, said that the railroad engineers strike has put nine Sikeston people out of work.

Two freight trains through Sikeston daily, one from Poplar Bluff to Charleston and return, have ceased operations.

MOPAC Applies Freight Embargo

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Missouri Pacific Railroad placed an embargo today on the shipment of perishables, livestock and packing house products because of the strike by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen.

The railroad said it was the first of the eight lines affected by the strike to embargo goods. A spokesman said the railroad would continue to accept other freight where possible. Supervisory personnel are operating a few freight trains, but there is no passenger service.

Charleston School Gets AAA Rating

CHARLESTON--The Charleston R-1 school district has its long-awaited "triple A" rating from the state department of education, Superintendent W. R. Pierce Jr. announced.

News of the improved rating, highest awarded by the state department of education, came in a letter from P. J. Newell Jr., assistant commissioner, division of instruction, in the state department. The letter was dated March 25.

Last year R-1 was rated a "Double A" system.

Newell's letter contained a special note commending the district for progress made since reorganization of the district in 1963, and again in 1965. It called attention also to the fact that the high school now offers 84 3/4 units of credit. In 1964-65 the high school offering was 46 units. Much of the increase, Dr. Pierce said, is due to the availability of a wide variety of vocational courses at the Sikeston area trade-technical school. Charleston students are bused to Sikeston daily to take advantage of these courses.

The only unsatisfactory rating given on the state department's rating form came in the area of qualification of elementary school teachers. Some 17 teachers with less than B.S. degrees and without permanent certificates are employed in the system, and must earn required credit. Dr. Pierce said the board of education's policy is that no teacher will be hired next year without the minimum qualifications.

Some of the 17 teachers, the report said, came into the district through reorganization, and are "below minimum standards for 'AAA' classification."

The deficiency noted in the "special education" category, the report said, is the lack of speech correction throughout the school system. "The money is in the budget," Dr. Pierce said, "but we have been unable to locate a qualified speech therapist to teach here. As soon as we can find one, we will eliminate this 'gig'."

Other "advisements" of the department of education pointed up deficiencies which should be corrected before the next school year opens.

These include: certification of administrative assistants; improved ratio of counseling time in junior and senior high school; expansion of practical arts, offering at Lincoln junior high; increase in percentage of faculty members holding masters degrees to a minimum of 20 and employment of certified teachers in the kindergarten and of certified principals in two elementary schools.

An advisement on foreign language offerings, Dr. Pierce said, will not be fully lifted for several years. The French program, begun this year at the junior high level, will be expanded at the rate of one hour per year until a full six-year secondary program is achieved, the superintendent said. A similar improvement is being made in the Spanish program.

An additional unit of business education must also be added to the curriculum, the report said. Dr. Pierce said this will be done as soon as the new high school is completed.

Big Victory For Wilson

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson returned triumphantly to No. 10 Downing Street today, swept back into office by a smashing election victory over Edward Heath and the Conservatives.

Computer analyses of returns from the general election Thursday predicted Wilson's Laborites would have a majority of at least 95 seats in the new House of Commons. Labor's majority in the last House was only three.

Looking fresh and vigorous despite less than four hours sleep, Wilson, 50, said he would give priority to measures to maintain the strength of the pound sterling as an international currency.

New House Districts Are on File

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Missouri's 163 new House districts are drawn, defined and filed.

A bipartisan redistricting commission Thursday night completed its task of apportioning the House districts according to the U.S. Supreme Court's one man-one vote decree.

There were few changes in the tentative plan filed last week.

The final vote, 18-2, came at 8 p. m. with St. Louis Republicans casting the dissenting votes. Only 14 of the 20 commissioners had to vote yes to adopt the plan.

Refusing to sign the formal resolution were Ted Fischer of the 1st Congressional District and John B. Prentis of the 3rd. They also voted against the tentative plan after a dispute in remapping the city of St. Louis threatened to deadlock the commission.

Only one minor change was made in St. Louis. A boundary between the new 53rd and 54th districts was shifted southward two blocks. This put Democrat incumbent Rep. James Troupe Sr. in the 53rd. Otherwise, his residence would have been in the same district with Rep. Raymond Howard, also a Democrat.

In outstate Missouri, only a technical change was made in Jefferson County.

After the month-long work, Chairman G. Andy Runge, Mexico Republican, and Vice Chairman Robert S. Dorsey, Brookfield Democrat, loaded up their maps and legal description and headed for the Capitol to file the final plan with Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick.

Kirkpatrick kept his office open in anticipation of the formal filing and it came at 8:30 p. m.

All candidates must file under the new plan before April 26.

Easter Sales Soaring

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Easter sales, buoyed by bright print dresses, shorter skirts, permanent-pressed pants, pink luggage and Batman, are soaring throughout the nation.

In a spot survey of stores in many states, The Associated Press found merchants reporting sales up 2 to 45 per cent over 1965.

The National Retail Merchants Association said department store sales this year are running 11 per cent ahead of 1965 — a record year.

A government report noted a 23 per cent gain in department store sales to $435 million the week ended March 19.

"The economy is healthier," said George W. Dowdy, executive vice president of a department store in Charlotte, N.C. "There is more money in circulation."

But at the same time "the average price is higher," said Bill Foster, sales manager of an Austin, Tex., store (Sage Discount Store).

In New Orleans, La., where a hurricane struck last fall, it's a case of 'tis an ill wind that blows no good.

"There is no such thing as unemployment in New Orleans because of the reconstruction work," said Charles LaBiche, a merchandise manager. "This has resulted in a tremendous flow of money. The general economy of New Orleans is fantastic."

Sales are up 25 to 45 per cent, estimated Gordon Bovey, assistant store manager for stores in St. Louis.

"The reason is a better grade of merchandise and the people seem to have more money this spring," Bovey said.

Johnson and Hope Trade Quips

WASHINGTON AP - President Johnson traded quips with an expert Thursday night--comedian Bob Hope. Both got some laughs.

The occasion was the 25th anniversary dinner of the United Services Organizations, which honored Hope for his entertainment of U. S. servicemen all over the world.

The President turned up at the award dinner to present Hope with a plaque inscribed: "Thanks for the memory from a grateful nation."

"An extra chair turned up fast, didn't it?" Hope said, referring to Johnson's sudden show-up. The comedian added he was glad to be in Washington, "or as the Republicans call it, Camp Run-around. Well, it's nice to be back in birdland. . ."

Johnson, while presenting the award, said he had come to honor a man with two very unusual traits: "He's an actor, so far as I know, who's not now running for public office. And he's a frequent visitor to Viet Nam who has never been asked to testify before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee -- at least, not yet."

Jones Recalls Russia Has Rent Subsidies

Special to Daily Standard

WASHINGTON -- Rep. Paul Jones, Kennett Democrat, told the House that when he was in Russia, the Communists were giving rent subsidies to some people at the expense of others.

He spoke on the proposal before the House for a $12 million rent subsidies program for the remainder of this year in the United States. The taxpayers would help the selected persons to pay their rent.

Jones also advised other members to go back home, talk with the people and find out "what is going on around here". He cautioned them that some would be "in trouble" in the fall's election because of some of the irresponsible pieces of legislation they have written into law this session and the last.

He noted that a new program was always financed by a new, untangled appropriation bill. Supplemental appropriations were limited to bases in which congress failed to appropriate enough money.

However, the administration's rent subsidy and teachers corps bills were presented not only by a supplemental bill but the second one was sponsored by the Administration for the year ending June 30.

He noted that some schools are already getting federal teachers as assistants to other teachers, whether they are wanted or even if they are not wanted. When asked what the federal teacher does to help the teacher, he said the answer was "she erases the teachers' blackboard", which is normally done by a pupil, Jones said.

He added that a poverty worker had arrived at least to some schools in his area and told them the school could have certain amount of money, with one provision. The money would have to be spent by June 30.

More is expected for the next fiscal year beginning July 1.

Jones asked:

"When are we going to get back to our principles?"

Six Killed, 143 Wounded In Saigon Explosion

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Viet Cong terrorists shattered a U.S. officers' billet today in a predawn attack with machine guns, grenades and a truckload of explosives, killing three Americans and at least three Vietnamese and wounding 143.

The Americans died in gun battles with the small band of raiders during and after the attack on the 10-story Victoria Hotel. The injured included 113 Americans, at least 18 hurt seriously.

The powerful blast also wounded a number of Vietnamese women and children in nearby homes. It was one of the most devastating terrorist attacks of the war

Vietnamese police said two men speeding from the scene on a motorbike were arrested after their vehicle overturned. Police sources said one admitted taking part in the attack.

The explosion ripped the hotel's three lower floors apart, smashed windows throughout the building, shattered outside walls as high as the fifth floor, unloosed a torrent of water from a 12,000-gallon rooftop tank and left a huge crater out front. The water probably prevented a brief electrical fire from turning the building into an inferno.

Many of the Americans escaped injury by ducking into bathrooms or under their bunks when they heard the first firing outside the building shortly after 5 a.m.

One officer said there had been reports the Viet Cong had slipped 250 pounds of explosive into the city and intelligence units had been looking for it.

U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge denounced the attack as "typical Communist violence of the criminal kind" as he inspected the wreckage and conferred with officials at the scene.

Authorities said reports would be undertaken quickly. The building housed 200 officers.

The terrorists followed the usual pattern of attacking first with small arms, then exploding a vehicle laden with explosives.

The driver, Alvin Myers, received possible rib fractures and bruises; Ann Myers, possible rib fractures; Lesia Myers, 17 months, cuts on the head; Fred Myers, cuts and bruises; Betty Jean Myers, 27, bruises over the body; Belinda Myers, bruises of arms and legs; Tresa Myers, 6, fractured nose and bruises; Tammy Myers, 3, bruises and cuts on leg.

The tenth injury occurred at 4:30 p.m. one-half mile west of Jackson on highway, when a 1957 Ford, driven by Shelia Young, 24, route 2, Jackson, stopped for a flagman, and was struck by a 1966 Ford station wagon, driven by James Bennett, 32, as he came over a hill.

Dan Young, 3, a passenger in the Ford car, received cuts on the head, and was treated by a Jackson physician.

Summer Building Start

JEFFERSON CITY -- Gov. Warren E. Hearnes announced today that an allocation of $798,880 has been made to the Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

The funds, made available through the Federal Hill-Harris Act, for Sikeston coupled with a federal grant received a year ago makes $923,499.55 available for construction of a new 55-bed wing at the hospital.

Funds also were approved by the state hospital advisory council for $588,000 for the new Dexter Memorial Hospital for 50 general beds.

John Ringer, chairman of the Dexter hospital board, said that a date has not been set for construction to begin.

The Hewitt and Royer architectural firm of Kansas City, is preparing drafts of the hospital building.

He said that construction cannot begin later than June 1, 1967, or federal funds will be lost.

Dexter funds of $636,000 have been pledged and Ringer said that $140,000 of the pledges have been collected.

E. P. Coleman, Sikeston, chairman of the Sikeston hospital board, said: "We are certainly gratified to receive the news of this approval because it will enable us to proceed with the badly needed additional facilities at our local hospital.

"This means, of course, that we will need to get busy on a local level and secure the local funds yet needed to match the funds levied to us with federal money.

"Local funds in cash and pledges now total $574,000, which is approximately $350,000 short of the amount required to equal the allocation."

Harold Jones, administrator at the Sikeston hospital, said construction of the new wing, consisting of two floors and basement, could begin within two months.

Buchmueller-Whitworth and Associates disclosed that architectural and engineering plans are nearing completion.

Coleman said that the people of the area should be "deeply grateful" to Governor Hearnes and Austin Hill, chairman of the advisory council, for their assistance, both of whom have worked with the Sikeston hospital on the application for the funds for more than a year.

"No one can realize the need for these additional facilities more than our patients and those of us who work at the hospital," Jones said.

The academic costume worn at graduation ceremonies in American universities is a heritage from medieval days when a warm gown and hood were real necessities for scholars in unheated buildings.

Police Judge Opposed

LILBOURN -- Only one race has developed in the Tuesday city election.

Welton Henry, police judge, is opposed by T. V. Denton.

Others seeking return to office are Mayor Lewis Stone, Mrs. Ruth Newton, collector, Johnny Marton, city marshal, and Lonnie Warf, alderman from Ward two, all unopposed.

No one has filed for a ward one alderman position.

No Word from Husky Kidnaper

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — There still apparently is no word from the husky kidnaper of 18-year-old Daniel Goldman.

The youth was taken from his plush surfside home early Monday by a middle-aged gunman who demanded $20,000 from the Goldmans.

After learning the family had no money in the home, the gunman awoke Daniel, forced him to dress at gunpoint and left in one of the family automobiles. He told the Goldmans he wanted $25,000 in ransom and the amount would be doubled the next night.

The car was found later that morning. There was no sign of the kidnaper or his victim.

Police, including FBI agents, had no comment on the case.

Chiang Kai-shek Sees Chinese Communists As Real U. S. Enemy

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Chiang Kai-shek sees the Chinese Communists as the United States' real enemy in Viet Nam, and says: "Only by our return to the mainland can an ultimate clash between the United States and the Chinese Communists be avoided."

In a 45-minute interview with The Associated Press this week, the president of Nationalist China said that Peking already has rejected any practical possibility or an improvement of relations with the United States, recommended by some American experts on China.

"The official People's Daily in Peking, in a recent article signed by 'Observer,' provided an answer to that kind of thinking," he said. "It said that unless and until the United States withdraws from the Taiwan (Formosa) Strait and from Southeast Asia, there can be no peace with the United States."

The man who has led Nationalist China for 41 years — since Sun Yat-sen's death in 1925 — talked with vigor and glowing health. He looked strikingly younger than his 78 years.

Generalissimo Chiang sees Communist pressure on Viet Nam as part of a master strategic plan.

"Your real enemy is not the Viet Cong, nor the North Vietnamese, but the Chinese Communists," he declared. "So long as the Peking regime continues in existence, there can be no satisfactory solution in Viet Nam. North Viet Nam must be isolated from the Chinese Communists, who are providing the supplies which are going to South Viet Nam.

"Militarily the United States can win in Viet Nam but more than that it is necessary to eradicate infiltrators, eliminate subversive elements and secure effective control both in the cities and in the countryside. It will take a very, very long time.

"This fits into the Peking scheme of things. Their real purpose is to immobilize the United States in Viet Nam so that they can prepare an assault on Taiwan (Formosa)."

Dressed in plain, olive-drab uniform without decorations, the last of World War II's Big Four (Roosevelt, Stalin, Churchill and Chiang) paused for a moment.

"The real objective of the Chinese Communists is to seize Taiwan," Chiang said. "I have said this often before but it is true. As time goes on, the danger is increasing. If they seize Taiwan, the Reds could move freely anywhere in Southeast Asia and, in the long run, get away with it. So far they have not plunged headlong into Viet Nam because Free China is here and we can threaten their flank.

"We can return to the mainland with our own forces alone. There is no need for American combat troops. We do not want to bring the United States into any war. On the mainland it is between us and the Chinese Communists. We have enough strength once we reach the mainland."

Left unanswered was the question of whether U.S. naval and air assistance would be necessary to transport Chiang's 600,000-man army across the Formosa Strait. The belief of U.S. experts that such aid would be required has been one factor in Washington's opposition to attempts at mass Chinese Nationalist landings on the mainland.

Chiang, who has devoted a lifetime to the study of Chinese-Soviet relations, foresees neither a final split nor reconciliation between Peking and Moscow.

"There is no possibility of an armed clash between them nor do I foresee any possibility of either helping the other. Their strained relations will continue indefinitely," he predicted.

Neither does he expect Peking to open a new Asian front in North Korea, as Gen. James Gavin and others have said is possible if the United States escalates the war further in Viet Nam.

Railroad Strike Shuts Down Auto Plants

Mail Travel Delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The railroad firemen's union asked a federal appeals court today to stay a lower court injunction against their strike that has crippled eight major railroads.

A three-judge panel took the case under advisement after union attorney Joseph L. Rauh argued that U.S. Dist. Judge Alexander Holtzoff's back-to-work order issued Thursday "would bust the strike — and once you've broken a strike with a court order, the damage is irreparable. It usually means the end of the strike."

Effects of the Thursday walkout continued to show in highway commuter jams, auto plant shutdowns and troubles in the movement of mail.

Rauh, on behalf of the AFL-CIO Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen told the court headed by Judge David L. Bazelon that Holtzoff's order was illegal because it amounted to a finding of contempt without a trial.

And he argued that the brotherhood's strike is perfectly legal.

The strike has crippled service on the eight lines in 38 states from coast to coast and Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz said he foresaw no immediate end to the stoppage. He appealed to the union on the basis of "a very great national interest" to end the strike.

Francis Shea, on behalf of the railroads, told the appeals court that "all that's involved here is a temporary restraint; the notion that it's a finding of contempt is nonsense."

There was no immediate indication of when the appeals court might rule on the case but quick action was expected.

The biggest immediate effects appeared in operations of the giant General Motors Corp. which shut down six plants in Michigan, idling 13,000 workers, for lack of incomeing parts and shipping for finished cars.

About 46,000 more of the industry's workers, including 33,500 in GM plants in Detroit, Flint and Pontiac, Mich., were sent home early.

Nine Idled By Strike

J. E. Robinson, Missouri Pacific railroad station agent, said that the railroad engineers strike has put nine Sikeston people out of work.

Two freight trains through Sikeston daily, one from Poplar Bluff to Charleston and return, have ceased operations.

MOPAC Applies Freight Embargo

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Missouri Pacific Railroad placed an embargo today on the shipment of perishables, livestock and packing house products because of the strike by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen.

The railroad said it was the first of the eight lines affected by the strike to embargo goods. A spokesman said the railroad would continue to accept other freight where possible. Supervisory personnel are operating a few freight trains, but there is no passenger service.

Charleston Voters to Decide Daylight Savings Time Issue

CHARLESTON -- Mississippi county's annual city and school elections will be held Tuesday with the polls open from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Charleston voters will elect one city councilman for a three-year term. Those who have filed as candidates are Al S. Burnett and Dr. T. P. Fenton.

A straw vote ballot will be given each voter to determine if the city will have daylight saving time.

In the annual school election voters will elect two board members for three-year terms.

Those who have filed as candidates are Morris Gaines, Billy G. Brown, James Moreton and Dennis Quertermous.

Citizens also will vote for one year on a tax levy of $3.21 and a boundary change between the Charleston R-1 and the East Prairie R-2 school districts.

This would involve 33 square miles or 21,400 acres which would go to the East Prairie R-2 school district if approved.

Polling places will be at the Anniston school gymnasium, Wyatt elementary school, Charleston court house, Charleston armory, and the Bertrand school.

East Prairie voters will go to the polls to elect two city councilmen for two year terms. Those who have filed as candidates are K. J. Whittington, incumbent, and Dr. Albert Weaver.

Polling places will be at the city hall and the Lions club building.

At the East Prairie school election two board members will be elected for three years each.

Those who have filed for the office are Robert Hunter, Clayton Allstun and James Newsome.

Also on the ballot will be a tax levy of $3.40 and the boundary change between the East Prairie and Charleston school districts.

Polling places for the school election will be at the East Prairie High School, Pinhook School, and Dorena One School.

Anniston voters will elect aldermen for ward I and ward II and a city collector.

Those who have filed for the offices are Jamie Gilmore for ward I and Billy Salyers for ward II.

Shirley Chambers has filed for collector.

Polling places will be at the elementary school for ward I and at Meltons General store for ward II.

Wyatt voters will elect a mayor and two aldermen for 2-year terms.

John Cross, incumbent, has filed for mayor. Marion Oakley had filed for alderman in ward I and Jim Padgett has filed for alderman in ward II.

Two county board members are to be elected. Those who have filed are Dennis Quertermous for the first county court district and Sam Jones for the second county court district.

Bertrand will not have a city election but its residents will vote in the Charleston R-1 school election.

Charleston School Gets AAA Rating

CHARLESTON--The Charleston R-1 school district has its long-awaited "triple A" rating from the state department of education, Superintendent W. R. Pierce Jr. announced.

News of the improved rating, highest awarded by the state department of education, came in a letter from P. J. Newell Jr., assistant commissioner, division of instruction, in the state department. The letter was dated March 25.

Last year R-1 was rated a "Double A" system.

Newell's letter contained a special note commending the district for progress made since reorganization of the district in 1963, and again in 1965. It called attention also to the fact that the high school now offers 84 3/4 units of credit. In 1964-65 the high school offering was 46 units. Much of the increase, Dr. Pierce said, is due to the availability of a wide variety of vocational courses at the Sikeston area trade-technical school. Charleston students are bused to Sikeston daily to take advantage of these courses.

The only unsatisfactory rating given on the state department's rating form came in the area of qualification of elementary school teachers. Some 17 teachers with less than B.S. degrees and without permanent certificates are employed in the system, and must earn required credit. Dr. Pierce said the board of education's policy is that no teacher will be hired next year without the minimum qualifications.

Some of the 17 teachers, the report said, came into the district through reorganization, and are "below minimum standards for 'AAA' classification."

The deficiency noted in the "special education" category, the report said, is the lack of speech correction throughout the school system. "The money is in the budget," Dr. Pierce said, "but we have been unable to locate a qualified speech therapist to teach here. As soon as we can find one, we will eliminate this 'gig'."

Other "advisements" of the department of education pointed up deficiencies which should be corrected before the next school year opens.

These include: certification of administrative assistants; improved ratio of counseling time in junior and senior high school; expansion of practical arts, offering at Lincoln junior high; increase in percentage of faculty members holding masters degrees to a minimum of 20 and employment of certified teachers in the kindergarten and of certified principals in two elementary schools.

An advisement on foreign language offerings, Dr. Pierce said, will not be fully lifted for several years. The French program, begun this year at the junior high level, will be expanded at the rate of one hour per year until a full six-year secondary program is achieved, the superintendent said. A similar improvement is being made in the Spanish program.

An additional unit of business education must also be added to the curriculum, the report said. Dr. Pierce said this will be done as soon as the new high school is completed.

Big Victory For Wilson

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson returned triumphantly to No. 10 Downing Street today, swept back into office by a smashing election victory over Edward Heath and the Conservatives.

Computer analyses of returns from the general election Thursday predicted Wilson's Laborites would have a majority of at least 95 seats in the new House of Commons. Labor's majority in the last House was only three.

Looking fresh and vigorous despite less than four hours sleep, Wilson, 50, said he would give priority to measures to maintain the strength of the pound sterling as an international currency.

New House Districts Are on File

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Missouri's 163 new House districts are drawn, defined and filed.

A bipartisan redistricting commission Thursday night completed its task of apportioning the House districts according to the U.S. Supreme Court's one man-one vote decree.

There were few changes in the tentative plan filed last week.

The final vote, 18-2, came at 8 p. m. with St. Louis Republicans casting the dissenting votes. Only 14 of the 20 commissioners had to vote yes to adopt the plan.

Refusing to sign the formal resolution were Ted Fischer of the 1st Congressional District and John B. Prentis of the 3rd. They also voted against the tentative plan after a dispute in remapping the city of St. Louis threatened to deadlock the commission.

Only one minor change was made in St. Louis. A boundary between the new 53rd and 54th districts was shifted southward two blocks. This put Democrat incumbent Rep. James Troupe Sr. in the 53rd. Otherwise, his residence would have been in the same district with Rep. Raymond Howard, also a Democrat.

In outstate Missouri, only a technical change was made in Jefferson County.

After the month-long work, Chairman G. Andy Runge, Mexico Republican, and Vice Chairman Robert S. Dorsey, Brookfield Democrat, loaded up their maps and legal description and headed for the Capitol to file the final plan with Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick.

Kirkpatrick kept his office open in anticipation of the formal filing and it came at 8:30 p. m.

All candidates must file under the new plan before April 26.

Easter Sales Soaring

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Easter sales, buoyed by bright print dresses, shorter skirts, permanent-pressed pants, pink luggage and Batman, are soaring throughout the nation.

In a spot survey of stores in many states, The Associated Press found merchants reporting sales up 2 to 45 per cent over 1965.

The National Retail Merchants Association said department store sales this year are running 11 per cent ahead of 1965 — a record year.

A government report noted a 23 per cent gain in department store sales to $435 million the week ended March 19.

"The economy is healthier," said George W. Dowdy, executive vice president of a department store in Charlotte, N.C. "There is more money in circulation."

But at the same time "the average price is higher," said Bill Foster, sales manager of an Austin, Tex., store (Sage Discount Store).

In New Orleans, La., where a hurricane struck last fall, it's a case of 'tis an ill wind that blows no good.

"There is no such thing as unemployment in New Orleans because of the reconstruction work," said Charles LaBiche, a merchandise manager. "This has resulted in a tremendous flow of money. The general economy of New Orleans is fantastic."

Sales are up 25 to 45 per cent, estimated Gordon Bovey, assistant store manager for stores in St. Louis.

"The reason is a better grade of merchandise and the people seem to have more money this spring," Bovey said.

Johnson and Hope Trade Quips

WASHINGTON AP - President Johnson traded quips with an expert Thursday night--comedian Bob Hope. Both got some laughs.

The occasion was the 25th anniversary dinner of the United Services Organizations, which honored Hope for his entertainment of U. S. servicemen all over the world.

The President turned up at the award dinner to present Hope with a plaque inscribed: "Thanks for the memory from a grateful nation."

"An extra chair turned up fast, didn't it?" Hope said, referring to Johnson's sudden show-up. The comedian added he was glad to be in Washington, "or as the Republicans call it, Camp Run-around. Well, it's nice to be back in birdland. . ."

Johnson, while presenting the award, said he had come to honor a man with two very unusual traits: "He's an actor, so far as I know, who's not now running for public office. And he's a frequent visitor to Viet Nam who has never been asked to testify before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee -- at least, not yet."

Jones Recalls Russia Has Rent Subsidies

Special to Daily Standard

WASHINGTON -- Rep. Paul Jones, Kennett Democrat, told the House that when he was in Russia, the Communists were giving rent subsidies to some people at the expense of others.

He spoke on the proposal before the House for a $12 million rent subsidies program for the remainder of this year in the United States. The taxpayers would help the selected persons to pay their rent.

Jones also advised other members to go back home, talk with the people and find out "what is going on around here". He cautioned them that some would be "in trouble" in the fall's election because of some of the irresponsible pieces of legislation they have written into law this session and the last.

He noted that a new program was always financed by a new, untangled appropriation bill. Supplemental appropriations were limited to bases in which congress failed to appropriate enough money.

However, the administration's rent subsidy and teachers corps bills were presented not only by a supplemental bill but the second one was sponsored by the Administration for the year ending June 30.

He noted that some schools are already getting federal teachers as assistants to other teachers, whether they are wanted or even if they are not wanted. When asked what the federal teacher does to help the teacher, he said the answer was "she erases the teachers' blackboard", which is normally done by a pupil, Jones said.

He added that a poverty worker had arrived at least to some schools in his area and told them the school could have certain amount of money, with one provision. The money would have to be spent by June 30.

More is expected for the next fiscal year beginning July 1.

Jones asked:

"When are we going to get back to our principles?"

Six Killed, 143 Wounded In Saigon Explosion

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Viet Cong terrorists shattered a U.S. officers' billet today in a predawn attack with machine guns, grenades and a truckload of explosives, killing three Americans and at least three Vietnamese and wounding 143.

The Americans died in gun battles with the small band of raiders during and after the attack on the 10-story Victoria Hotel. The injured included 113 Americans, at least 18 hurt seriously.

The powerful blast also wounded a number of Vietnamese women and children in nearby homes. It was one of the most devastating terrorist attacks of the war

Vietnamese police said two men speeding from the scene on a motorbike were arrested after their vehicle overturned. Police sources said one admitted taking part in the attack.

The explosion ripped the hotel's three lower floors apart, smashed windows throughout the building, shattered outside walls as high as the fifth floor, unloosed a torrent of water from a 12,000-gallon rooftop tank and left a huge crater out front. The water probably prevented a brief electrical fire from turning the building into an inferno.

Many of the Americans escaped injury by ducking into bathrooms or under their bunks when they heard the first firing outside the building shortly after 5 a.m.

One officer said there had been reports the Viet Cong had slipped 250 pounds of explosive into the city and intelligence units had been looking for it.

U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge denounced the attack as "typical Communist violence of the criminal kind" as he inspected the wreckage and conferred with officials at the scene.

Authorities said reports would be undertaken quickly. The building housed 200 officers.

The terrorists followed the usual pattern of attacking first with small arms, then exploding a vehicle laden with explosives.

10 Injured in Two Vehicle Collisions on Highways

Nine of 10 area traffic accident injuries occured in a two-car collision Thursday at 5:45 p.m. on highway 60 at the Dudley junction.

The driver, Alvin Myers, received possible rib fractures and bruises; Ann Myers, possible rib fractures; Lesia Myers, 17 months, cuts on the head; Fred Myers, cuts and bruises; Betty Jean Myers, 27, bruises over the body; Belinda Myers, bruises of arms and legs; Tresa Myers, 6, fractured nose and bruises; Tammy Myers, 3, bruises and cuts on leg.

Pepper complained of chest injuries and was taken to the Pemiscot Memorial Hospital in Hayti. He was arrested for careless and reckless driving and failure to yield the right-of-way.

The tenth injury occurred at 4:30 p.m. one-half mile west of Jackson on highway, when a 1957 Ford, driven by Shelia Young, 24, route 2, Jackson, stopped for a flagman, and was struck by a 1966 Ford station wagon, driven by James Bennett, 32, as he came over a hill.

Dan Young, 3, a passenger in the Ford car, received cuts on the head, and was treated by a Jackson physician.

Summer Building Start

JEFFERSON CITY -- Gov. Warren E. Hearnes announced today that an allocation of $798,880 has been made to the Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

The funds, made available through the Federal Hill-Harris Act, for Sikeston coupled with a federal grant received a year ago makes $923,499.55 available for construction of a new 55-bed wing at the hospital.

Funds also were approved by the state hospital advisory council for $588,000 for the new Dexter Memorial Hospital for 50 general beds.

John Ringer, chairman of the Dexter hospital board, said that a date has not been set for construction to begin.

The Hewitt and Royer architectural firm of Kansas City, is preparing drafts of the hospital building.

He said that construction cannot begin later than June 1, 1967, or federal funds will be lost.

Dexter funds of $636,000 have been pledged and Ringer said that $140,000 of the pledges have been collected.

E. P. Coleman, Sikeston, chairman of the Sikeston hospital board, said: "We are certainly gratified to receive the news of this approval because it will enable us to proceed with the badly needed additional facilities at our local hospital.

"This means, of course, that we will need to get busy on a local level and secure the local funds yet needed to match the funds levied to us with federal money.

"Local funds in cash and pledges now total $574,000, which is approximately $350,000 short of the amount required to equal the allocation."

Harold Jones, administrator at the Sikeston hospital, said construction of the new wing, consisting of two floors and basement, could begin within two months.

Buchmueller-Whitworth and Associates disclosed that architectural and engineering plans are nearing completion.

Coleman said that the people of the area should be "deeply grateful" to Governor Hearnes and Austin Hill, chairman of the advisory council, for their assistance, both of whom have worked with the Sikeston hospital on the application for the funds for more than a year.

"No one can realize the need for these additional facilities more than our patients and those of us who work at the hospital," Jones said.

The academic constume worn at graduation ceremonies in American universities is a heritage from medieval days when a warm gown and hood were real necessities for scholars in unheated buildings.

No Word from Husky Kidnaper

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — There still apparently is no word from the husky kidnaper of 18-year-old Daniel Goldman.

The youth was taken from his plush surfside home early Monday by a middle-aged gunman who demanded $20,000 from the Goldmans.

After learning the family had no money in the home, the gunman awoke Daniel, forced him to dress at gunpoint and left in one of the family automobiles. He told the Goldmans he wanted $25,000 in ransom and the amount would be doubled the next night.

The car was found later that morning. There was no sign of the kidnaper or his victim.

Police, including FBI agents, had no comment on the case.

Chiang Kai-shek Sees Chinese Communists As Real U. S. Enemy

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Chiang Kai-shek sees the Chinese Communists as the United States' real enemy in Viet Nam, and says: "Only by our return to the mainland can an ultimate clash between the United States and the Chinese Communists be avoided."

In a 45-minute interview with The Associated Press this week, the president of Nationalist China said that Peking already has rejected any practical possibility or an improvement of relations with the United States, recommended by some American experts on China.

"The official People's Daily in Peking, in a recent article signed by 'Observer,' provided an answer to that kind of thinking," he said. "It said that unless and until the United States withdraws from the Taiwan (Formosa) Strait and from Southeast Asia, there can be no peace with the United States."

The man who has led Nationalist China for 41 years — since Sun Yat-sen's death in 1925 — talked with vigor and glowing health. He looked strikingly younger than his 78 years.

Generalissimo Chiang sees Communist pressure on Viet Nam as part of a master strategic plan.

"Your real enemy is not the Viet Cong, nor the North Vietnamese, but the Chinese Communists," he declared. "So long as the Peking regime continues in existence, there can be no satisfactory solution in Viet Nam. North Viet Nam must be isolated from the Chinese Communists, who are providing the supplies which are going to South Viet Nam.

"Militarily the United States can win in Viet Nam but more than that it is necessary to eradicate infiltrators, eliminate subversive elements and secure effective control both in the cities and in the countryside. It will take a very, very long time.

"This fits into the Peking scheme of things. Their real purpose is to immobilize the United States in Viet Nam so that they can prepare an assault on Taiwan (Formosa)."

Dressed in plain, olive-drab uniform without decorations, the last of World War II's Big Four (Roosevelt, Stalin, Churchill and Chiang) paused for a moment.

"The real objective of the Chinese Communists is to seize Taiwan," Chiang said. "I have said this often before but it is true. As time goes on, the danger is increasing. If they seize Taiwan, the Reds could move freely anywhere in Southeast Asia and, in the long run, get away with it. So far they have not plunged headlong into Viet Nam because Free China is here and we can threaten their flank.

"We can return to the mainland with our own forces alone. There is no need for American combat troops. We do not want to bring the United States into any war. On the mainland it is between us and the Chinese Communists. We have enough strength once we reach the mainland."

Left unanswered was the question of whether U.S. naval and air assistance would be necessary to transport Chiang's 600,000-man army across the Formosa Strait. The belief of U.S. experts that such aid would be required has been one factor in Washington's opposition to attempts at mass Chinese Nationalist landings on the mainland.

Chiang, who has devoted a lifetime to the study of Chinese-Soviet relations, foresees neither a final split nor reconciliation between Peking and Moscow.

"There is no possibility of an armed clash between them nor do I foresee any possibility of either helping the other. Their strained relations will continue indefinitely," he predicted.

Neither does he expect Peking to open a new Asian front in North Korea, as Gen. James Gavin and others have said is possible if the United States escalates the war further in Viet Nam.

HEAT CAN COOL

A gas flame can cool as well as heat. This is a point that will be stressed during National Gas Air Conditioning Week--April 3 through 9.

The Week amounts to a mass consumer education program to inform the public about the merits and advantages of gas air conditioning. Some 150 utility companies will participate. And this year's campaign will be conducted along the lines of that of 1965, when approximately 500,000 people were personally contacted on behalf of gas air conditioning in a single week.

Thus gas -- cousin of the oil industry--takes another step ahead. The consumer -- in business, in the home, in commerce of every kind--is the ultimate gainer.

NEED A GOOD USED CAR? IT'S THE SEASON TO SHOP

Spring cleaning isn't just the job of diligent housewives. Car dealers do it, too.

In the spring they make a special effort to clear their lots and showrooms for the arrival of next year's models. Their buys on used cars are especially good.

It takes more than an ideal shopping season, though, to get a dependable used car. Several other principles apply:

Think first and save some shoe leather. Daydream about the car you'd like, being specific about make, model, and equipment. It's a good idea to avoid a used car overloaded with extras; repair bills can skyrocket if they get out of commission. It's advisable, too, to stay within the three-year limit. Often, cars older than three years start having problems disproportionate to their years.

Most women prefer compact cars that are lively, long on mileage, and easy to maneuver. Choosing a popular model makes it easy to get replacement parts.

Top off your thinking process by reading the classified ads. They'll give you a good idea of what kind of car is going for what average price. As you shop, you can compare the offers you get with the facts from your market research.

Shop the most reputable dealers. It's wise to avoid a private sale unless you're really sure of the car and the owner. By going to a well-respected large-volume dealer, you'll get a broad guarantee on the car you buy--in legible, understandable black and white. A 60-day guarantee is best, although 30 days will give you enough time to discover any problems you're entitled to have solved free. Beware of two-day guarantees or other painfully short assurances.

Good shoppers usually make the rounds before they're ready to buy. If a dealer knows exactly what you're looking for, he can watch his stock and let you know when something promising comes in.

Inspect the body and interior of each car you consider. Rust patches on a fender can't positively tell you the condition of the engine. If the surface features of a car show unusual wear, though, the mechanism has probably had hard treatment, too. Check for excessive wear on foot pedals, arm rests, and upholstery especially.

After the inside-and-out inspection, stand back and take a long look. Does the body set too low on the chassis? Do the doors sag? Does the car lean to one side or the other? "Yes" to any of these questions, and you'd better look at another car.

Check specifics. Be sure that lights, directional signals, radio, heater, horn, and wipers work.

Examine the tires. If they're smooth or unevenly worn, you would need new ones--immediately.

Check the oil. If it's molasses-thick, watery, or laced with gasoline, it can indicate engine trouble.

Be sure the brakes are firm and, as a last test, gun the motor to see if any blue smoke comes from the exhaust. Blue smoke usually shows the need for new piston rings, a costly repair.

Take a test ride. Go fast and slow, over rough roads and smooth; listen intently for strange noises. If the car shimmys, shakes, or veers to one side or the other, the trouble can be anything from weak springs to worn-out shock absorbers--also expensive to replace. If the brakes squeak, chatter, or grab, if there's too much play in the steering wheel, or if you find any other major trouble, insist on repairs before you buy.

Double check. Before you sign the final papers, get an impartial professional opinion of the car--from a mechanic you know and trust.

THE SURE WORD ON SPRING

There's no saying what April weather will be like. Certainly a nasty March does not insure a fine April. It is a cruel month, once called Neroneus and not without warrant. But spring is here -- at least for city dwellers to whom it comes, according to our garden editor, a good three weeks before it touches many a spot in the county.

That is because the city's radiant warmth, exuded by brick walls, paved streets and warm hearts, calls forth buds and leaves and exotic forsythia bells earlier than does the unaided sun. The signs are clearly readable in the crocus and lily beds, and in bird song. These, of course, must be read with reservations. But for us there is one sure, incontrovertible word.

It is spoken each year by the little lady up the street when she announces that she has seen her first cardinals. It would be against chivalry to tell her that this greatest of sparrows never leaves us. After all, even a cardinal may seem somewhat drab in a drab season. But now his vermillion crest is brighter than a Guardsman's polished helmet. And come snow, hail or rain, that means Spring.

The Association of American Railroads reports that one of the most significant self-improvement projects ever attempted throughout an American industry now involves more than 20 Class I American railroads in formal or proposed rail merger, lease or control plans. In the nine-year span of the modern merger movement, a total of 38 unifications has been proposed. Of these, 23 have been approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission and made effective; two have been sanctioned but have been held up by court action; three have been denied; two have been deferred at applicants' request; one was withdrawn; and seven are pending.

NEW LOOK IN BANKING

There is an ancient and stale joke concerning a banker who had a glass eye. The point of it was that you could readily tell the false eye from the real one because it was much the kindlier and warmer.

Whether there was an element of symbolic truth in this, in the long ago, is a matter of opinion. But it certainly has no aptness nowadays. For banking, along with so many other things, has undergone a complete overhaul -- an overhaul that applies not only to the breadth of its services but to its attitude.

We have entered the era of what is known as full-service banking. This simply means that banks are able and eager to provide loans, at moderate rates of interest, for just about every legitimate purpose. Not every loan can be approved--law and policy, properly and necessarily, make it obligatory to say a polite NO in various instances. But the bankers recognize that credit makes the modern world go round, and that their function is to furnish it with a minimum of red tape and paper work. It is a friendly system, devised to help and not hinder, and its beneficial impact on this nation is enormous.

Even the appearance of banks has been swiftly changing. As new buildings go up and old ones are expanded and modernized there is less and less austerity. They become more comfortable, as well as more efficient, places in which the business of every kind of depositor and borrower can be dealt with in a pleasant atmosphere. Yes, there is a new look in banking, in all of its varied facets.

THE THREE C'S OF EFFECTIVE ADVERTISING

For many years I've put creativity first as the quality that makes advertising great. I have been a student of creativity, collecting a five-foot shelf of books on the subject. I've written on creativity for Printers' Ink, and other publications. I developed a slide film on creativity and lectured on the subject around the country. The power to create ideas is as important as ever, but today I would put another quality first.

That quality is character. Advertising must be built on character if it is to have an enduring influence. Behind every great idea in history there has been a man of character. Lincoln and the idea of his House Divided speech; "a nation cannot exist half slave and half free", Gandhi and his nonresistance idea which freed India. Jefferson and the Declaration of Independence. St. Paul and Christianity. Believability depends on character. No matter how clever we are, or how loud we shout, our words will not be believed unless we have character.

The third quality is continuity. It has been said that a message can be sent around the world by radio in seven seconds but that it often takes ten years to get a single idea through a half-inch of human skull. Many advertising programs, with character and an original idea, fail through lack of repetition. Advertisers frequently tire of an approach when it is just beginning to penetrate the mind of the prospect. They start to plant a message in the mind of the prospect, then pull it up, before it has had time to take root. Advertising success demands continuity.

Character, creativity, continuity, these three, and in the order named. First, a product of quality and character; second an idea for dramatic presentation; third the courage to hew to the line to keep a clear, sharp image in the mind of the prospect.

THE WILL IS LACKING

One thing is certain about the platforms our two political parties adopt every four years. They always promise the ultimate in economical government.

But a promise is one thing and performance is another.

Take the case of government economy, for instance. There certainly can be no doubt that there is waste and duplication of effort in just about ever phase of public affairs. If the parties mean what they say, the budget can be safely pared by billions.

But that is only half the problem and half the need. Economical government means government which, as a matter of rigid principle, keeps out of all those areas where the tax-paying private area can do what is required. A prime example were is electric power. The record of the invester-owned utilities in meeting every demand, and at a cost which has tended steadily downward over the years, is a dramatic and inspiring one. In this field, we lead the rest of the world by a very wide margin, and our technological superiority extends to all the elements which make up this complex industry. Yet the political pressures in favor of socialized power continue relentlessly. Huge sums of the taxpayers' money are needlessly spent -- and then, to compound the economic crime, the taxes that would be collected if private enterprise did the jobs concerned are lost through tax exemption of government projects.

It is not the ability to cut the cost of government that has been lacking -- it is the will. And that will can only be created by the strongest kind of public demand.

. . .. . .A bachelor is a man who doesn't get around to marrying - but gets around.

Hal Boyle

NEW YORK AP -- In the literary world this looks like the year of the battle of gory best sellers.

It pits peacetime murder in Kansas against the wartime fall of Berlin.

Truman Capote, wispish author of "In Cold Blood," estimated recently his psychological study of the slaying of a Kansas farm family of four would gross $2 million from all sources. It took him six years to do the book.

Probably his chief rival for top-selling honors is a 6-foot-1 Irishman, Cornelius Ryan, 45, who also spent six years turning out "The Last Battle," a monumental rendering of the capture of Berlin by the Russians in 1945.

Ryan has no idea as yet what his latest opus will do. But his last book, "The Longest Day," which dealt with the Allied landing in Normandy, sold more than four million copies in 27 countries.

Referring to Capote, better known as a novelist than as a nonfiction writer, Ryan remarked genially:

"For a cub reporter, he's doing great. I'm glad he has discovered the excitement of great journalism, of which he has done a masterpiece."

Unlike Capote, he makes no claim of having created a new art form.

"This style of writing was created by Thucydides when he wrote his history of the Peloponnesian War in 400 B.C.," he said. "All I've done is use old-fashioned legwork."

It was rather expensive legwork. Ryan figures he spent $100,000 in research in contacting 3,000 people in 15 countries, of whom he interviewed 700 in depth.

Surrounded by war maps and 7,000 books, Ryan spent three years in the library of his seven-acre Connecticut estate in the actual writing of his dramatic tale. The estate is named "Les Roches," after German Marshal Erwin Rommel's headquarters in France.

"I got so grumpy," he said, "that one morning my two children marched into the library and announced they were going to write a book and call it 'The Father Who Roars Like a Lion.'

"Right now I'm shellshcoked. I've been living with the war for over 23 years. I can't sleep more than five or six hours a night. After doing the film script for 'The Last Battle,' I'd like to try something else for a change."

And then?

"And then I'd like to write two more books about the war. There's a lot that still hasn't been told.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- A funny thing happened to us the other day at the justice department. We were called down there by Attorney General Katzenbach and told we were under criminal investigation on a charge filed by Sen. Thomas Dodd, D-Conn., of stealing documents from his files.

This raises a very important point. If it is a crime for newsmen to seek evidence documenting charges of corruption against a United States senator, then the press must give up one of its important functions and senators will remain a sacrosanct body, able to expose others regarding deep freezes, mink coats, vicuna coats and Bobby Baker's conflicts of interest, but immune from exposure themselves.

For it is almost impossible to prove indictable facts regarding a senator, or for that matter any official, without using evidence obtained from the inside.

Furthermore, using inside evidence is one of the chief ways the FBI and most law enforcement agencies operate.

It would have been impossible, for instance, for the FBI to secure evidence on the Ku Klux Klan in the Liuzzo murder case without having an FBI agent inside the Klan. Almost every week the FBI pays money for inside information. So does internal revenue. Many of the tax convictions in the United States result from inside information.

There is a law on the statute books providing remuneration to tax informers; and congress appropriates the money for the FBI to pay for inside information.

PUBLIC'S RIGHT TO KNOW

As it happens, we paid no money and stole no documents. We did talk to former members of Dodd's staff who were motivated by the highest interest, namely the public's right to know when a United States senator delivers speeches and performs chores for a foreign agent; When he deposits in his personal account thousands of dollars contributed to his election; when he accepts valuables from companies which he helped re government contracts; and when he charges both the taxpayers and private organizations for trips he makes around the country.

The attorney general's investigation also raises an important point regarding senatorial "theft" or use of unauthorized documents.

We asked Mr. Katzenbach, for instance, whether he had investigated Sen. John Williams, R-Del., as to how he obtained the documents which he publicized in the Bobby Baker case. Obviously they were obtained from government employees who believed in the public's right to know.

The attorney general said he had not investigated Sen. Williams.

We also asked whether he had investigated Sen. Dodd's possession or possible theft of the Otepka papers. This was the famous case where Dodd, as vice chairman of the Senate Internal Security subcommittee, was personally involved with obtaining state department files.

The state department considered this theft. For on Sept. 23, 1963, it charged Otto F. Otepka, chief of the evidence valuation division of the state department's office of security, with violations of 13 regulations by giving confidential information to the Senate Internal Security subcommittee.

DODD CHAMPIONED "THEFT"

On Nov. 5, Otepka was dismissed. Later that day, Sen. Dodd denounced the state department, warning that if Otepka's ouster "is permitted to stand it will become impossible or exceedingly difficult to elicit any information from employees of the executive branch that bears on. . . wrongdoing by their superiors."

Attorney General Katzenbach said he had not investigated Sen. Dodd in connection with the alleged theft of the Otepka papers.

Other important members of congress have used documents obviously obtained from sub rosa government sources, most of these critical of the executive branch -- Senators John McClellan, D-Ark., Ed Long, D-Mo., Strom Thurmond, R-S. C., and Rep. Mike Feighan, D-Ohio.

It was evident that the attorney general had not investigated any of them for obtaining government documents.

We also asked whether instructions to investigate alleged theft in the Dodd case from the White House. Our question was based on the fact that the president and Tom Dodd have been extremely close. At the Atlantic City Democratic convention it was widely reported at first that Dodd, not Hubert Humphrey, would get LBJ's nod for vice president.

Dodd had nominated Lyndon Johnson for president at the 1960 Los Angeles convention. Lyndon, in turn, had intervened to put Dodd on the Senate Foreign Relations committee ahead of Sen. Joe Clark, D-Penn., who had seniority; and twice had gone to Connecticut to be the star attraction at Dodd's fund-raising dinners.

The attorney general denied that instructions to investigate came from the White House.

That's the funny thing that happened the other day at the justice department. It will be interesting to see what happens next.

Once upon a time there was a beautiful young girl taking a stroll through the woods. All at once she saw an extremely ugly bull frog seated on a log and to her amazement the bull froze spoke to her.

"Maiden," croaked the frog, "would you do me a big favor? This will be hard for you to believe, but I was once a handsome, charming prince and then a mean, ugly old witch cast a spell over me and turned me into a frog."

"Oh, what a pity!" exclaimed the pretty girl. "I'll do anything I can to help you break such a spell."

"Well, Miss," replied the frog, "the only way that this spell can be taken off and I can be returned to a handsome young man again is for some lovely and pretty young girl to take me home and let me spend the night under her pillow."

The young girl took the ugly frog home and placed him beneath her pillow that night when she retired. When she awoke the next morning, sure enough, there beside her in the bed was a very young, handsome man, and painly of royal blood.

And so they lived happily ever after, except that until this day her father and mother still do not believe her story.

H. L. Hunt Says

COMPLICATED GOVERNMENT

It is sometimes said that modern government in the United States has become too complex and theoretical for the average citizen to understand. If that is so, it ought not to be so.

Under the Federal Constitution, the government's sole mandate is to protect the life, liberty, and property of the citizens. That protection is achieved in three basic ways: first, by armed forces to protect our national independence; second, by police to defend the citizens against criminals; third, by courts of law which settle disputes among citizens.

Since governments began, some men have been fascinated by the enormous possibilities for greater power arising out of government's monopoly on the use of force. The absolute monarchies took full advantage of these possibilities.

Some two hundred years ago, the general revolt against the power of kings began. Our own American Revolution was a great uprising against the power of monarchy. Its success was so complete that it seemed a final victory had been won over the menace of government power and that future generations would need to fear only foreign invaders.

The wisest of our early leaders, Washington, Jefferson, Adams and Franklin, thought otherwise and warned against this easy optimism. The threat to freedom in every land, they said is perpetual.

They were tragically right. In the last thirty years new justifications have been developed for extending government power. If government is complicated, it does not have to be that way. A return to basic constitutional principles would ease the complexity and make secure the freedom of the individual. HLH

Question, did Africa take that from Mo., or Mo. get it from Africa? Many folks think the numbered ballot in Mo. is responsible for so many cities counties and town in Mo. having gang rule, but the mystery is how come our good governments, cities, town and counties, refuse to even discus the matter.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Tough "Sailor" Paul Hall to Challenge Walter Reuther for Next Presidency of U.S. Labor.

New York: -- Trouble with those who search for eternal youth is that they never do get down to the national AFL-CIO headquarters. There they would discover the only place a man can be middle-aged at 60.

Its leaders are sturdy men who seemed determined to stay in office for ever. But with the retirement of garment chief David Dubinsky, abdication may well become the fashion. And now with George Meany (Mr. Labor) being hospitalized for some 40 days because of hip surgery, there is constant talk "in the market" that he will leave the national presidency of the 14 million - member AFL-CIO at its next convention in '67.

There are many contenders for the succession, but the main bout, insiders believe, will be between the young man of the seas, 51-year old Paul Hall, the Bunyanesque leader of the Seafarers' International Union and the 58-year old "red-head" from Detroit, Walter Reuther, as agile an infighter as this world has seen.

True, Reuther's face, philosophy and political dynamism are known globally. But the odds don't always go to the prominent. At the moment the court is well with the seafarer.

Political science is political science -- in precinct, state, nation or the labor movement. If you have the delegates you have the votes. You count them, not speeches.

And Paul Hall does have the big delegations -- the leaders of some 3.5 million construction unionists; the chiefs of the Maritime Trades Dept.; the heads of many civil service unions and white collar workers.

They like the big blondish "Paul." To them, he stands out morally and intellectually, as well as physically.

On any score, he has no fear. He has walked into the street in "High Noon" fashion and shouted to Jim Hoffa personally to come out and fight.

He has called Nelson Rockefeller a "fink." He has charged Defense Secy. McNamara and Pentagon officials with inability "to cut mustard." He has tackled the then Atty. Gen. Bob Kennedy with charges of harassment.

He has been a maverick in city, state and national politics. He has threatened to drive Agriculture Secy. Orville Freeman from the Cabinet and has warned senators from agricultural states that he would send his men in to fight their re-election if they persisted in insisting that more than 50 per cent of U. S. wheat shipments go in foreign flag vessels.

He has tied up railroads in a dispute over the size of their harbor tugboat crews -- and thus almost kept the entire New York contingent from attending the blizzard-swept inauguration ceremonies of the late John Kennedy.

In the East we are familiar with his "beachside," "white-capped" waves of pickets. He lends, not leases them. With the help of roving seafarers, white collar workers have struck the Cotton Exchange, the Stock Exchange and the New York Welfare Dept.

His technique is that of the military when he moves on the industrial front -- all the way from soup kitchens to quartermasters to platoon leaders.

It has been said by one nationally famous mediator that Paul Hall is "too physical." Perhaps.

But those with whom he has jousted -- all the way from Presidents to waterfront goons, know the moment to beware is when he says, "I'm just a dumb sailor."

Then comes the intricate analyses of modern air, land and sea transportation; the economics of contemporary society, dissecting of politics and the politicians, with swift quotations from GNP statistics.

His is the open-collar tradition. But it is he who has in recent years debated the more famed theorist, Walter Reuther. This has happened across the world -- in very salty but effective terms.

George Meany has come to count on it and enjoy it. Thus there have been Hall-Reuther debates behind closed doors in Amsterdam, Holland, over the Tunisian labor movement; in Florida at the AFL-CIO Executive Council over a foreign policy resolution which Reuther believed had too sharp an anonymous thrust at Bob Kennedy; and more recently Paul Hall flayed the even more theoretical brother, Victor Reuther, in Washington during a session of labor's foreign policy experts.

It is this outspoken strength which some consider Hall's weakness. There are those who say the next AFL-CIO president should be polished -- like "Walter." That will be the crux of the attack upon him.

But if polish were the criterion, George Meany would not be the statesman he is. And he will back Paul Hall in such a duel.

They think alike. They have fought together on many fronts, including the international assault against the Communist world.

On Moscow and Mao, they are inflexible. They stand broad shoulder to broad shoulder against Communist political, military and guerrilla aggression anywhere in the world.

The big bout between the ex-sailor and the ex-auto mechanic should be a classic. It will make history in many ways.

THE SURE WORD ON SPRING

There's no saying what April weather will be like. Certainly a nasty March does not insure a fine April. It is a cruel month, once called Neroneus and not without warrant. But spring is here -- at least for city dwellers to whom it comes, according to our garden editor, a good three weeks before it touches many a spot in the county.

That is because the city's radiant warmth, exuded by brick walls, paved streets and warm hearts, calls forth buds and leaves and exotic forsythia bells earlier than does the unaided sun. The signs are clearly readable in the crocus and lily beds, and in bird song. These, of course, must be read with reservations. But for us there is one sure, incontrovertible word.

It is spoken each year by the little lady up the street when she announces that she has seen her first cardinals. It would be against chivalry to tell her that this greatest of sparrows never leaves us. After all, even a cardinal may seem somewhat drab in a drab season. But now his vermillion crest is brighter than a Guardsman's polished helmet. And come snow, hail or rain, that means Spring.

The Association of American Railroads reports that one of the most significant self-improvement projects ever attempted throughout an American industry now involves more than 20 Class I American railroads in formal or proposed rail merger, lease or control plans. In the nine-year span of the modern merger movement, a total of 38 unifications has been proposed. Of these, 23 have been approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission and made effective; two have been sanctioned but have been held up by court action; three have been denied; two have been deferred at applicants' request; one was withdrawn; and seven are pending.

NEW LOOK IN BANKING

There is an ancient and stale joke concerning a banker who had a glass eye. The point of it was that you could readily tell the false eye from the real one because it was much the kindlier and warmer.

Whether there was an element of symbolic truth in this, in the long ago, is a matter of opinion. But it certainly has no aptness nowadays. For banking, along with so many other things, has undergone a complete overhaul -- an overhaul that applies not only to the breadth of its services but to its attitude.

We have entered the era of what is known as full-service banking. This simply means that banks are able and eager to provide loans, at moderate rates of interest, for just about every legitimate purpose. Not every loan can be approved--law and policy, properly and necessarily, make it obligatory to say a polite NO in various instances. But the bankers recognize that credit makes the modern world go round, and that their function is to furnish it with a minimum of red tape and paper work. It is a friendly system, devised to help and not hinder, and its beneficial impact on this nation is enormous.

Even the appearance of banks has been swiftly changing. As new buildings go up and old ones are expanded and modernized there is less and less austerity. They become more comfortable, as well as more efficient, places in which the business of every kind of depositor and borrower can be dealt with in a pleasant atmosphere. Yes, there is a new look in banking, in all of its varied facets.

THE THREE C'S OF EFFECTIVE ADVERTISING

For many years I've put creativity first as the quality that makes advertising great. I have been a student of creativity, collecting a five-foot shelf of books on the subject. I've written on creativity for Printers' Ink, and other publications. I developed a slide film on creativity and lectured on the subject around the country. The power to create ideas is as important as ever, but today I would put another quality first.

That quality is character. Advertising must be built on character if it is to have an enduring influence. Behind every great idea in history there has been a man of character. Lincoln and the idea of his House Divided speech; "a nation cannot exist half slave and half free". Gandhi and his non-resistance idea which freed India. Jefferson and the Declaration of Independence. St. Paul and Christianity. Believability depends on character. No matter how clever we are, or how loud we shout, our words will not be believed unless we have character.

The third quality is continuity. It has been said that a message can be sent around the world by radio in seven seconds but that it often takes ten years to get a single idea through a half-inch of human skull. Many advertising programs, with character and an original idea, fail through lack of repetition. Advertisers frequently tire of an approach when it is just beginning to penetrate the mind of the prospect. They start to plant a message in the mind of the prospect, then pull it up, before it has had time to take root. Advertising success demands continuity.

Character, creativity, continuity, these three, and in the order named. First, a product of quality and character; second an idea for dramatic presentation; third the courage to hew to the line to keep a clear, sharp image in the mind of the prospect.

THE WILL IS LACKING

One thing is certain about the platforms our two political parties adopt every four years. They always promise the ultimate in economical government.

But a promise is one thing and performance is another.

Take the case of government economy, for instance. There certainly can be no doubt that there is waste and duplication of effort in just about ever phase of public affairs. If the parties mean what they say, the budget can be safely pared by billions.

But that is only half the problem and half the need. Economical government means government which, as a matter of rigid principle, keeps out of all those areas where the tax-paying private area can do what is required. A prime example were is electric power. The record of the invester-owned utilities in meeting every demand, and at a cost which has tended steadily downward over the years, is a dramatic and inspiring one. In this field, we lead the rest of the world by a very wide margin, and our technological superiority extends to all the elements which make up this complex industry. Yet the political pressures in favor of socialized power continue relentlessly. Huge sums of the taxpayers' money are needlessly spent -- and then, to compound the economic crime, the taxes that would be collected if private enterprise did the jobs concerned are lost through tax exemption of government projects.

It is not the ability to cut the cost of government that has been lacking -- it is the will. And that will can only be created by the strongest kind of public demand.

Hal Boyle

NEW YORK AP -- In the literary world this looks like the year of the battle of gory best sellers.

It pits peacetime murder in Kansas against the wartime fall of Berlin.

Truman Capote, wispish author of "In Cold Blood," estimated recently his psychological study of the slaying of a Kansas farm family of four would gross $2 million from all sources. It took him six years to do the book.

Probably his chief rival for top-selling honors is a 6-foot-1 Irishman, Cornelius Ryan, 45, who also spent six years turning out "The Last Battle," a monumental rendering of the capture of Berlin by the Russians in 1945.

Ryan has no idea as yet what his latest opus will do. But his last book, "The Longest Day," which dealt with the Allied landing in Normandy, sold more than four million copies in 27 countries.

Referring to Capote, better known as a novelist than as a nonfiction writer, Ryan remarked genially:

"For a cub reporter, he's doing great. I'm glad he has discovered the excitement of great journalism, of which he has done a masterpiece."

Unlike Capote, he makes no claim of having created a new art form.

"This style of writing was created by Thucydides when he wrote his history of the Peloponnesian War in 400 B.C.," he said. "All I've done is use old-fashioned legwork."

It was rather expensive legwork. Ryan figures he spent $100,000 in research in contacting 3,000 people in 15 countries, of whom he interviewed 700 in depth.

Surrounded by war maps and 7,000 books, Ryan spent three years in the library of his seven-acre Connecticut estate in the actual writing of his dramatic tale. The estate is named "Les Roches," after German Marshal Erwin Rommel's headquarters in France.

"I got so grumpy," he said, "that one morning my two children marched into the library and announced they were going to write a book and call it 'The Father Who Roars Like a Lion.'

"Right now I'm shellshcoked. I've been living with the war for over 23 years. I can't sleep more than five or six hours a night. After doing the film script for 'The Last Battle,' I'd like to try something else for a change."

And then?

"And then I'd like to write two more books about the war. There's a lot that still hasn't been told.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- A funny thing happened to us the other day at the justice department. We were called down there by Attorney General Katzenbach and told we were under criminal investigation on a charge filed by Sen. Thomas Dodd, D-Conn., of stealing documents from his files.

This raises a very important point. If it is a crime for newsmen to seek evidence documenting charges of corruption against a United States senator, then the press must give up one of its important functions and senators will remain a sacrosanct body, able to expose others regarding deep freezes, mink coats, vicuna coats and Bobby Baker's conflicts of interest, but immune from exposure themselves.

For it is almost impossible to prove indictable facts regarding a senator, or for that matter any official, without using evidence obtained from the inside.

Furthermore, using inside evidence is one of the chief ways the FBI and most law enforcement agencies operate.

It would have been impossible, for instance, for the FBI to secure evidence on the Ku Klux Klan in the Liuzzo murder case without having an FBI agent inside the Klan. Almost every week the FBI pays money for inside information. So does internal revenue. Many of the tax convictions in the United States result from inside information.

There is a law on the statute books providing remuneration to tax informers; and congress appropriates the money for the FBI to pay for inside information.

PUBLIC'S RIGHT TO KNOW

As it happens, we paid no money and stole no documents. We did talk to former members of Dodd's staff who were motivated by the highest interest, namely the public's right to know when a United States senator delivers speeches and performs chores for a foreign agent; When he deposits in his personal account thousands of dollars contributed to his election; when he accepts valuables from companies which he helped re government contracts; and when he charges both the taxpayers and private organizations for trips he makes around the country.

The attorney general's investigation also raises an important point regarding senatorial "theft" or use of unauthorized documents.

We asked Mr. Katzenbach, for instance, whether he had investigated Sen. John Williams, R-Del., as to how he obtained the documents which he publicized in the Bobby Baker case. Obviously they were obtained from government employees who believed in the public's right to know.

The attorney general said he had not investigated Sen. Williams.

We also asked whether he had investigated Sen. Dodd's possession or possible theft of the Otepka papers. This was the famous case where Dodd, as vice chairman of the Senate Internal Security subcommittee, was personally involved with obtaining state department files.

The state department considered this theft. For on Sept. 23, 1963, it charged Otto F. Otepka, chief of the evidence valuation division of the state department's office of security, with violations of 13 regulations by giving confidential information to the Senate Internal Security subcommittee.

DODD CHAMPIONED "THEFT"

On Nov. 5, Otepka was dismissed. Later that day, Sen. Dodd denounced the state department, warning that if Otepka's ouster "is permitted to stand it will become impossible or exceedingly difficult to elicit any information from employees of the executive branch that bears on. . . wrongdoing by their superiors."

Attorney General Katzenbach said he had not investigated Sen. Dodd in connection with the alleged theft of the Otepka papers.

Other important members of congress have used documents obviously obtained from sub rosa government sources, most of these critical of the executive branch -- Senators John McClellan, D-Ark., Ed Long, D-Mo., Strom Thurmond, R-S. C., and Rep. Mike Feighan, D-Ohio.

It was evident that the attorney general had not investigated any of them for obtaining government documents.

We also asked whether instructions to investigate alleged theft in the Dodd case from the White House. Our question was based on the fact that the president and Tom Dodd have been extremely close. At the Atlantic City Democratic convention it was widely reported at first that Dodd, not Hubert Humphrey, would get LBJ's nod for vice president.

Dodd had nominated Lyndon Johnson for president at the 1960 Los Angeles convention. Lyndon, in turn, had intervened to put Dodd on the Senate Foreign Relations committee ahead of Sen. Joe Clark, D-Penn., who had seniority; and twice had gone to Connecticut to be the star attraction at Dodd's fund-raising dinners.

The attorney general denied that instructions to investigate came from the White House.

That's the funny thing that happened the other day at the justice department. It will be interesting to see what happens next.

Once upon a time there was a beautiful young girl taking a stroll through the woods. All at once she saw an extremely ugly bull frog seated on a log and to her amazement the bull froze spoke to her.

"Maiden," croaked the frog, "would you do me a big favor? This will be hard for you to believe, but I was once a handsome, charming prince and then a mean, ugly old witch cast a spell over me and turned me into a frog."

"Oh, what a pity!" exclaimed the pretty girl. "I'll do anything I can to help you break such a spell."

"Well, Miss," replied the frog, "the only way that this spell can be taken off and I can be returned to a handsome young man again is for some lovely and pretty young girl to take me home and let me spend the night under her pillow."

The young girl took the ugly frog home and placed him beneath her pillow that night when she retired. When she awoke the next morning, sure enough, there beside her in the bed was a very young, handsome man, and painly of royal blood.

And so they lived happily ever after, except that until this day her father and mother still do not believe her story.

H. L. Hunt Says

COMPLICATED GOVERNMENT

It is sometimes said that modern government in the United States has become too complex and theoretical for the average citizen to understand. If that is so, it ought not to be so.

Under the Federal Constitution, the government's sole mandate is to protect the life, liberty, and property of the citizens. That protection is achieved in three basic ways: first, by armed forces to protect our national independence; second, by police to defend the citizens against criminals; third, by courts of law which settle disputes among citizens.

Since governments began, some men have been fascinated by the enormous possibilities for greater power arising out of government's monopoly on the use of force. The absolute monarchies took full advantage of these possibilities.

Some two hundred years ago, the general revolt against the power of kings began. Our own American Revolution was a great uprising against the power of monarchy. Its success was so complete that it seemed a final victory had been won over the menace of government power and that future generations would need to fear only foreign invaders.

The wisest of our early leaders, Washington, Jefferson, Adams and Franklin, thought otherwise and warned against this easy optimism. The threat to freedom in every land, they said is perpetual.

They were tragically right. In the last thirty years new justifications have been developed for extending government power. If government is complicated, it does not have to be that way. A return to basic constitutional principles would ease the complexity and make secure the freedom of the individual.

Radio said that African who took to servants with him to China and got kicked out of his Dictatorship had numbered ballots in all elections so he could track down and punish any who did not vote right. Question, did Africa take that from Mo., or Mo. get it from Africa? Many folks think the numbered ballot in Mo. is responsible for so many cities counties and town in Mo. having gang rule, but the mystery is how come our good governments, cities, town and counties, refuse to even discus the matter.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Tough "Sailor" Paul Hall to Challenge Walter Reuther for Next Presidency of U.S. Labor.

New York: -- Trouble with those who search for eternal youth is that they never do get down to the national AFL-CIO headquarters. There they would discover the only place a man can be middle-aged at 60.

Its leaders are sturdy men who seemed determined to stay in office for ever. But with the retirement of garment chief David Dubinsky, abdication may well become the fashion. And now with George Meany (Mr. Labor) being hospitalized for some 40 days because of hip surgery, there is constant talk "in the market" that he will leave the national presidency of the 14 million - member AFL-CIO at its next convention in '67.

There are many contenders for the succession, but the main bout, insiders believe, will be between the young man of the seas, 51-year old Paul Hall, the Bunyanesque leader of the Seafarers' International Union and the 58-year old "red-head" from Detroit, Walter Reuther, as agile an infighter as this world has seen.

True, Reuther's face, philosophy and political dynamism are known globally. But the odds don't always go to the prominent. At the moment the court is well with the seafarer.

Political science is political science -- in precinct, state, nation or the labor movement. If you have the delegates you have the votes. You count them, not speeches.

And Paul Hall does have the big delegations -- the leaders of some 3.5 million construction unionists; the chiefs of the Maritime Trades Dept.; the heads of many civil service unions and white collar workers.

They like the big blondish "Paul." To them, he stands out morally and intellectually, as well as physically.

On any score, he has no fear. He has walked into the street in "High Noon" fashion and shouted to Jim Hoffa personally to come out and fight.

He has called Nelson Rockefeller a "fink." He has charged Defense Secy. McNamara and Pentagon officials with inability "to cut mustard." He has tackled the then Atty. Gen. Bob Kennedy with charges of harassment.

He has been a maverick in city, state and national politics. He has threatened to drive Agriculture Secy. Orville Freeman from the Cabinet and has warned senators from agricultural states that he would send his men in to fight their re-election if they persisted in insisting that more than 50 per cent of U. S. wheat shipments go in foreign flag vessels.

He has tied up railroads in a dispute over the size of their harbor tugboat crews -- and thus almost kept the entire New York contingent from attending the blizzard-swept inauguration ceremonies of the late John Kennedy.

In the East we are familiar with his "beachside," "white-capped" waves of pickets. He lends, not leases them. With the help of roving seafarers, white collar workers have struck the Cotton Exchange, the Stock Exchange and the New York Welfare Dept.

His technique is that of the military when he moves on the industrial front -- all the way from soup kitchens to quartermasters to platoon leaders.

It has been said by one nationally famous mediator that Paul Hall is "too physical." Perhaps.

But those with whom he has jousted -- all the way from Presidents to waterfront goons, know the moment to beware is when he says, "I'm just a dumb sailor."

Then comes the intricate analyses of modern air, land and sea transportation; the economics of contemporary society, dissecting of politics and the politicians, with swift quotations from GNP statistics.

His is the open-collar tradition. But it is he who has in recent years debated the more famed theorist, Walter Reuther. This has happened across the world -- in very salty but effective terms.

George Meany has come to count on it and enjoy it. Thus there have been Hall-Reuther debates behind closed doors in Amsterdam, Holland, over the Tunisian labor movement; in Florida at the AFL-CIO Executive Council over a foreign policy resolution which Reuther believed had too sharp an anonymous thrust at Bob Kennedy; and more recently Paul Hall flayed the even more theoretical brother, Victor Reuther, in Washington during a session of labor's foreign policy experts.

It is this outspoken strength which some consider Hall's weakness. There are those who say the next AFL-CIO president should be polished -- like "Walter." That will be the crux of the attack upon him.

But if polish were the criterion, George Meany would not be the statesman he is. And he will back Paul Hall in such a duel.

They think alike. They have fought together on many fronts, including the international assault against the Communist world.

On Moscow and Mao, they are inflexible. They stand broad shoulder to broad shoulder against Communist political, military and guerrilla aggression anywhere in the world.

The big bout between the ex-sailor and the ex-auto mechanic should be a classic. It will make history in many ways.

The Modern Christian

"I have heard that the apostle Paul and the gospel writer John present two different teachings about Jesus Christ in the New Testament."

Paul and John have distinct temperaments and, too, different experiences with the Lord. With regard to differences in temperament, John is a contemplative. His teaching is stamped with the realities of knowledge, light, and truth. His is an extremely original mind, and the underlying cause of the striking unity which prevails throughout the fourth gospel is the striking unity which prevails throughout the fourth gospel is the contemplative spirit of the apostle John.

Paul on the contrary, is a fighter, a man of action, dynamic, creative, a founder of churches. His intellectual powers, by no means less than those of John, reveal themselves in a striking manner. He cannot remain permanently in one community, be it Antioch or Ephesus, but rushes from one town to another, everywhere establishing the Church of Christ. In these activities he is particularly preoccupied with the new creation which is the work of Christ. His primary concern is building a new world in the place of the old one which is in the process of collapsing.

Paul's experience is the vision on the road to Damascus. There he encountered the risen Christ; and swept up in his devotion to his new master, Paul moved into a new world. How could he not devote his fiery personality to this work of the risen Christ? It is his temperament and experience that gives his thought and preaching such a distinctive flavor from John.

John's initial experience, through less striking, is not on that account less profound; it is the experience of a young man, perhaps of sixteen or eighteen, who encountered Christ and became captivated by the light which radiated from him. When Jesus was arguing with the doctors of the Temple, most of the apostles became bored for they found the discussion too subtle, but the young John listened and listened intently. In John's teaching there is an echo, elaborated in fine taste and yet no less authentic, of the words of the Lord which the more popular synoptic teaching (Matthew, Mark, Luke) has not retained but which deserve to be received with careful attention.

John and Paul are both men of the New Testament. They offer varied insight in their teachings of Jesus Christ. This does not mean that there are two different teachings of Jesus Christ, but two rich and thoughtful relationships to their Master that have been expressed in their writings in the New Testament.

High Meat Prices May Be Over

NEW YORK AP -- The worst of the high meat prices may be over.

Beef and pork prices, which soared off the tops of the charts during the winter, have been falling at wholesale markets. The drops should be passed along to housewives in the next few weeks.

Stores in the Midwest and in New York are advertising specials on beef this weekend. and in the Southeast, bacon, and West Coast, pork.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said the anticipated slowdown in food price increases in the next few months would depend on the weather.

The bureau issued statistics this week noting that food prices in February were 6.5 per cent higher than in 1965 -- something any housewife paying $1.19 a pound for bacon could have told them without consulting the charts.

Prices of fresh vegetables were up 10.5 per cent, an aftermath of the January freeze which cut Florida's cucumber and green pepper crops, heavy rains that hampered Texan onion and carrot production and cool, rainy weather delayed the cabbage and lettuce harests in Arizona and California.

GOLF NOTES

Forty six women golfers, or would be golfers, assembled at the Sikeston Country Club Tuesday for the initial meeting of the local club.

Most attractive year books with the season's activities listed for every Tuesday of the season were distributed by the vice president, Mrs. Charles Stamp.

Gene Dawson discussed informally with the group some new P. G. A. rules, as well as some local ones for the 1966 season. One seasoned golfer was heard to remark, "If I were a beginning golfer, I would be scared to death to start." These rules and regulations necessary in any sport are explained in order that the golfers become knowledgeable as soon as possible.

There will be at least six beginning golfers this season. Dawson will give group instructions on the fundamentals if the women will form their own group and arrange with him for a time. After a few lessons, some practice and some playing, individual lessons may then be had to iron out the individual problems. Experienced golfers are always willing to assist new players.

Mrs. Paul Heckemeyer is hostess for April. Any new golfers, please feel free to call her for information.

Tuesday, April 5, is the first round of play and the beginning of the ringer tournament for the month. Playing time is 9 a.m.

It is suggested that those planning to attend the luncheon for the bowlers start a bit early in order that they may be able to complete nine holes of play by noon.

Tuesday's luncheon was planned and arranged by the club president, Mrs. Frank Armstrong.

Nine Specials On Top

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK AP -- The regular television season is in its death throes--two series have already started summer repeats--but special programs are flourishing. Nine are on the books for the next seven days.

"Viet Nam: The Home Front," NBC's study of reactions and controversy over U.S. policy, will be broadcast tonight 6:30 - 7:30.

On Sunday there is ABC's "American Sportsman" special 3-4 p.m. which takes viewers on an Indian stag hunt and a Texas turkeyshoot. "The Congo: Victim of Independence" is NBC's news department special that evening 5:30-6:30. And "Mary Martin at Eastertime with the Radio City Music Hall," will take over the NBC channels after that for an hour 6:30-7:30.

Tuesday night brings one of those unfortunate conflicts. ABC has a variety hour 9-10 called "Jack Jones on the Move," with Milton Berle, Shani Wallis and Tony Bennett. At the same time there will be another of CBS' audience quiz shows: "The National Income Tax Test," designed to show individual viewers what they really know about their tax returns.

A new-to-TV event, "The Miss Teen International Pageant," will be an ABC broadcast on Wednesday 9-10 with "Peyton Place" cast members and Robert Goulet appearing.

Taped acts from a circus, with Roy Rogers and Dale Evans, will be an hour special on NBC Thursday 6:30-7:30 p.m. and later in the evening there will be ABC's "Revolution of the Three R's," 9-10, a study in new techniques and methods in teaching.

Bible Training Program Planned

"Does God have influence in this twentieth century? That question will furnish the principal topic for a three-day Bible training program that the Sikeston congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses will attend April 8 through 10 in Jonesboro, Ark.

The announcement was made today by Russell Knauer, local presiding minister. Knauer said the question has been raised by persons throughout the earth in recent months.

"Not only will we enjoy getting the Bible's answer, but we are sure that Sikeston residents are interested too. What we learn at our assembly we intend to bring back with us and share with our neighbors in our house-to-house witnessing," he said.

Knauer said more than 650 persons from parts of Arkansas, Missouri and Illinois are expected to attend the gathering.

"All those delegates to the convention will be ministers and therefore the assembly theme, 'Make Disciples of People of All Nations,' is very fitting," he said.

The Watchtower Bible and Tract Society of New York, the meeting's sponsor, is sending Bruce E. Giffin to serve as convention chairman and principal speaker.

Giffin is a special traveling representative of the Watchtower Society in charge of more than 200 Witness congregations in the mid-South.

In addition to Giffin's lecture April 10, on, "Does God Have Influence in This Twentieth Century?", the convention will be highlighted by a mass baptism of new ministers the second day of the meet.

The Jonesboro convention will be a prelude to a series of national assemblies the Watchtower Society will sponsor this summer.

The Modern Christian

"I have heard that the apostle Paul and the gospel writer John present two different teachings about Jesus Christ in the New Testament."

Paul and John have distinct temperaments and, too, different experiences with the Lord. With regard to differences in temperament, John is a contemplative. His teaching is stamped with the realities of knowledge, light, and truth. His is an extremely original mind, and the underlying cause of the striking unity which prevails throughout the fourth gospel is the striking unity which prevails throughout the fourth gospel is the contemplative spirit of the apostle John.

Paul on the contrary, is a fighter, a man of action, dynamic, creative, a founder of churches. His intellectual powers, by no means less than those of John, reveal themselves in a striking manner. He cannot remain permanently in one community, be it Antioch or Ephesus, but rushes from one town to another, everywhere establishing the Church of Christ. In these activities he is particularly preoccupied with the new creation which is the work of Christ. His primary concern is building a new world in the place of the old one which is in the process of collapsing.

Paul's experience is the vision on the road to Damascus. There he encountered the risen Christ; and swept up in his devotion to his new master, Paul moved into a new world. How could he not devote his fiery personality to this work of the risen Christ? It is his temperament and experience that gives his thought and preaching such a distinctive flavor from John.

John's initial experience, through less striking, is not on that account less profound; it is the experience of a young man, perhaps of sixteen or eighteen, who encountered Christ and became captivated by the light which radiated from him. When Jesus was arguing with the doctors of the Temple, most of the apostles became bored for they found the discussion too subtle, but the young John listened and listened intently. In John's teaching there is an echo, elaborated in fine taste and yet no less authentic, of the words of the Lord which the more popular synoptic teaching (Matthew, Mark, Luke) has not retained but which deserve to be received with careful attention.

John and Paul are both men of the New Testament. They offer varied insight in their teachings of Jesus Christ. This does not mean that there are two different teachings of Jesus Christ, but two rich and thoughtful relationships to their Master that have been expressed in their writings in the New Testament.

High Meat Prices May Be Over

NEW YORK AP -- The worst of the high meat prices may be over.

Beef and pork prices, which soared off the tops of the charts during the winter, have been falling at wholesale markets. The drops should be passed along to housewives in the next few weeks.

Stores in the Midwest and in New York are advertising specials on beef this weekend. and in the Southeast, bacon, and West Coast, pork.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said the anticipated slowdown in food price increases in the next few months would depend on the weather.

The bureau issued statistics this week noting that food prices in February were 6.5 per cent higher than in 1965--something any housewife paying $1.19 a pound for bacon could have told them without consulting the charts.

Prices of fresh vegetables were up 10.5 per cent, an aftermath of the January freeze which cut Florida's cucumber and green pepper crops, heavy rains that hampered Texan onion and carrot production and cool, rainy weather delayed the cabbage and lettuce harests in Arizona and California.

GOLF NOTES

Forty six women golfers, or would be golfers, assembled at the Sikeston Country Club Tuesday for the initial meeting of the local club.

Most attractive year books with the season's activities listed for every Tuesday of the season were distributed by the vice president, Mrs. Charles Stamp.

Gene Dawson discussed informally with the group some new P. G. A. rules, as well as some local ones for the 1966 season. One seasoned golfer was heard to remark, "If I were a beginning golfer, I would be scared to death to start." These rules and regulations necessary in any sport are explained in order that the golfers become knowledgeable as soon as possible.

There will be at least six beginning golfers this season. Dawson will give group instructions on the fundamentals if the women will form their own group and arrange with him for a time. After a few lessons, some practice and some playing, individual lessons may then be had to iron out the individual problems. Experienced golfers are always willing to assist new players.

Mrs. Paul Heckemeyer is hostess for April. Any new golfers, please feel free to call her for information.

Tuesday, April 5, is the first round of play and the beginning of the ringer tournament for the month. Playing time is 9 a.m.

It is suggested that those planning to attend the luncheon for the bowlers start a bit early in order that they may be able to complete nine holes of play by noon.

Tuesday's luncheon was planned and arranged by the club president, Mrs. Frank Armstrong.

Nine Specials On Top

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK AP -- The regular television season is in its death throes--two series have already started summer repeats--but special programs are flourishing. Nine are on the books for the next seven days.

"Viet Nam: The Home Front," NBC's study of reactions and controversy over U.S. policy, will be broadcast tonight 6:30 - 7:30.

On Sunday there is ABC's "American Sportsman" special 3-4 p.m. which takes viewers on an Indian stag hunt and a Texas turkeyshoot. "The Congo: Victim of Independence" is NBC's news department special that evening 5:30-6:30. And "Mary Martin at Eastertime with the Radio City Music Hall," will take over the NBC channels after that for an hour 6:30-7:30.

Tuesday night brings one of those unfortunate conflicts. ABC has a variety hour 9-10 called "Jack Jones on the Move," with Milton Berle, Shani Wallis and Tony Bennett. At the same time there will be another of CBS' audience quiz shows: "The National Income Tax Test," designed to show individual viewers what they really know about their tax returns.

A new-to-TV event, "The Miss Teen International Pageant," will be an ABC broadcast on Wednesday 9-10 with "Peyton Place" cast members and Robert Goulet appearing.

Taped acts from a circus, with Roy Rogers and Dale Evans, will be an hour special on NBC Thursday 6:30-7:30 p.m. and later in the evening there will be ABC's "Revolution of the Three R's," 9-10, a study in new techniques and methods in teaching.

Bible Training Program Planned

"Does God have influence in this twentieth century? That question will furnish the principal topic for a three-day Bible training program that the Sikeston congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses will attend April 8 through 10 in Jonesboro, Ark.

The announcement was made today by Russell Knauer, local presiding minister. Knauer said the question has been raised by persons throughout the earth in recent months.

"Not only will we enjoy getting the Bible's answer, but we are sure that Sikeston residents are interested too. What we learn at our assembly we intend to bring back with us and share with our neighbors in our house-to-house witnessing," he said.

Knauer said more than 650 persons from parts of Arkansas, Missouri and Illinois are expected to attend the gathering.

"All those delegates to the convention will be ministers and therefore the assembly theme, 'Make Disciples of People of All Nations,' is very fitting," he said.

The Watchtower Bible and Tract Society of New York, the meeting's sponsor, is sending Bruce E. Giffin to serve as convention chairman and principal speaker.

Giffin is a special traveling representative of the Watchtower Society in charge of more than 200 Witness congregations in the mid-South.

In addition to Giffin's lecture April 10, on, "Does God Have Influence in This Twentieth Century?", the convention will be highlighted by a mass baptism of new ministers the second day of the meet.

The Jonesboro convention will be a prelude to a series of national assemblies the Watchtower Society will sponsor this summer.

Missouri U. Travels To San Antonio Texas Today

COLUMBIA, MO. -- Helped by more outdoor pre-season work than usual in March, Missouri opens a new baseball campaign against Trinity University in San Antonio, Tex. today.

The Tigers will be playing seven games in six days down in the Long Star State. The pre-conference slate:

Apr. 1 -- Trinity at Ft. Sam Houston (7:30 p.m.)

2 -- Sam Houston State at Randolph AFB (2:00)

2 -- Randolph AFB at Randolph AFB (7:30)

4-- St. Edwards at Lackland AFB (2:00)

4 -- Lackland AFB at Lackland AFB (7:30)

5 -- St. Mary's U. at St. Mary's (3:00)

6 -- Ft. Sam Houston at Ft. Sam Houstin (2:30)

Coach John (Hi) Simmons will take a 22-man squad, including eight pitchers, on this shake-down trip. The Tigers will fly to San Antonio Friday morning, and be billeted in U. S. Army quarters.

Simmons indicated two of his veteran pitchers, Terry L'Ange and Mike Eader, will share hurling responsibilities in the opener against a Trinity team, that already has played ten games.

The defending Big Eight champions return 10 lettermen this spring -- four of them pitchers -- but lost 1965's leading hitter, Dan Rudanovich, to a professional baseball contract late in January. The hard-socking centerfielder hit .463 last year -- third best among the nation's collegians.

That's the biggest single loss, but Simmons also must fill vacancies at second base and catcher. Last year, the Bengals hit .316 en route to their fourth straight league championship, only to lose the District Five title and a College World Series berth to St. Louis U. in the playoffs.

Pitching should be fairly solid this year if veterans like Orville Hollrah (5-0), L'Ange (3-1), Eader (2-0) and Bob Carpenter (1-1) again came through Backed up by sophomores Jerry Hurt and Mike McFarland, the staff will be right-handed all the way.

Catching will be green, though, with rookies Phil Rhode and Al Chettle, a football center, leading all candidates.

The infield has a veteran gloss -- Ron Cummins at first base, Bob Robben at second, Tom Seal at short, and Roger Lindstrom at third base. Only Seal is a new starter -- and he lettered as a utility man last year. Robben, a .440 hitter, played short last year but worked at second in his sophomore season.

Ray Thorpe, swift lead-off man, is the left-fielder -- with another letterman, Gene Stephenson, in right. Ron Coleman, high-scoring basketball guard, and Barry Lubeck, a '65 squadman, are the top-rated prospects in center.

Robben led the Bengals in four departments last year: Most hits (40); most R. B. I.'s (25); most triples (5); and most total bases (78).

Simmons starts his 27th season as M. U.'s skipper -- and he's the circuit's most consistent winner. Eleven conference championships, one national title, and three runnerup teams in the College World Series highlight his career log. Three of his proteges currently are on major league rosters: Sonny Siebert (Cleveland); John O'Donoghue (Kansas City); and Charley James (Cincinnati).

Schellhase Takes Scoring Honors

NEW YORK AP -- Sometime during his 26-game season, Dave Wagnon of Idaho State probably missed an easy lay-up. He definitely missed a couple of free throws.

And it was those two points that cost him the national major college basketball scoring championship.

Wagnon finished with an average of 32.50 points per game while Dave Schellhase of Purdue, the leader throughout the season, came in with a 32.54 average.

Thus the 6-foot-4 All-America won the closest individual scoring battle in major college history. He scored 781 points in 24 games compared with 845 in 26 contests for Wagnon.

Another All-America, Michigan's Cazzie Russell, was the only other player with more than 30 points a game. His final average was 30.8.

Grand Jury Investigation Continues

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal grand jury investigating gangster influence in professional boxing reportedly was to begin its third day of sessions today with the entire proceedings wrapped in secrecy.

Spokesmen for the U.S. Attorney's office refused to disclose to newsmen whether the probe would continue today. However, the grand jury, scheduled to be dismissed Monday, was held over indefinitely at the government's request, an indication of further hearings.

At Thursday's session, Bernard Glickman, 51, the government's prime witness, testified before the grand jury.

As far as could be determined, Glickman was the day's only witness in the seven-hour session.

In an attempt to maintain the secret characteristics of grand jury proceedings, Glickman was whisked into the Federal Building via an underground entrance.

Attempts by newsmen to spot him leaving the building were fruitless despite a constant watch at all exits.

The grand jury opened its probe Wednesday, hearing at least seven subpoenaed witnesses.

Glickman's tie-up with Ernie Terrell, World Boxing Association heavyweight champion, led to the probe. Glickman and Terrell are Chicagoans.

Glickman told the FBI he was beaten and choked Feb. 3 by Felix (Milwaukee Phil) Alderisio, an alleged hoodlum. Crime syndicate mobsters blamed Glickman for failure to engineer a bout between Terrell and Cassius Clay in New York's Madison Square Garden.

The New York State Athletic Commission refused Terrell a license Jan. 29 because of his alleged association with Glickman.

The government's organized crime unit, on the basis of Glickman's accounts of mobster activity in boxing, subpoenaed two reputed Chicago gambling figures, along with six men who are active in boxing in New York and Chicago.

SPORTS CORNER

By Ron Jaynes

One swallow does not make a summer, or one baseball season a career; but a backward glance at the trades made by Bob Howsam since he became General Manager of the Cardinals seems to give the Red Birds a decided edge.

Three major Howsam transactions have so far been tested on the playing field, and here are the results in so far:

Pitcher Bob Purkey was obtained by the Cardinals from the Cincinnati Reds for Pitcher Roger Craig and Outfielder Charley James. Purkey won 10 games, third on the Cardinal staff last season, and lost nine. Craig had a 1-4 record for the Reds, and James, playing in only 26 games, hit .205.

Pitcher Tracy Stallard was acquired from the New York Mets for Outfielder Johnny Lewis and Pitcher Gordon Richardson. Stallard's 11-victory total was second on the St. Louis staff to Bob Gibson. He lost eight games. Richardson, meanwhile, spent part of the season in the minors, and was 2-2 with the Mets. Lewis, a young player still in the development stage, hit .245 and had 15 home runs for the Mets.

In mid-season last year, Howsam traded Pitcher Ron Taylor from the Cardinals and Mike Cuellar from Jacksonville to Houston for Pitcher Hal Woodeshick. Woodeshick came close last year to being the best relief pitcher in the game. He had a 3-4 won-lost record and two saves with Houston, and was 3-2 with 14 saves with the Cardinals.

Taylor was 2-1 with a 4.50 earned run average for the Cardinals, and 1-5 with a 6.36 ERA at Houston. Cuellar's record was one victory, four defeats.

In the only other major league transaction he made, the Cardinal General Manager purchased Tito Francona from Cleveland. Tito hit .259 and played both the outfield and first base.

There still is no basis for judging the two major deals made since the 1965 season ended. At the moment, Howsam, a thorough, painstaking researcher of players and their abilities, thinks the Cardinals did what was best for them in trading Ken Boyer, Bill White, Dick Groat and Bob Uecker.

Third Baseman Ken Boyer went to the Mets for Third Baseman Charley Smith and Pitcher Al Jackson, while First Baseman Bill White, Shortstop Groat and Catcher Uecker were traded to the Philadelphia Phillies for Outfielder Alex Johnson, Catcher Pat Corrales and Pitcher Art Mahaffey.

The history of the Cardinals is full of deals that helped win pennants. Bob Howsam has the right to hope it can happen again.

In London a clerk named Charles Wilson has laboriously copied out in longhand every one of Shakespeare's plays. He performed this herculean task, furthermore, while his three sisters sat in the same room with a television set going full blast.

"I've always had an overpowering urge to write," he explained. "But I have absolutely no literary talent."

Shannon And Brock Boost Cards With Home Run Slugging

SARASOTA, FLA. -- Bob Gibson tuned-up Thursday for his likely season-opening assignment and the Cardinals made a fast getaway stand up for another exhibition victory. But Red Bird manager Red Schoendienst indicated he still will shake up his batting order before the final week in Florida gets under way.

The Cardinals' fire-balling righthander came within a single out of going all the way against the Chicago White Sox. Hal Woodeshick finally nailed down the 7-5 edge over Eddie Stanky's Grapefruit League pace-setters, even though the bases were loaded when right-fielder Bob Skinner cane in for Pete Ward's game-ending liner.

"I'll take that many runs every time," the Cardinal field foreman explained after his team had registered its fourth straight success. In addition, the Cardinals now have bagged nine of their last 10 games for a 12-7 record.

Cronin Predicts Seven-Team Pennant Race

BOSTON (AP) -- American League President Joe Cronin predicts a seven-team pennant race and a trend toward more exciting play in the 1966 season.

Back from a swing of Florida training camps, Cronin told Boston baseball writers Thursday that he is "optimistic" for the first time in years over the flag chase.

"In the past, the league has been dominated by the New York Yankees," Cronin said. "This year, though, is one of the most difficult ever to predict a winner. All clubs appear to have improved."

Cronin named the defending champion Minnesota Twins, the Detroit Tigers, the Chicago White Sox, the Baltimore Orioles, the Cleveland Indians and the Yankees as contenders. Then he added, the California Angels on the advice of their general manager, Fred Haney.

Missouri U. Travels To San Antonio Texas Today

COLUMBIA, MO. -- Helped by more outdoor pre-season work than usual in March, Missouri opens a new baseball campaign against Trinity University in San Antonio, Tex. today.

The Tigers will be playing seven games in six days down in the Long Star State. The pre-conference slate:

Apr. 1 -- Trinity at Ft. Sam Houston (7:30 p.m.)

2 -- Sam Houston State at Randolph AFB (2:00)

2 -- Randolph AFB at Randolph AFB (7:30)

4 -- St. Edwards at Lackland AFB (2:00)

4 -- Lackland AFB at Lackland AFB (7:30)

5 -- St. Mary's U. at St. Mary's (3:00)

6 -- Ft. Sam Houston at Ft. Sam Houstin (2:30)

Coach John (Hi) Simmons will take a 22-man squad, including eight pitchers, on this shake-down trip. The Tigers will fly to San Antonio Friday morning, and be billeted in U. S. Army quarters.

Simmons indicated two of his veteran pitchers, Terry L'Ange and Mike Eader, will share hurling responsibilities in the opener against a Trinity team, that already has played ten games.

The defending Big Eight champions return 10 lettermen this spring -- four of them pitchers -- but lost 1965's leading hitter, Dan Rudanovich, to a professional baseball contract late in January. The hard-socking centerfielder hit .463 last year -- third-best among the nation's collegians.

That's the biggest single loss, but Simmons also must fill vacancies at second base and catcher. Last year, the Bengals hit .316 en route to their fourth straight league championship, only to lose the District Five title and a College World Series berth to St. Louis U. in the playoffs.

Pitching should be fairly solid this year if veterans like Orville Hollrah (5-0), L'Ange (3-1), Eader (2-0) and Bob Carpenter (1-1) again came through Backed up by sophomores Jerry Hurt and Mike McFarland, the staff will be right-handed all the way.

Catching will be green, though, with rookies Phil Rhode and Al Chettle, a football center, leading all candidates.

The infield has a veteran gloss -- Ron Cummins at first base, Bob Robben at second, Tom Seal at short, and Roger Lindstrom at third base. Only Seal is a new starter -- and he lettered as a utility man last year. Robben, a .440 hitter, played short last year but worked at second in his sophomore season.

Ray Thorpe, swift lead-off man, is the left-fielder -- with another letterman, Gene Stephenson, in right. Ron Coleman, high-scoring basketball guard, and Barry Lubeck, a '65 squadman, are the top-rated prospects in center.

Robben led the Bengals in four departments last year: Most hits (40); most R. B. I.'s (25); most triples (5); and most total bases (78).

Simmons starts his 27th season as M. U.'s skipper -- and he's the circuit's most consistent winner. Eleven conference championships, one national title, and three runnerup teams in the College World Series highlight his career log. Three of his proteges currently are on major league rosters: Sonny Siebert (Cleveland); John O'Donoghue (Kansas City); and Charley James (Cincinnati).

Schellhase Takes Scoring Honors

NEW YORK AP -- Sometime during his 26-game season, Dave Wagnon of Idaho State probably missed an easy lay-up. He definitely missed a couple of free throws.

And it was those two points that cost him the national major college basketball scoring championship.

Wagnon finished with an average of 32.50 points per game while Dave Schellhase of Purdue, the leader throughout the season, came in with a 32.54 average.

Thus the 6-foot-4 All-America won the closest individual scoring battle in major college history. He scored 781 points in 24 games compared with 845 in 26 contests for Wagnon.

Another All-America, Michigan's Cazzie Russell, was the only other player with more than 30 points a game. His final average was 30.8.

Grand Jury Investigation Continues

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal grand jury investigating gangster influence in professional boxing reportedly was to begin its third day of sessions today with the entire proceedings wrapped in secrecy.

Spokesmen for the U.S. Attorney's office refused to disclose to newsmen whether the probe would continue today. However, the grand jury, scheduled to be dismissed Monday, was held over indefinitely at the government's request, an indication of further hearings.

At Thursday's session, Bernard Glickman, 51, the government's prime witness, testified before the grand jury.

As far as could be determined, Glickman was the day's only witness in the seven-hour session.

In an attempt to maintain the secret characteristics of grand jury proceedings, Glickman was whisked into the Federal Building via an underground entrance.

Attempts by newsmen to spot him leaving the building were fruitless despite a constant watch at all exits.

The grand jury opened its probe Wednesday, hearing at least seven subpoenaed witnesses.

Glickman's tie-up with Ernie Terrell, World Boxing Association heavyweight champion, led to the probe. Glickman and Terrell are Chicagoans.

Glickman told the FBI he was beaten and choked Feb. 3 by Felix (Milwaukee Phil) Alderisio, an alleged hoodlum. Crime syndicate mobsters blamed Glickman for failure to engineer a bout between Terrell and Cassius Clay in New York's Madison Square Garden.

The New York State Athletic Commission refused Terrell a license Jan. 29 because of his alleged association with Glickman.

The government's organized crime unit, on the basis of Glickman's accounts of mobster activity in boxing, subpoenaed two reputed Chicago gambling figures, along with six men who are active in boxing in New York and Chicago.

One swallow does not make a summer, or one baseball season a career; but a backward glance at the trades made by Bob Howsam since he became General Manager of the Cardinals seems to give the Red Birds a decided edge.

Three major Howsam transactions have so far been tested on the playing field, and here are the results in so far:

Pitcher Bob Purkey was obtained by the Cardinals from the Cincinnati Reds for Pitcher Roger Craig and Outfielder Charley James. Purkey won 10 games, third on the Cardinal staff last season, and lost nine. Craig had a 1-4 record for the Reds, and James, playing in only 26 games, hit .205.

Pitcher Tracy Stallard was acquired from the New York Mets for Outfielder Johnny Lewis and Pitcher Gordon Richardson. Stallard's 11-victory total was second on the St. Louis staff to Bob Gibson. He lost eight games. Richardson, meanwhile, spent part of the season in the minors, and was 2-2 with the Mets. Lewis, a young player still in the development stage, hit .245 and had 15 home runs for the Mets.

In mid-season last year, Howsam traded Pitcher Ron Taylor from the Cardinals and Mike Cuellar from Jacksonville to Houston for Pitcher Hal Woodeshick. Woodeshick came close last year to being the best relief pitcher in the game. He had a 3-4 won-lost record and two saves with Houston, and was 3-2 with 14 saves with the Cardinals.

Taylor was 2-1 with a 4.50 earned run average for the Cardinals, and 1-5 with a 6.36 ERA at Houston. Cuellar's record was one victory, four defeats.

In the only other major league transaction he made, the Cardinal General Manager purchased Tito Francona from Cleveland. Tito hit .259 and played both the outfield and first base.

There still is no basis for judging the two major deals made since the 1965 season ended. At the moment, Howsam, a thorough, painstaking researcher of players and their abilities, thinks the Cardinals did what was best for them in trading Ken Boyer, Bill White, Dick Groat and Bob Uecker.

Third Baseman Ken Boyer went to the Mets for Third Baseman Charley Smith and Pitcher Al Jackson, while First Baseman Bill White, Shortstop Groat and Catcher Uecker were traded to the Philadelphia Phillies for Outfielder Alex Johnson, Catcher Pat Corrales and Pitcher Art Mahaffey.

The history of the Cardinals is full of deals that helped win pennants. Bob Howsam has the right to hope it can happen again.

In London a clerk named Charles Wilson has laboriously copied out in longhand every one of Shakespeare's plays. He performed this herculean task, furthermore, while his three sisters sat in the same room with a television set going full blast.

"I've always had an overpowering urge to write," he explained. "But I have absolutely no literary talent."

Mercury's unique silencing system includes an aluminum frame that isolates engine sound and vibration; neoprene rubber seals that trap sound coming through internal control linkages and fuel line openings. Mercurys are inherently quiet by design, thanks to features like Power-Dome combustion chambers, Jet-Prop exhaust, Dyna-Float suspension, internal reed valves and offset wrist pins. See the quiet ones—the '66 Mercurys—at your Mercury dealer. 3.9, 6, 9.8, 20, 35, 50, 65, 95 and 110 hp.

The fact is, any car that offers you all the space, comfort and features that an Opel wagon does is bound to be popular. (Fold down its rear seat and you have a car that's all trunk.) But we'd like to claim some credit, too. We're in business to offer you an automobile that's the most automobile you can get for your money. We're in business to give you the kind of trade-in value and service that make a deal a deal. You know the theory that a satisfied customer is a customer who comes back for more? We believe it.

LAST LAP—Golfer Phil Rodgers heaves a heavy sigh of relief as he comes off the 17th green during a round in the Florida sun.

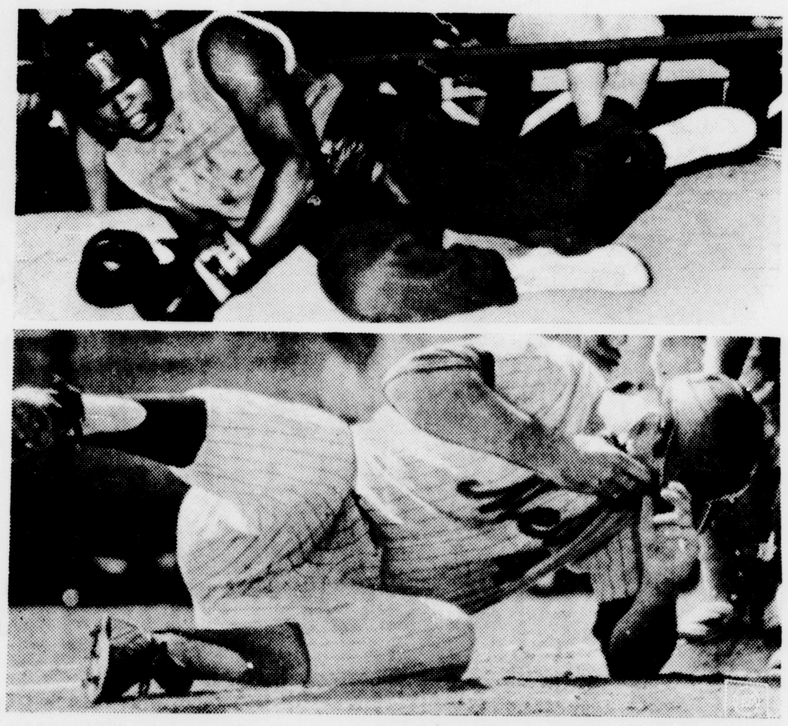

READY TO GO—A three-man Apollo spaceship, indicated by markings, sits atop a new Saturn-1B rocket at Cape Kennedy ready for its first flight test scheduled Feb. 22. The unmanned ship will be lifted to an altitude of 300 miles and then rocketed back toward earth in a sub-orbital check of the heat shield.

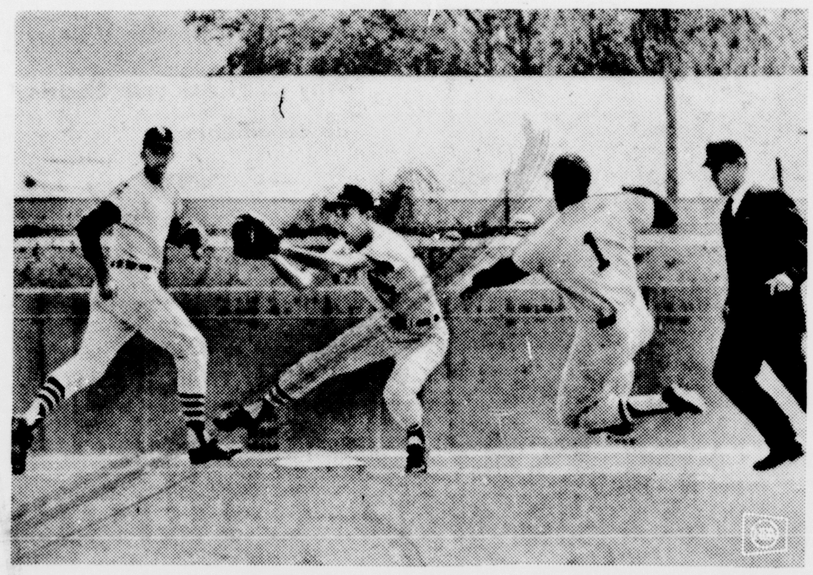

GOOD WITH THE BAD—New York Mets' Dick Stuart makes every ground ball seem like a James Bond adventure. Top, he makes a difficult backhand stab, but then on a routine ground ball, bottom, he manages to bobble it behind his back.

TRACKING APOLLO—The flight plan for the first operational test of the three-man Apollo spacecraft, designed to carry American astronauts to the moon by the end of the decade, calls for a sub-orbital launching down the Atlantic Tracking Range from Cape Kennedy to a splashdown point beyond Ascension island. The unmanned capsule will be lifted to a 300-mile altitude by Saturn-1B rocket and then rammed back toward earth to test efficiency of the heat shield. Heavy line on Newsmap marks the route. Bars indicate land tracking stations and the ship Rose Knot keeping tabs on the Apollo at successive stages of the journey. Flight sequence is 1) separation altitude; 2) second-stage spacecraft separation; 3) altitude apogee; 4) first service module propulsion burn; 5) service propulsion cut-off; 6) second service module propulsion burn, and 7) second service propulsion cut-off.

FALL GUYS—Cassius Clay, top, and Dick Stuart of the New York Mets are in different sports, but similar positions. Clay, training for his heavyweight title bout with George Chuvalo, was knocked down during a sparring session and Stuart was decked by a foul ball off his own bat.

ACTION CENTRAL—Everybody in the ball park, it seems, is converging on second base. One man got there late—the runner, Boston's Joe Foy. White Sox shortstop Ron Hansen backs up the play while Al Weis takes the throw for the tagout.

Fishing continues to improve on all major impoundments. Bass are moving into shallow water with Bombers, Helldivers, and similar baits producing the best catches. There have been some reports of topwater catches on Rebels, Rappellas, and medium running baits. Crappie throughout the Ozarks are just starting to move. Water conditions are good. At Lake of the Ozarks there is some dingy water in the center section of the Grand Glaize Arm. At Beaver Lake the upper section is beginning to clear and several eight-pound Northern Pike have been reported in the past week. Greers Ferry also has some dingy water in the section above the narrows. Bass fishing in Missouri Ozark streams is closed until May 30th.

Opera Deserves Better Building

NEW YORK AP -- The Metropolitan Opera is a company of singers surrounded by an orchestra, dancers and a variety of production and administrative people. It is one of the best opera companies in the world and should have the best, most modern fully equipped house in which to perform.

That is the sensible view.

The Metropolitan Opera is a building just south of Times Square, where second and third act scenery is stacked outside on the sidewalk leaning against the back wall while the first act is going on, where the acoustics are wonderful, where it's nearly always too hot for audience comfort and where Caruso sang. It's a building soon to be torn down and a lot of people love it and hate to see it go.

That is the nostalgic view.

The sensible view is prevailing. On Sept. 16, the Met will open its 1966-67 season in a new $42.7-million building at Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts. It will be cooled, it will have 3,800 seats, 175 more than the Mets has now, it will have storage space and rehearsal space and two orchestra pit elevators.

Rudolf Bing, Met general manager since 1950, says: "It won't look like the old house at all. You cannot expect in 1966 to build a 19th century building, but it will be traditional within contemporary limits. It will have tiers of boxes, beautiful redwood, gold leafing in the ceiling, red chairs and a crystal chandelier. It will be very elegant. It will have nothing of the mixture of antiseptic hospital and airplane terminal style you see in Europe today.

"You can't tell about acoustics now — not all the chairs are in yet. But Justino Diaz and Leontyne Price — who will open the next season in Samuel Barber's new Antony and Cleopatra — just sang the National Anthem from the stage without accompaniment and it sounded very well."

The present house, soon to be torn down to make room for a skyscraper, opened Oct. 22, 1883, with Carles Gounod's "Faust." It cost $2 million, including the land.

The Met is selling everything it can — light fixtures, seats, even tassels from the gold curtain for $5 each.

Nostalgia will prevail on the last night of this season, April 16, at 39th St. and Broadway. The last night — sold out long ago — won't be an opera. Too many stars want to sing and each person in the audience wants to hear his favorites.

More than 50 stars will be able to say "Oh, yes, I sang at the last night in the old house."

This is the old wooden stage where great music, and some that wasn't, has been created for 82 years.

It is where Leo Slezak gazed at a departing mechanical swan pulling a raft on which he, as Lohengrin, should have been standing, and loudly inquired, "What time does the next swan leave?"

Where Russian bass Feodor Chaliapin, under cover of a language his audience didn't understand, once sang to his valet in the wings, "Go home and get me a suit of underwear." Where the great duo, Flagstad and Melchoir, sang naughty stories to each other in German, performance after Wagnerian performance, and the music critics never caught on.

Calcutta City of Crisis

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — This is one of the world's largest cities and it is a city in crisis — overwhelmed by runaway population, poverty, hunger, disease and illiteracy.

A third of its people live in conditions which by Western standards are unfit for human habitation.

"We're really in a race with time," one official admits.

If the race is list, all of India will face a serious threat, experts here agree. Repercussions could be felt throughout Asia.

Bloody rioting broke out in mid-March, ostensibly over food shortages. Before the army regained control, about 30 lives had been lost, and millions of dollars worth of property — mostly government — had been burned or otherwise destroyed.

The violence was inspired by leftists, who are capitalizing on the deteriorating situation.

Even nature is working against Calcutta. The harbor, major trade link between East and West, is silting up; and the flow of fresh water into the Hooghly River is diverting into other branches of the mighty Ganges.

"Given the resources of the area, the city is faced with a hopless task," was the grim resume of one qualified observer.

"Local resources such as taxes are insufficient; administrative ability is skimpy.

"There is a great air of hopelessness, despair and cynicism.

"We don't have citizen good will. We have a crisis but no sense of crisis in the city and state administration.

"The problems are so chronic and the people so long-suffering that you can't arouse a development effort."

Under British rule Calcutta developed into one of the world's busiest ports. It was India's capital until 1912, the site of palatial British residences and government buildings.

Calcutta's real problems came with India's independence and partition of the subcontinent. About a million of the 4.2 million Hindu refugees who left East Pakistan swarmed into Calcutta, straining facilities.

The result is a metropolitan city of about seven million persons, gaining 200,000 a year. The Hooghly River on one side and salt water swamps on the other keep Calcutta from spreading out, so the population density goes up and up.

Calcutta is estimated to have 102,000 people per square mile, compared with 27,000 for New York City.

An official at the Calcutta Metropolitan Planning Organization pointed out that "in New York you achieve density by building skyscrapers. Here we have one-story bustees (slums). We have no room for schools, parks or hospitals."

It is estimated that three-fourths of Calcutta's people live in overcrowded tenement and bustee quarters, ridden with flies and rats. About 60 per cent of multimember families are jammed into one-room quarters — many without running water.

Thousands live on the sidewalks.

The lack of safe water supply, sewage facilities and proper housing has made Calcutta an endemic source of cholera and other diseases. The World Health Organization calls the city an international health hazard amid its tropical heat and humidity.

Five years ago, the Ford Foundation sent a team of international specialists in urban planning. As a result a planning organization came into being and today the foreign experts work alongside Indian planners, turning out programs aimed at preventing catastrophe here.

John P. Robin, former chairman of the Pennsylvania Planning Board, is chief consultant. Others in the group include Arthur Row, on leave from Yale University where he is chairman of the Department of City Planning.

The foreign experts decline to be quoted on Calcutta's problems because of possible resent at interference by outsiders. Indian officials similarly decline, fearing they would become targets of leftist agitators.

But interviews with planners and city, state and port officials produce this summary of Calcutta's problems:

--Not only is Calcutta grossly overpopulated, but so is its trade area — the states of West Bengal, Bihar, Orissa and Assam. Calcutta is the only city over 300,000 in this great rural area. The states have a total population of about 146 million people, equal to that in all the European Common Market countries.

— Calcutta is the most backward city and area in India in terms of educational facilities. No school is available for a half-million children. At the present rate of population growth, Calcutta would have to build 100 schools a year for 20 years and these would have to operate double shifts. Calcutta has not opened a single school in the past 10 years.

— Hospitals are so overcrowded that patients pronounced incurably ill must leave. The city has 3.8 hospital beds per 1,000 people, a fairly good figure for India. But people come from all over eastern India for treatment. The city is building one hospital every 10 years.

— It would take about 200,000 new houses to clear the present bustees. The present rate of building would take 100 more years just to clear the present slums.

— Calcutta's existence is based on its port, which handles 42 per cent of India's exports and 25 per cent of its imports. But the port is dying and plans are under way to build a new port nearer the open sea, at Haldia, 60 miles south of Calcutta.

Through a natural diversion process, the Ganges River has been shifting the main volume of its water to its mouths in East Pakistan. Water flowing into the Hooghly is so silt-laden that dredges are unable to keep up with it. The river today is limited to ships of about 26-foot draft and 10,000 tons.

Reduced water flow has caused three other problems. It has caused the city a severe shortage of fresh water; it is insufficient to flush away the sewage pouring into the river; and salt water pushing in from the Bay of Bengal is threatening fresh water supplies.

Part of Calcutta's problem is the vast number of uneducated, unskilled male laborers flocking in from the surrounding rural area.

They have contributed to the estimated 15 per cent open, or readily apparent, unemployment. A city official said there is a tremendous concealed unemployment, including the sidewalk sleepers who don't apply for jobs or get counted.

The influx of men has made Calcutta "the most male city in the world." The 1961 census showed 450 women for every 1,000 men. This increases sex crimes, prostitution, and venereal disease.

The men send whatever money they can scrape together home to their wives and children and this gives Calcutta a high volume of postal money order business.

Change in Postmasters At Hayti

HAYTI -- A change in postmasters for the Hayti Post office was completed when Angelo Mouhalis was sworn in by Postal Inspector R. S. Nelson, as acting postmaster. He replaces Harvey Slentz, who has become a postal service officer in the St. Louis region.

Mouhalis is a career postal employe, having served in the Hayti post office continuously since July 7, 1948, and has been senior clerk several years.

Former Postmaster Harvey Slentz is in St. Louis for a training course after which he will be assigned to one of the seven postal districts.

He expects to continue to make his home here. Slentz is married to the former Mary Margaret Pike, and they have three children, Harvey, Mike and Ann.

He graduated from Army Pilot training at Fort Sill, Oklahoma in November 1953, and received his commercial pilots license from the Department of Commerce in 1954. He served as a commissioned officer for fifteen years with the Missouri Army National Guard, retiring recently.

He has served with the Hayti post office since 1944, and was appointed Postmaster in 1951. In his new position as Postal Service Officer, he will serve as a liaison to the Regional Director, providing management counseling and guidance to Postmasters in the District.

Watchwords. A father complains about all the time his kids spent watching TV. "I have a six-year-old," he says, "Who knows only one word --Shh!" (Champ Butler, quoted by Bill Kennedy in Los Angeles Herald-Examiner)...And then there was the little girl who explained the family color TV set to a friend: "If the program doesn't start with the peacock, it means it will be an off-color show"

Kennett Man's Anthem Will Be Sung Sunday

KENNETT -- An anthem, "Lord Our God, We Do Adore Thee," written by C. R. Talbert of Kennett, will be sung by the Cathedral Choir of the First Methodist Church at 4:30 p.m. Palm Sunday under the direction of Mrs. Dorothy Ashbaugh.

The author, now 70 years of age, reports that this is his first and only attempt at anthem writing even though he has written jingles and a dozen or more musical pieces during his lifetime.

The anthem was first published last December by Broadman Press, the music press for the Southern Baptist Convention at Nashville, Tenn., and appeared in a monthly publication, "The Church Musician."

Since that time about 400,000 copies of the musical work have been distributed, approximately 300,000 of this number being in the monthly magazine which is subscribed to by 11,200 Southern Baptist churches in the United States for use by their choirs. The anthem was first sung in Kennett on March 6 by the choir of the First Baptist Church.

The author used his own lyrics and a Russian folk tune, with considerable change, for the melody. These words and music were put into the hands of a noted composer at Springfield, Will James who is also 70 years of age, and he rearranged the work for publication. James is well known to many singers and choirs in schools, churches and music clubs. He now lives on the royalties from a life of writing and arranging music.

Talbert reports that when he was a child he was a student in the tuition schools of Arkansas and studied under his great uncle, Hayes Sowell, a well-known teacher and singer in that day. Later he began to write jingles for school when he was a rural school teacher. Later he took violin lessons which gave him a basis for self - instruction in music. Through the years he often wrote down lyrics which came to mind and then created his own melodies to go with the words.

He was unsuccessful in his attempts to get his work published. "Professional music writers seem to have a monopoly with music publishers and it's almost impossible, unless you write a musical comedy, to break through that wall," he declares. "Only in the field of church music is the door still open to amateur writers like me."

Will James has informed Talbert that he will nominate him for membership in ASCAP, a national organization for writers of music. "I don't know whether this would be wise or not," the Kennett music writer commented. "This anthem is probably the last musical score I'll ever write."

Almost everyone in the Kennett area knows Talbert. He has lived in Dunklin County for the past 43 years. A graduate of the University of Missouri with a bachelor of science degree, he served as extension agent in the county for 17 years. Later he accumulated a considerable amount of land in this area and in recent years most of his activity has been limited to management of farms and real estate.

Wherever he has lived or worked he has always sung in choirs and choral groups. He has been a tenor in the local Methodist Church choir for the past 40 years and will be there this coming Sunday afternoon to assist in the presentation of his anthem, "Lord Our God, We Do Adore Thee."

"The West End Home Mission tells of its Third Birthday Celebration."

We the members of West End Home Mission are happy to state that our circle is not just a circle but a circle of love and humility. It was with these thoughts that the mission preceded with their third birthday celebration.

The devotion was very good. The lesson was taught by Sister Alberta Jones from I Peter 2;13-17. The subject was "The People of God in Government". Our souls were further refreshed with the thought that, it is the respect that we render to ourselves that so often hinders the growth of love. After adjourning the meeting gifts were presented to our birthday hostess, Sister Annie Evins. The refreshments consisted of ice cream, cake, and an assortment of other goodies.

Progress of Schools Told

PORTAGEVILLE -- If there should be any doubt in the minds of school patrons of Reorganized District No. 1, New Madrid County about the progress being made, and plans for further progress, they should talk to Supt. of Schools, Tom F. Park, Jr. He has the answers.

Speaking before the Kiwanis club at its regular meeting Monday, Superintendent Park outlined what had been accomplished during the past four years. He started out by pointing up the tax structure of the five AAA schools in the immediate area. Portageville has the lowest tax rate based on the $100 assessed valuation at $2.85. Next was Gideon with $3.00; Kennett $3.35; Caruthersville $3.60 and Sikeston $4.

Being integrated for the 1966-67 school term, Portageville has established (1) straight school term. (2) AAA classification. (3) Closed campus. (4) Integration

Superintendent Park stated this has largely come to past through the understanding and cooperation of the school patrons and leaders that have always stood for the best interest of our school system. . . and having the interest at heart for all school children."

Opera Deserves Better Building

NEW YORK AP -- The Metropolitan Opera is a company of singers surrounded by an orchestra, dancers and a variety of production and administrative people. It is one of the best opera companies in the world and should have the best, most modern fully equipped house in which to perform.

That is the sensible view.

The Metropolitan Opera is a building just south of Times Square, where second and third act scenery is stacked outside on the sidewalk leaning against the back wall while the first act is going on, where the acoustics are wonderful, where it's nearly always too hot for audience comfort and where Caruso sang. It's a building soon to be torn down and a lot of people love it and hate to see it go.

That is the nostalgic view.

The sensible view is prevailing. On Sept. 16, the Met will open its 1966-67 season in a new $42.7-million building at Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts. It will be cooled, it will have 3,800 seats, 175 more than the Mets has now, it will have storage space and rehearsal space and two orchestra pit elevators.

Rudolf Bing, Met general manager since 1950, says: "It won't look like the old house at all. You cannot expect in 1966 to build a 19th century building, but it will be traditional within contemporary limits. It will have tiers of boxes, beautiful redwood, gold leafing in the ceiling, red chairs and a crystal chandelier. It will be very elegant. It will have nothing of the mixture of antiseptic hospital and airplane terminal style you see in Europe today.

"You can't tell about acoustics now -- not all the chairs are in yet. But Justino Diaz and Leontyne Price -- who will open the next season in Samuel Barber's new Antony and Cleopatra -- just sang the National Anthem from the stage without accompaniment and it sounded very well."

The present house, soon to be torn down to make room for a skyscraper, opened Oct. 22, 1883, with Carles Gounod's "Faust." It cost $2 million, including the land.

The Met is selling everything it can -- light fixtures, seats, even tassels from the gold curtain for $5 each.

Nostalgia will prevail on the last night of this season, April 16, at 39th St. and Broadway. The last night -- sold out long ago -- won't be an opera. Too many stars want to sing and each person in the audience wants to hear his favorites.

More than 50 stars will be able to say "Oh, yes, I sang at the last night in the old house."

This is the old wooden stage where great music, and some that wasn't, has been created for 82 years.

It is where Leo Slezak gazed at a departing mechanical swan pulling a raft on which he, as Lohengrin, should have been standing, and loudly inquired, "What time does the next swan leave?"

Where Russian bass Feodor Chaliapin, under cover of a language his audience didn't understand, once sang to his valet in the wings, "Go home and get me a suit of underwear." Where the great duo, Flagstad and Melchoir, sang naughty stories to each other in German, performance after Wagnerian performance, and the music critics never caught on.

Calcutta City of Crisis

CALCUTTA, India (AP) -- This is one of the world's largest cities and it is a city in crisis -- overwhelmed by runaway population, poverty, hunger, disease and illiteracy.

A third of its people live in conditions which by Western standards are unfit for human habitation.

"We're really in a race with time," one official admits.

If the race is list, all of India will face a serious threat, experts here agree. Repercussions could be felt throughout Asia.

Bloody rioting broke out in mid-March, ostensibly over food shortages. Before the army regained control, about 30 lives had been lost, and millions of dollars worth of property -- mostly government -- had been burned or otherwise destroyed.

The violence was inspired by leftists, who are capitalizing on the deteriorating situation.

Even nature is working against Calcutta. The harbor, major trade link between East and West, is silting up; and the flow of fresh water into the Hooghly River is diverting into other branches of the mighty Ganges.

"Given the resources of the area, the city is faced with a hopless task," was the grim resume of one qualified observer.

"Local resources such as taxes are insufficient; administrative ability is skimpy.

"There is a great air of hopelessness, despair and cynicism.

"We don't have citizen good will. We have a crisis but no sense of crisis in the city and state administration.

"The problems are so chronic and the people so long-suffering that you can't arouse a development effort."

Under British rule Calcutta developed into one of the world's busiest ports. It was India's capital until 1912, the site of palatial British residences and government buildings.

Calcutta's real problems came with India's independence and partition of the subcontinent. About a million of the 4.2 million Hindu refugees who left East Pakistan swarmed into Calcutta, straining facilities.

The result is a metropolitan city of about seven million persons, gaining 200,000 a year. The Hooghly River on one side and salt water swamps on the other keep Calcutta from spreading out, so the population density goes up and up.

Calcutta is estimated to have 102,000 people per square mile, compared with 27,000 for New York City.

An official at the Calcutta Metropolitan Planning Organization pointed out that "in New York you achieve density by building skyscrapers. Here we have one-story bustees (slums). We have no room for schools, parks or hospitals."

It is estimated that three-fourths of Calcutta's people live in overcrowded tenement and bustee quarters, ridden with flies and rats. About 60 per cent of multimember families are jammed into one-room quarters -- many without running water.

Thousands live on the sidewalks.

The lack of safe water supply, sewage facilities and proper housing has made Calcutta an endemic source of cholera and other diseases. The World Health Organization calls the city an international health hazard amid its tropical heat and humidity.

Five years ago, the Ford Foundation sent a team of international specialists in urban planning. As a result a planning organization came into being and today the foreign experts work alongside Indian planners, turning out programs aimed at preventing catastrophe here.

John P. Robin, former chairman of the Pennsylvania Planning Board, is chief consultant.

Others in the group include Arthur Row, on leave from Yale University where he is chairman of the Department of City Planning.

The foreign experts decline to be quoted on Calcutta's problems because of possible resent at interference by outsiders. Indian officials similarly decline, fearing they would become targets of leftist agitators.

But interviews with planners and city, state and port officials produce this summary of Calcutta's problems:

--Not only is Calcutta grossly overpopulated, but so is its trade area -- the states of West Bengal, Bihar, Orissa and Assam. Calcutta is the only city over 300,000 in this great rural area. The states have a total population of about 146 million people, equal to that in all the European Common Market countries.

-- Calcutta is the most backward city and area in India in terms of educational facilities. No school is available for a half-million children. At the present rate of population growth, Calcutta would have to build 100 schools a year for 20 years and these would have to operate double shifts. Calcutta has not opened a single school in the past 10 years.

-- Hospitals are so overcrowded that patients pronounced incurably ill must leave. The city has 3.8 hospital beds per 1,000 people, a fairly good figure for India. But people come from all over eastern India for treatment. The city is building one hospital every 10 years.

-- It would take about 200,000 new houses to clear the present bustees. The present rate of building would take 100 more years just to clear the present slums.

-- Calcutta's existence is based on its port, which handles 42 per cent of India's exports and 25 per cent of its imports. But the port is dying and plans are under way to build a new port nearer the open sea, at Haldia, 60 miles south of Calcutta.

Through a natural diversion process, the Ganges River has been shifting the main volume of its water to its mouths in East Pakistan. Water flowing into the Hooghly is so silt-laden that dredges are unable to keep up with it. The river today is limited to ships of about 26-foot draft and 10,000 tons.

Reduced water flow has caused three other problems. It has caused the city a severe shortage of fresh water; it is insufficient to flush away the sewage pouring into the river; and salt water pushing in from the Bay of Bengal is threatening fresh water supplies.

Part of Calcutta's problem is the vast number of uneducated, unskilled male laborers flocking in from the surrounding rural area.

They have contributed to the estimated 15 per cent open, or readily apparent, unemployment. A city official said there is a tremendous concealed unemployment, including the sidewalk sleepers who don't apply for jobs or get counted.

The influx of men has made Calcutta "the most male city in the world." The 1961 census showed 450 women for every 1,000 men. This increases sex crimes, prostitution, and venereal disease.

The men send whatever money they can scrape together home to their wives and children and this gives Calcutta a high volume of postal money order business.

Change in Postmasters At Hayti

HAYTI -- A change in postmasters for the Hayti Post office was completed when Angelo Mouhalis was sworn in by Postal Inspector R. S. Nelson, as acting postmaster. He replaces Harvey Slentz, who has become a postal service officer in the St. Louis region.

Mouhalis is a career postal employe, having served in the Hayti post office continuously since July 7, 1948, and has been senior clerk several years.

Former Postmaster Harvey Slentz is in St. Louis for a training course after which he will be assigned to one of the seven postal districts.

He expects to continue to make his home here. Slentz is married to the former Mary Margaret Pike, and they have three children, Harvey, Mike and Ann.

He graduated from Army Pilot training at Fort Sill, Oklahoma in November 1953, and received his commercial pilots license from the Department of Commerce in 1954. He served as a commissioned officer for fifteen years with the Missouri Army National Guard, retiring recently.

He has served with the Hayti post office since 1944, and was appointed Postmaster in 1951. In his new position as Postal Service Officer, he will serve as a liaison to the Regional Director, providing management counseling and guidance to Postmasters in the District.

Watchwords. A father complains about all the time his kids spent watching TV. "I have a six-year-old," he says, "Who knows only one word --Shh!" (Champ Butler, quoted by Bill Kennedy in Los Angeles Herald-Examiner)...And then there was the little girl who explained the family color TV set to a friend: "If the program doesn't start with the peacock, it means it will be an off-color show"

Highway 25 Group to Appear before Commission

KENNETT -- The newly-formed Highway 25 Association swung into action with the announcement that a hearing has been scheduled with the Missouri State Highway Commission on Thirsday, April 14.

Joe Brasher of Malden, president of the highway association, said confirmation of the hearing was received from Jefferson City.

Brasher said an effort will be made to have at least 200 persons from the three-county area at the hearing. Arguments for improving the route on a faster rate of schedule will be presented, along with a presentation of the present condition of the road.

The Malden businessman expressed the hope that at least 200 persons would make the trip to Jefferson City next month to be present at the hearing before the six-member commission.

Arrangements for the hearing were made by Brasher, after consulting with A. C. (Dub) Riley of New Madrid, a member of the commission. Riley recommended the association request a hearing date to present its arguments.

Each community will be asked to make its own arrangements in securing representation and transportation, Brasher said. At least 25 persons will be needed from both Kennett and Malden, with lesser numbers from other communities along the route, he said.

Arrangements in Kennett will be handled by J. E. Ditto, a director of the association and chairman of the Kennett Chamber of Commerce's Highway Committee. Kimble Swindle, vice-president of the association, will handle arrangements in his hometown of Senath and in the south Dunklin area. Brasher said he would handle arrangements in Malden. Directors in other communities will handle details of the trip next month, he said.

The association will be permitted to present its case for an improved highway and will also be permitted to show colored slides of the condition of the 100-mile route, Brasher stated.

A board of directors meeting will be held at Malden to develop other plans for the presentation at Jefferson City.

Legislators from the three-county area will be asked to attend the hearing, along with citizens and officers and directors of the association.

The commission will be asked to include improvement projects for the route in its five-year highway plan. No major improvements are proposed for the route in the current five-year plan.

Brasher requested that persons wishing to make the trip to Jefferson City contact their hometown association directors as quickly as possible.

VIET NAM MONTAGE

BY DICK VAUGHAN

To build a tent city, use the following ingredients and instructions:

Take one flat, open, dusty, cement hard area. Add cursing sergeants and yelling officers. Mix in a great deal of sweat and labor. Spice well with incoming small arms fire and mortar rounds, and garnish with Claymore mines and Punji stakes. Bake consistently for 12 months, under the sun, at temperatures of 120 degrees.

Amazingly, what was desolate area one month ago, is now row upon row of tents, shop areas, and helicopter maintenance pads.

Of course living quarters were needed first, so regular field tents were hastily erected, to house the men. Work then turned towards preparing areas for the accomplishment of the Unit mission. Namely: Repair of helicopters. Slowly, the area began it's metamorphis, until it took on the appearance of a well laid out, functional maintenance company.

In the evening, after spending a full day in getting the maintenance areas set up, the men return to their tents, and begin improving their own living accomodations, and conditions.

First came the sandbag barricades, then the installation of floors. As each tent began to offer more comfort and security, the men began naming them with ornate, gaudily painted signs. There is "Rickity Backs Flying Circus, Tiltin' Hilton, Grand View Plaza, St. Pahl's, (for a Sgt. Pahl) Vulture's Roost," and many others.

One area has been set aside for the construction of a company club. There is a sign which promises "Dancing every Sat. nite with live band!" Then, as regular as clock work, another sign appears Saturday afternoon advising that "Due to circumstances beyond our control, the dance scheduled for tonight has been postponed."

One of the favorite expressions here is "Happiness is," from the book "Happiness Is A Warm Puppy." Here, happiness is: A wooden floor; iced tea instead of Kool Aid, a breeze, a shower, clean clothes, a generator, a refrigerator; A letter from home, a mortar round that lands on the other side of the air strip where nobody lives! A mission returning with all aircraft; or, an aircraft recovery from an area that is secured.

The day is fading now, tone and tint. The lengthening shadows are beckoning the night on, and where a month ago there was nothing, tonight a tent city sleeps.

EverybodyPeeved About Something

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — There is a very peevish period everywhere although, come to think of it, there was hardly a period that wasn't.

President Johnson has peeves, consumers are peeved, labor has peeves, Democrats and Republicans are peeved at each other, members of NATO are peeved, some Vietnamese are peeved.

The Wall Street Journal after a survey found consumers across the nation peeved at rising prices.

This couldn't help but peeve Johnson who wants prices held steady. It's obvious some elements of business are ignoring him.

Labor is peeved at Johnson for insisting wage increases should not go up more than 3.2 per cent, although business profits are soaring.

With price rising, living costs are going up, and Johnson, fearing inflation, is peeved at the thought of it.

So he has indicated he may ask Congress as an antiinflation measure to boost taxes on individual and corporate income. This would probably peeve most people.

Living costs have gone up 2.5 per cent in a year. If Johnson asks for a tax increase in the midst of the Vietnamese war, he'll be only repeating what President Harry S. Truman did in the midst of the Korean War.

The Korean War started in June 1950. That year Truman got Congress to increase income taxes on individuals and corporations and Congress repeated the dose in 1951 although living costs between June 1950 and Jan. 1, 1953 went up anyway. They rose about 13 per cent.

Johnson and members of NATO are peeved at French President Charles de Gaulle for endangering NATO by saying he wants all its forces out of France by April 1, 1967.

The Red Chinese are peeved at their big Communist neighbor, Russia, accuse it of lining up with the United States against China, and call the Russians a bunch of "dirty dealers."

In Congress, House Democrats and Republicans got peeved at each other over inflation after it was announced living costs had gone up again in February while Johnson was asking money to subsidize rent for the poor and at the same time was thinking of a tax boost to prevent inflation.

Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, Republican House leader, said those who voted for the rent subsidy were in effect voting for a tax increase and more inflation.

The House Democrats' leader, Carl Albert of Oklahoma, blasted the Republicans for being "blind for 35 years" and refusing to change. They weren't the only ones among Democrats and Republicans who had something to say.

In South Viet Nam, which this country is defending at the cost of American lives and billions of dollars against the Viet Cong and communism, some of the people are peeved at seeing their country run by their army officers.

And some seem very peeved at the Americans for being there at all.

For three weeks they have demonstrated, demanding civilian rule.

And Wednesday when a vehicle loaded with U.S. Marines collided with a bus loaded with members of a Vietnamese union, about 2,000 Vietnamese put on an anti-American demonstration.

Jeering demonstrators carried placards saying "Down with the Americans" all of which, of course, peeves Americans even though they don't say so officially.

Armed Forces

George D. West Jr.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. -- Airman George D. West Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. George D. West Sr. of Lilbourn, Mo., has been selected for training at Lackland AFB, Tex., as an Air Force air policeman.

The airman, who attended Lilbourn East High School, recently completed basic training at Lackland.

DET 706, United States Air Force Recruiting Service, 12th and Spruce streets, St. Louis, Missouri, will conduct an educator tour of the San Antonio Military complex area on the 4th thru the 7th of April, 1966.

Noted educators from both Missouri and Illinois will depart Lambert field at 1 p.m. on the 4th of April, 1966, for a flight to Randolph AFB, Texas. While in Texas, these educators will visit the sentury dog training school at Lackland Air Force Base and witness a demonstration of the dog training techniques. They will also visit the personnel research lab and a personnel training squadron to see first hand how the new airman recruits are processed into the Air Force. They will visit the confidence course and the basic military school while at Lackland. Included in the tour of Randolph Air Force Base, will be a command briefing on the overall mission of the air training command and its part in securing and training personnel for the United States Air Force. They will visit the Taj Mahal at Randolph and an aircraft display on the flight line, including the flight simulator. Their evening at Randolph will be concluded with a dinner given by the commanding general at the officer's club.

While at Brooks Air Force Base, they will visit the school of aerospace medicine, where they will receive a briefing on the organization and mission of the center. They will also visit the medical engineering branch, the vestibular research center, the high bay area and the centrifuge. One of the highlights of the tour will be a luncheon at the airmen's mess, where they will have an opportunity to talk to young airmen from their own areas. They will be conducted on a tour of San Antonio, to include the "Alamo" and other points of interest.

The United States Air Force feels that educators who have seen first hand, the training facilities and methods used in the processing and assignment of young airmen, are better qualified to advise and counsel students interested in the military service.

Mr. Roger Sherman, Principal of Sikeston High School, will attend.

Committee Approves Public Records Law

WASHINGTON AP --- The House Government Operations subcommittee has approved a bill that would establish a federal public records law.

The so-called freedom of information measure, which now goes to the full committee, would grant any person the right of access to official records of the federal government. Information concerning national defense or foreign policy secrets, trade secrets and private business data would be exempted from the measure.

The bill also would set up standards to determine what could or could not be made available to the public and authorize court review for claims of unjustifiable withholding.

The measure has been passed by the Senate.

Medical Association To Capital

KANSAS CITY (AP) -- Headquarters of the Missouri State Medical Association will be moved from St. Louis to Jefferson City by Sept. 1.

The move was approved Wednesday by the association's House of Delegates at the closing session of its annual convention.

The headquarters has been in St. Louis for 108 years. Debate on the move, opposed in previous years by St. Louis delegates, was not prolonged.

A committee of the association's council said the executive office will find advantages in proximity to the Legislature and Missouri health and welfare agencies in the capital city.

The MSMA office has eight employes and may expand its staff. Ray McIntyre is executive secretary.

Dr. Hector W. Benoit Jr., Kansas City chest and heart surgeon, was named to become president at the 1967 convention.

Certain moods of mind find an indefinable pleasure in stillness, soft, silent as the storm's sudden hush.

In Ohio and Texas, Ford and Chrysler workers went on short shifts.

And at Kansas City a GM official said another 8,200 in plants in that area would be affected if the strike continued.

Commuters were in trouble in various areas, and emergency neasures were adopted for movement of mail at some points.

The strike appeared to be a showdown in the seven-year battle between the railroad industry and the AFL-CIO Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen over the elimination of some 18,000 Firemen's jobs.

"I have not given an affirmative answer, said H.E. Gilbert, union president after a three-hour meeting in which Wirtz asked him to order 8,000 strikers back to work.

Both Wirtz and Gilbert said the prospect was for the strike to continue.

Wirtz declined to speculate on whether President Johnson might step into the dispute.

Gilbert said union attorneys will go to the U.S. Court of Appeals today to fight the temporary restraining order issued Thursday by U.S. Dist. Court Judge Alexander Holtzoff to end all strike and picketing activity.

"We have a war, and also the entire public is affected entirely aside from the war," Holtzoff said of the strike that stranded passengers and stalled freight from Boston to Savannah, Ga., to Los Angeles.

Members of most other unions reportedly were respecting the Firemen's picket lines, halting most trains on the Union Pacific, the Missouri Pacific, Illinois Central, Seaboard Air Line, Central of Georgia, Grand Trunk Western, Boston & Maine and the Pennsylvania Railroad West of Harrisburg, Pa.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To Whom it May Concern:

The reason I prefer The Standard because I think its great -- The headlines, the letters to the editor, the ads, the hospital notes, the out of town news, the Star Gazer, the names and addresses of the people going in the army, the grocery store ads are wonderful. Every reading in the Daily Sikeston Standard is great, it's the most.

#23 In A Series To Acquaint You With The Churches In This Area.

BLODGETT, MO.

Jimmie Edmondson, Pastor

The First Baptist Church of Blodgett, Missouri, was organized Dec. 12, 1905 with 16 members. The present building was purchased from a Free Will Baptist Church group and was erected in 1899. The first pastor was Rev. W. A. DeVault. The building was dedicated May 16, 1909 with the Rev. G. R. Daugherty pastor at that time, leading the services and Rev. W. J. Couch preaching the dedication sermon.

Under the ministry of Rev. Paul Phillips five class rooms were added to the building. Rev. Jim Edmondson was called as pastor October 1953, and under his leadership the church has grown spiritually, financially and numerically. Today we have 250 members enrolled. We have also added a modern kitchen, dining room and two additional class rooms.

Ours is a friendly church and evangelistic; where men and women come to worship and then go out to serve the Lord. Sunday School at 10:00 A.M., Preaching service at 11:00 A.M. and 7:00 P.M., Prayer service Wednesday evening at 7:00 P.M.

W. M. U. meets once a month for mission study; also the Brotherhood. Services are open to the public and a hearty welcome is extended to everyone.

THIS WEEK SALUTING

BLODGETT, MO.

Jimmie Edmondson, Pastor

The First Baptist Church of Blodgett, Missouri, was organized Dec. 12, 1905 with 16 members. The present building was purchased from a Free Will Baptist Church group and was erected in 1899. The first pastor was Rev. W. A. DeVault. The building was dedicated May 16, 1909 with the Rev. G. R. Daugherty pastor at that time, leading the services and Rev. W. J. Couch preaching the dedication sermon.

Under the ministry of Rev. Paul Phillips five class rooms were added to the building. Rev. Jim Edmondson was called as pastor October 1953, and under his leadership the church has grown spiritually, financially and numerically. Today we have 250 members enrolled. We have also added a modern kitchen, dining room and two additional class rooms.

Ours is a friendly church and evangelistic; where men and women come to worship and then go out to serve the Lord. Sunday School at 10:00 A.M., Preaching service at 11:00 A.M. and 7:00 P.M., Prayer service Wednesday evening at 7:00 P.M.

W. M. U. meets once a month for mission study; also the Brotherhood. Services are open to the public and a hearty welcome is extended to everyone.

Looking Back Over the Years

50 years ago
April 1, 1916

H. York and family came in Monday from Gray Ridge to make their home.

A. M. Crevoisier and family have moved to Marston. Mr. Crevoisier will establish his bottling works there.

The senior girls have challenged the women of the faculty for a basketball game in the near future.

A basketball game played by the senior boys' basketball team and the men of the school faculty, resulted in a score of 24-20 in favor of the faculty.

The iron fence around the home of L. M. Stallcup has been removed and his splendid yard looks like a park.

W. E. Barron, meteorologist of the weather bureau at Cairo, Ill., was in Sikeston Monday to locate the observation station for Sikeston.

Malone Theatre, today, tomorrow, "Rose Marie" with Nelson Eddie and Jeanette McDonald.

Bill Sensenbaugh will leave Wednesday for Memphis to accept a position with the International Harvester Co. Jack Lancaster is managing the Y station, which he bought recently.

Virginia Boardman, eight years old, has great confidence in what she reads in The Sikeston Standard as she read in another paper where someone had a peculiar accident that caused the loss of a finger. It was then that the little Miss doubted the story because she hadn't read it in The Standard and that she believed what was printed in the Standard and the Bible.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Darter moved last Tuesday to Cape Girardeau where they will make their home with Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Ward.

It may be spring in the Sikeston area as far as the calendar is concerned but it is also summer, according to temperatures. The mercury hit a high mark of 81 on Friday and at no time during the past week did it drop below the 55 mark.

Construction is nearly completed on a new enclosed year round shating rink located a short distance from Highway 60 north of the outskirts of Sikeston, which is being built for Homer Greenlee and son of Canalou.

A four-room frame dwelling at 618 Vernon avenue was purchased during the past week by Mrs. Rachel Isaacs from Mrs. Cele Streiff.

Construction work is under way on the new home for the Taylor Poultry Market, 136 North Ranney avenue. The building alone, aside from equipment, will cost in the neighborhood of $10,000, Mr. Taylor announced. It should be completed within the next 60 days.

Overheard from a car parked one night on a college campus: "I don't care if your name is Napoleon, get your hand out of my blouse!"

The Prayer

For Today From The Upper Room

When the fulness of the time was come, God sent forth his Son. (Galatians 4:4)

PRAYER: "In confidence of Thy goodness and great mercy, O Lord, I draw near unto Thee, as a sick person to the healer, as one hungry and thirsty to the fountain of life. . . Thou art my salvation and my redemption, my hope and my strength." In Thy name I pray. Amen.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I laughed when I read the letter from the girl who was mad because her friend wore false eyelashes, a hair-piece, contact lenses and falsies, and seemed to have great success with the men while she (who never misrepresented anything) did poorly by comparison. Then I remembered something I had read when I was a law student at Columbia and I looked it up.

If "Miss Loose Parts" had lived in England during the 18th century she would have been in serious trouble. Here is a law that was passed by the British Parliament in 1770:

"All women, of whatever age, rank, profession or degree, whether virgins, maids or widows, that shall impose upon, seduce or betray into matrimony any of His Majesty's subjects, by scents, paints, cosmetics, washes, artificial teeth, false hair, iron stave hoops, high-heeled shoes, bolstered hips or padded bosoms shall incur the penalty of the law enforced against witchcraft and like misdemeanors, and, upon conviction, that marriage shall stand null and void." -- THE OLD RESEARCHER.

Dear Researcher: It's interesting to learn that in 1770 a man could be seduced by high-heeled shoes. God save the king -- and all other males who lived during those hazardous times.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband underwent exploratory surgery a few days ago. The surgeon discovered a tumor that was malignant. He said he removed it and my husband has a good chance of making a complete recovery.

Will you tell me, please, why people keep inquiring, "Did the doctor find anything serious?" Almost everyone I know has put this question to me.

I feel it is nobody's business what the doctor found and I'm telling everyone, "No. It was nothing serious." If I said, "Yes, there was a malignancy," everyone would bury him right then and there.

Please print this letter and tell people not to ask such personal questions. Thank you. --- EL PASO

Dear El: Here's your letter but don't expect miracles. Following an exploratory operation it is natural for friends to ask questions.

If you don't want to give the details simply say, "The doctor said he's going to be fine. Thank you for asking." -- and end the conversation right there.

Dear Ann Landers: I can tell it's been a long time since you were in college, dearie. When the student from Illinois wrote and said the professors favored the sexy girls, you accused the guy of being a sorehead. I go to school in Phoenix and the same thing happens here.

I got "A" papers all through the term but the prof gave me a "C" for the course. I ought to tell you that I am a male and the prof is a phony intellectual who gives me a pain in the sacroiliac. Is this your idea of fair? -- THE HERETIC

Dear H.: Who said life was fair? If the prof gives you a pain in the sacroiliac you probably give him a pain in the same area. You have a lot to learn that isn't in the books, Bub.

If you have trouble getting along with your parents. . . if you can't get them to let you live your own life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How To Get More Freedom." Send 50¢ in coin with your request, and a long stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Reason is a light that God has kindled in the soul.

ATTENTION MOTORISTS
H.E.L.P.

HIGHWAY EMERGENCY LOCATING PLAN
Citizen Band two way radio on Channel 9 in your automobile will provide aid while traveling.

A nationwide communication network to aid motorists in distress has been announced by the Automobile Manufacturers Association (AMA). The system to be known as H. E. L. P. for Highway Emergency Locating Plan, provides for the use of citizen band two way radios in your private automobile to call for assistance when needed.

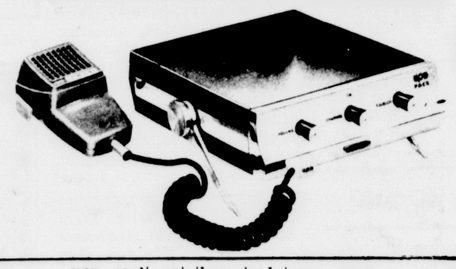

More than 2 million CB units already are in use today. CB Radios such as the PACE pictured below are readily adaptable to automobile use. They are compact, easy to install and simple to operate. To operate, the motorist need only to turn on the set to Channel 9, press the button on the microphone to talk, and release to listen. With the set kept on, the motorist will hear other messages being transmitted within his area. Stations monitoring Channel 9 include Volunteer citizens teams, police agencies, road service stations, and others concerned with highway safety.

This plan grew out of a concern by government agencies and highway safety groups on the lack of emergency communication facilities for motorists. A special A. M. A. task force has been working on H. E. L. P. for more than a year in cooperation with the volunteer citizen band operators clubs across the country. During a test in the summer of 1964 more than 120,000 motoring assists were given over Citizen Band Radio on Highway 66 between Chicago and Los Angeles.

The effectiveness of equipment will vary depending on the type of terrain and other interference to radio transmission. Tests reveal that a range up to 20 miles can be anticipated. In metropolitan areas, tall steel buildings and heavy traffic could reduce range to 5 miles. In addition to the benefits of an emergency communication channel, motorists can install other channels for personal or business communication. Other traveling benefits can be derived from citizens band radio, such as directions to dining or sleeping accommodations or for routes through an area.

Use of CB equipment is controlled by the Federal Communications Commission. No operators license or examination is required. A station license, valid for 5 years is applied for from the FCC when your equipment is ordered.

Barbra Now in Orbit

By CYNTHIA LOWR

NEW YORK (AP) — Last year at about this time, Barbra Streisand with a sleek, chic and tuneful one-woman show, shot dramatically into the television firmament. Now, after Wednesday night's stunning "Color Me Barbra," Miss Streisand is solidly in orbit. The second special actually topped her first one.

From the amusing little squiggle like a child's drawing that opened the hour to its almost quiet finish it was a handsome and imaginative production, the most stimulating entertainment of the season to date.

Miss Streisand first took us to the Philadelphia Museum of Art where in a chiffon and lace exaggeration of a maid's uniform, she scurried from hall to hall, pausing before this painting or that piece of sculpture and then was transformed by TV magic into the subject long enough for a number.

She sang "One Kiss" looking like and dressed like a Gainsborough lady, a despairing French lament posing like a sad model in an impressionist painting, "Where Or When" dressed like an Egyptian princess. Between numbers she indulged in bits of sly comedy.

Then came a gay circus sequence with Miss Streisand in a clown costume wandering around the ring singing affectionately to a pony, a llama, a baby elephant, an ant eater and a family of poised penguins.

The windup was Miss Streisand in a simple white gown singing more well-loved songs, including the old "It Had To Be You" and "C'est Si Bon."

Earlier, on ABC, there was a musical special in cartoon form updating the adventures of Alice in Wonderland. This time Alice, a very modern little girl, disappeared through the front of the family TV set in quest of her dog. But she shrank and grew tall, encountered the white rabbit, the mid hatter, the March hare and many of the other Lewis Carroll characters.

The lyrics were appropriate to the fantasy but the music, while tuneful, was not particularly catchy. The piece, though, did have a real dream quality about it. The drawings, particularly the animation of Alice were a bit stiff and primitively drawn. It was on the whole a bit of fun, suitable for family viewing but hardly memorable.

Man at Work. "I know it can be done," an old New England ship carpenter once said about a difficult job of construction. When asked how he knew, he replied, "Don't ask me so many questions--I can't understand all I know."

ATTENTION MOTORISTS

H.E.L.P.

HIGHWAY EMERGENCY LOCATING PLAN

Citizen Band two way radio on Channel 9 in your automobile will provide aid while traveling.

A nationwide communication network to aid motorists in distress has been announced by the Automobile Manufacturers Association (AMA). The system to be known as H. E. L. P. for Highway Emergency Locating Plan, provides for the use of citizen band two way radios in your private automobile to call for assistance when needed.

More than 2 million CB units already are in use today. CB Radios such as the PACE pictured below are readily adaptable to automobile use. They are compact, easy to install and simple to operate. To operate, the motorist need only to turn on the set to Channel 9, press the button on the microphone to talk, and release to listen. With the set kept on, the motorist will hear other messages being transmitted within his area. Stations monitoring Channel 9 include Volunteer citizens teams, police agencies, road service stations, and others concerned with highway safety.

This plan grew out of a concern by government agencies and highway safety groups on the lack of emergency communication facilities for motorists. A special A. M. A. task force has been working on H. E. L. P. for more than a year in cooperation with the volunteer citizen band operators clubs across the country. During a test in the summer of 1964 more than 120,000 motoring assists were given over Citizen Band Radio on Highway 66 between Chicago and Los Angeles.

The effectiveness of equipment will vary depending on the type of terrain and other interference to radio transmission. Tests reveal that a range up to 20 miles can be anticipated. In metropolitan areas, tall steel buildings and heavy traffic could reduce range to 5 miles. In addition to the benefits of an emergency communication channel, motorists can install other channels for personal or business communication. Other traveling benefits can be derived from citizens band radio, such as directions to dining or sleeping accommodations or for routes through an area.

Use of CB equipment is controlled by the Federal Communications Commission. No operators license or examination is required. A station license, valid for 5 years is applied for from the FCC when your equipment is ordered.

Barbra Now in Orbit

By CYNTHIA LOWE

NEW YORK (AP) — Last year at about this time, Barbra Streisand with a sleek, chic and tuneful one-woman show, shot dramatically into the television firmament. Now, after Wednesday night's stunning "Color Me Barbra," Miss Streisand is solidly in orbit. The second special actually topped her first one.

From the amusing little squiggle like a child's drawing that opened the hour to its almost quiet finish it was a handsome and imaginative production, the most stimulating entertainment of the season to date.

Miss Streisand first took us to the Philadelphia Museum of Art where in a chiffon and lace exaggeration of a maid's uniform, she scurried from hall to hall, pausing before this painting or that piece of sculpture and then was transformed by TV magic into the subject long enough for a number.

She sang "One Kiss" looking like and dressed like a Gainsborough lady, a despairing French lament posing like a sad model in an impressionist painting, "Where Or When" dressed like an Egyptian princess. Between numbers she indulged in bits of sly comedy.

Then came a gay circus sequence with Miss Streisand in a clown costume wandering around the ring singing affectionately to a pony, a llama, a baby elephant, an ant eater and a family of poised penguins.

The windup was Miss Streisand in a simple white gown singing more well-loved songs, including the old "It Had To Be You" and "C'est Si Bon."

Earlier, on ABC, there was a musical special in cartoon form updating the adventures of Alice in Wonderland. This time Alice, a very modern little girl, disappeared through the front of the family TV set in quest of her dog. But she shrank and grew tall, encountered the white rabbit, the mid hatter, the March hare and many of the other Lewis Carroll characters.

The lyrics were appropriate to the fantasy but the music, while tuneful, was not particularly catchy. The piece, though, did have a real dream quality about it. The drawings, particularly the animation of Alice were a bit stiff and primitively drawn. It was on the whole a bit of fun, suitable for family viewing but hardly memorable.

Man at Work. "I know it can be done," an old New England ship carpenter once said about a difficult job of construction. When asked how he knew, he replied, "Don't ask me so many questions--I can't understand all I know."
